Secred MLAs Lash Secreds

By TERRY HAMMOND

Four government members yesterday lashed out during final reading of a new Mental Health Act at the inadequacy of B.C.'s facilities for retarded children.

The attacks were spurred by sections of the act which make mental institution superintendents the final arbiters on admission of patients. Previously the courts could order admissions.

Two of the four Secreds who attacked retarded facilities also attacked the admissions section of the bill — but then voted for it.

RIGHT DEPRIVED

NDP members charged that in cancelling the authority of the courts the government was depriving the public of the right to care and treatment.

Gordon Dowding (NDP, Burnaby) spearheaded NDP opposition to the admissions of the bill calling it "a retrograde step of the most disastrous kind."

Availability of accommodations, he said, has been substituted for the need for treatment.

JOKERS IN IT

Secred Whip Bert Price launched criticism from the government side of the house by saying the new act had "jokers in it so somebody can pick and choose" those to be admitted.

"I certainly question the right of a legislature to take away rights which have been the rights of the people for many generations," he said. At Woodlands school for retarded children, he went on, there was an admitted waiting list "a mile long."

Heathman 'Just a Citizen'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Police Chief Robert Taft Wednesday night said that as far as his department is concerned the case of Charles Heathman is closed.

Heathman, twice tried for the 1960 murder of a Vernon, B.C., newsboy, is living in a Winnipeg rooming house under an assumed name.

Chief Taft said, "It would not be proper for a police force to put any private citizen under surveillance."

"As far as we're concerned he's just another citizen."

Heathman's married sister in Winnipeg said she has not seen him or heard from him since his reported arrival in the city last week.

Age of 91, Health of 60

For 50 years, California scientist Dr. Percy Dawson, 91, right, has been hiking eight miles weekly in aging-fitness study. Associates like fellow hiker Augustus Brooke, 81, a geologist, say his exercise ability at 91 is like that of healthy man at 60. —(AP Photofax)

Ruby Fires Belli

DALLAS (AP)—Melvin Belli, the controversial lawyer, has been fired as chief defence counsel for Jack Ruby, who was convicted and sentenced to death Saturday for the slaying of Lee Oswald.

Ruby's sister, Mrs. Eva Grant, said she sent a letter airmail Wednesday night to Belli's California office saying his services no longer were wanted. (See also Page 29.)

The Ruby family and the defendant himself "were dissatisfied with the defence presented by Belli and expressed shock at the trade he delivered after Saturday's verdict," Mrs. Grant said.

Peru Party Saved

LIMA (AP)—Unconfirmed reports reached here Wednesday that 50 Peruvian soldiers have rescued a mixed party of engineers and soldiers from a week-long attack by savage, stone-age Indians.

These reports, printed by Lima newspapers, said the whole party was en route through the Amazon jungle toward the Yavari River where a gunboat was waiting to pick them up.

Armed soldiers in the beleaguered party held off the Indians until help came, these reports said.

RADIO CONTACT

However, the ministry of education had nothing beyond news released by spokesmen earlier. This said that radio contact had been made with the group who said "they are closing in on us."

As the message cracked through the steamy air, torrential rains slowed down rescue troops hacking their way through jungle to the knoll where the engineers were making a stand.

STILL A CHANCE

A ministry of education spokesman said if the weather cleared there was still a chance for the 50 to 75 soldiers to reach the beleaguered party in time, but otherwise Indians might wipe them out.

The trapped party of 30 civilians and eight army engineers set out five weeks ago from Requena, 550 air miles north of Lima, to map a road through the trackless jungles to the Brazilian frontier 75 miles to the east.

'Hear, Hear'

MPs Hail Banks' Dismissal

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of Hal Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was greeted with applause when it was announced in the Commons Wednesday.

Labor Minister MacEachen said the government's three-man board of trustees decided to dump the 55-year-old union boss "after long consideration of the affairs and interests of the SIU of Canada and of the maritime industry."

He said the trustees — appointed over the SIU and four other marine unions last October — decided that it was not in the interests of the SIU, the shipping industry or the public at large that Mr. Banks remain in office.

OBVIOUS APPROVAL

"Hear, hear," shouted MPs as they thumped their desks in obvious approval of the action.

Former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr said there seemed to be "more truth than fiction" in reports that the ouster of Mr. Banks was approved in an agreement involving the SIU, the United States government and the Canadian government.

David Orlow, NDP member for Winnipeg North, said he greeted the announcement with a good deal of enthusiasm. "It is certainly the first step in what has been needed for a long time," he said.

EARLY SESSION

He proposed an early session of the Commons industrial relations committee so that the trustees could report to MPs about other plans cleaning up labor lawlessness of the Great Lakes.

Support for the ouster of Mr. Banks was voiced by Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and William J. Smith, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers. Thirteen CBRT marine locals are under the trusteeship.

Trustees Move In

Railwayman Running SIU

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks, one of Canada's most powerful and controversial union leaders for the last 15 years, was removed from office Wednesday by orders of the board of trustees over maritime unions.

His place was taken by an employee of the trustees for the last two months, Charles Turner of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

LOUDSPEAKER

At least 50 RCMP officers and city policemen surrounded the downtown Montreal headquarters of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) when announcement of Banks' dismissal as president of the 14,000-member union was made over a loudspeaker.

Some of the fiercely-loyal supporters of Banks who frequent union headquarters objected to the takeover after SIU vice-President Leonard McLaughlin told them to "remain peaceful."

Heil-Hitler Shout Greets Vancouver Boss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver seamen gathered angrily in their downtown hall Wednesday following news of the removal of Hal Banks as president of the SIU.

About 100 men clustered around John Meredith, newly-appointed local representative of the federal government trusteeship as he walked into the building.

At one point Mr. Meredith, an official of the New Westminster National Employment Office, was greeted by a shout of "Heil Hitler." He took the name of the man who did the shouting.

Simultaneously, commissioners hired by Mr. Meredith took up 24-hour duty at the hall.

Mr. Meredith conferred briefly with Rod Heiney, Seafarers' local vice-president. Mr. Heiney had no comment following the meeting.

Mr. Meredith denied suggestions by seamen that Mr. Heiney had been "muzzled" or his dismissal was imminent.

The seamen who crowded the hall claimed that, in the dismissal of Mr. Banks, they had lost their rights as citizens. Some charged the government was turning over the union to the rival CBRT.

Seaman Frank Benson sent a protest wire to Mr. Justice Victor Dryer in Montreal, chairman of the trusteeship which fired Banks. He said the wire was signed by 150 of his mates and read: "We protest the arrogant, overbearing action in dismissing our president without consulting the membership. We demand an explanation of this vicious act."

Mr. Meredith said he had been called to Montreal for consultations with the trustees and had taken up his new position here Monday.

Terrorist Dart

Poison Camera For de Gaulle?

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Police Wednesday tightened the security guard around French President de Gaulle after receiving reports a French terrorist had arrived in Mexico to try to kill him.

The terrorist was identified as Louis Honorat de Conde, a 25-year-old student who took part in an unsuccessful attempt on de Gaulle's life in a Paris suburb, Aug. 22, 1963.

Mexican police said the French Surete told them to watch for a fake camera with a poison dart which might be used against de Gaulle. They were reported to have halted and searched several people.

De Gaulle, seemingly unconcerned, continued his heavy official schedule. He was being watched closely by his bodyguards and Mexican agents because of two breakdowns in security precautions.

Enthusiastic crowds surged through police lines to reach de Gaulle and shake his hand. The beaming president made no effort to halt them.

Signal Failure

Mortars Fire In Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters) — Fighting involving mortars broke out in Cyprus early today at the small Turkish-Cypriot village of Ghasiveras, 40 miles west of Nicosia, a British military spokesman said here.

NICOSIA (Reuters) — The buildup of Canadian troops for the United Nations Cyprus peace force continued Wednesday.

A Canadian military spokesman said 53 Canadians were flown in during the day, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 445. The total Canadian force will be about 1,000 men.

BOVAVENTURE SAILS

Meanwhile, the Canadian aircraft carrier Bovaventure sailed for Cyprus from Halifax with about 100 men and equipment. (See story, picture, Page 37.)

Cypriot Foreign Minister Spy-

Dirtiest Job in UN Policing

By AARON R. EINFREANK

UNITED NATIONS—Canadians serving in the UN Cyprus force have probably the dirtiest and most dangerous job in the history of the UN peacekeeping operations—even dirtier and more dangerous than in the Congo.

It is no secret at UN headquarters that the Greek Cypriot government of President Makarios wants to use the UN force as a shield to suppress the Turkish Cypriot minority.

It is also no secret that the Turkish minority wants the UN troops to protect them while they seek to partition the island.

The ironic part is that Western countries, like Canada, agreed to sending the force in order to forestall the goals of both.

The duty of the force is to keep both communities apart for three months while a UN mediator seeks a compromise which will allow the two communities to live in peace.

Because of the intricacies of UN politics (i.e. the Soviet veto in the Security Council), the duties of the force have never been clearly defined.

The resolution authorizing the force was deliberately vague. In fact, some clauses are outright contradictions approved by the council to

Pressure on Welfare

Suspended Social Worker Here

A suspended B.C. social worker from Prince George said in Victoria yesterday she would like to have her job back—but that's not why she came here.

"I can't deny I came down here from Prince George to try to put pressure on the government to improve its welfare program," said Mrs. Bridget Moran.

Mrs. Moran was suspended by the provincial welfare department one month ago at the height of a controversy which she sparked late last year with a scathing open letter to Premier Bennett.

Three other Prince George social workers who were suspended at the same time have been reinstated.

Mrs. Moran described herself as a compulsive social worker who will be "lost" if she isn't reinstated.

But she doesn't plan on pleading for her job—she has a lawyer looking into possible grounds for appeal.

Welfare officials said they didn't know whether Mrs. Moran would be reinstated.

But reinstatement or not, she plans to make her mark on government welfare policy.

As an opening gambit she will continue to sit in the public galleries of the legislature throughout debate on the estimates of Welfare Minister Black.

She said she doesn't care if the debate takes a week.

GM of Canada Will Expand

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—General Motors of Canada Ltd. will invest $120,000,000 during the next two years in new plants and expanding existing ones, it was announced Tuesday night.

The program, largest in the company's history, will add more than 4,000 new jobs to GM's payroll, the announcement said. GM of Canada now employs 17,700.

VARIED PLANTS

Included in the planned expansion is a new truck chassis plant at Oshawa, additional facilities for making parts and assembling passenger cars at the main plant here, a new interior trim plant in Windsor, Ont., and a new passenger car assembly plant. Details of the passenger car plant will be released later.

BIG U.S. PROJECT

The announcement was made after GM of Canada's parent, General Motors Corp., said in the United States it will pour $2,000,000,000 into expanding its world-wide production facilities.

"Our decision to make this unparalleled investment is based on the steadily increasing evidence that the Canadian economy in general and the market for cars and trucks in particular will continue to expand and grow," E. H. Walker, GM of Canada president, said.

STARTS SOON

Construction of a 530,000-square-foot Windsor plant to produce interior trim for cars will begin "in the very near future," the announcement said. It is to be completed by the summer of 1965 and will employ 1,750 persons at peak capacity.

The new truck chassis plant will cover 850,000 square feet and be located near the company's present passenger car assembly plants here.

Too Obscene to Return

Britain Bars Love Treatise Sold in Britain

LONDON (AP) — London Airport: Member of Parliament off on vacation. Buys book at newsstand.

London airport: One month later. Member of Parliament returns refreshed. Customs man seizes book as obscene.

The book is The Perfumed Garden of Shayk Nefwazi, a 16th century Arab treatise on how to succeed in love.

It was seized from Dingle Foot, prominent Labor legislator, and in the House of Commons Tuesday he was angry.

"Is it not sheer absurdity," he demanded, "that the customs should prevent the importation of a book that can be freely bought at any book-stall in this country?"

Government spokesman Maurice Macmillan agreed. He explained, The Perfumed Garden had long been liable for customs seizure, but when published in Britain the seizure order was revoked.

Instructions were late in getting to the customs.

Surrender or Die Congo Rebels Told

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Gen. Joseph Mobutu, commander of the Congolese national army, called Wednesday on Communist-led terrorist rebels in Kwilu province to surrender or die.

Planes scattered thousands of leaflets containing Mobutu's ultimatum over the rebel-held sections of the province which has been terrorized and devastated by the half-naked and often drug-crazed followers of Peking-trained Pierre Mulele.

Accusing Fingers

Whose Fault Was Friday's Uproar?

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Accusing fingers pointed to every corner of the Commons chamber Wednesday as MPs turned critical eyes on their own conduct last Friday.

The cause of their post-mortem was an attempt by Gilles Grogre (Creditiste — J.-A. point) to censure Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux — one of the rare times an MP goes to such lengths against a presiding officer of the House.

Mr. Grogre's accusing finger was aimed both at Mr. Lamoureux and Prime Minister Pearson over a procedural point which arose last Friday when the government successfully won parliamentary approval for a resolution endorsing Canada's participation in the United Nations peace force in Cyprus.

GOVERNMENT BLAMED

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker laid the blame for the procedural dispute at the government's door, finding Mr. Lamoureux blameless. External Affairs Minister Martin declared both government and deputy Speaker blameless.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) accepted part of the blame personally, while suggesting other MPs do likewise and urging Mr. Grogre to withdraw his censure motion.

NO DECISION

The censure motion was debated without decision for two hours, the full time available for government business during Wednesday's short sitting day.

The procedural point involved was the ruling by Mr. Lamoureux last Friday that Mr. Pearson asked for and, in effect, was given the unanimous consent of the Commons to introduce the resolution on Canadian participation in the UN

Cyprus operation. Unless unanimous consent is given, such motions require 48 hours notice under Commons rules.

Mr. Grogre, reviewing the protests raised Friday by him and by Creditiste colleague Antoine Belanger (Charlevoix), charged Mr. Lamoureux broke the Commons rules and deprived MPs of rights guaranteed by the rules. He argued that the Creditistes made it plain in the Commons last Friday they wouldn't consent to the government request to waive the requirement for 48 hours' prior notice.

But, he said, Mr. Pearson brought the motion in just the same, prefacing his reading of it with the words "by leave" which, he maintained, failed to meet the requirement that unanimous consent of MPs present be given.

Deputy Speaker Lamoureux had ruled Mr. Pearson requested consent and, no objection having been voiced immediately, had received it.

Mr. Grogre complained that nobody was given a chance to raise objection and Mr. Lamoureux and Mr. Pearson had not asked whether there were any objections.

Don't Arrest Catholics Hitler Order

LEMBURG, Germany (UPI)—Accused mass-murderer Dr. Hans Heilmann said Wednesday Adolf Hitler overruled Gestapo demands for the arrests of German Roman Catholic leaders who protested against his so-called "mercy killings," to avoid wrecking home-front morale.

Heilmann told a war crimes court that Nazi SS chief Heinrich Himmler and his deputy, Reinhard (The Hangman) Heydrich, wanted to arrest the Catholic prelates for opposing the liquidation of mentally and physically disabled persons.

"I saved them from arrest," the gaunt, grey-faced defendant said.

Barracks Life Terrible Says Pope John's Diary

ROME (UPI)—To Pope John XXIII, the army barracks was terrible and he wrote in his diary, "How ugly the world is, what dirt, what filth!"

That was in 1901, when the late Pope was in the army. It is one of the entries contained in the diary which Angelo Roncalli kept from the age of 14 to 81—a year before his death—and which appeared in Italian book stores today under the title, Il Giornale Dell'anima (Journal of a Soul).

The Pope spoke with rare bitterness of his military service, saying, "I had to submit myself to military service, which is an unjust and barbarous imposition on the ministers of God."

Later he drew this lesson from his military experience:

"I do not live for other than to obey the signs of God like a little soldier at attention before his superior... I am a servant... and the Lord has shown me His orders... I love health. Here is sickness. God sends it to me. Well, may sickness be blessed then."

Pope John was drafted in November, 1901, and served as a non-commissioned officer in the medical corps.

Magr. Capovilla recounts in the preface to the book that Pope John said to him that evening as he leafed through pages of the diary:

"I was a good boy, innocent, a little timid. I wanted to love God at all costs and I didn't think of anything but being a priest."

Prairies Aiming to Boost Wheat Crop to New High

OTTAWA (CP)—A record 29,097,900 acres of wheat will be planted in Canada this year, six per cent more than 1963, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimated Wednesday.

The figure represents a seventh straight acreage boost — if it materializes — and reflects wheat growers' determination to capitalize on record export opportunities. If the forecast is reached, it would eclipse the standing record of 28,700,000 acres planted to wheat in 1940.

The bureau emphasized that its survey represents farm intentions as of March 1 and the actual seeded areas may vary considerably from the forecast, depending on various factors, including the impact of the survey itself.

Evidence of the desire to cash in on Russian, Chinese and other export markets lies in the indication that summer-fallow this year — a major prairie land use practice — may see 26,000,000 acres lying fallow. This is five per cent less than a year ago and would be a third straight decline.

Employers 'Provoke' IWA Locals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), said Tuesday employers' proposals for reduced contract benefits have "provoked our local unions into staging a full-scale coast-wide campaign" in support of the union position.

"Our members... are fully determined that this is the year when the employers must share some of their enormous profits to provide better living and working standards," he said in a television broadcast.

60 CENTS
The IWA asked for a 40-cent-hourly wage increase over the basic $2.08 an hour and fringe benefits in contract negotiations which opened Monday.

The companies proposed an increase in the workers' share of room-and-board costs and changes in other clauses of the existing contract.

Mr. Moore said the IWA will embark on a publicity campaign to inform union members and the public about the wages-and-contract demands.

A Pittance

IT is no wonder at least one Soerod MLA described the $2 increase in juror's pay, making it $10 per day, as totally inadequate. He could have gone much further and called it a pittance, a mere gesture that gives lip service only to the equation of remuneration.

It is a peculiar thing that alone of all those who officiate in a courtroom only the jurors may do so at their own private expense. And despite the fact that theirs is the ultimate and final role—the arbiter of guilt or innocence.

The jury rate was fixed when economic standards were lower than they are today, although the rate never has been adequate compensation. It is manifestly unfair that in the exercise of this important judicial task they should have to suffer pecuniary loss, as is the case when loss of wages or business return means a personal sacrifice.

It is difficult also to understand why the government is bent on getting this service at the cheapest rate possible. It is so much less niggardly in many other directions.

The attorney-general does give prospective jurors one little sop, however; their remuneration can be listed as "expenses" and deducted from income tax. This is indeed a wonderful relief, especially since his courtroom service may have cost a juror a week's or more pay!

The Garbage Dump

THE ALLEGATIONS of the Prospect Lake Community Association concerning the Greater Victoria garbage dump near Killarney Lake are sufficient to demand the promptest attention from the authorities concerned, primarily the metropolitan health board and Saanich council.

The Lakes District residents say the dump, used for the disposal of Victoria, Saanich, Central Saanich and Sidney garbage, is contaminating drainage water feeding into Killarney and Prospect Lakes; that there is further pollution from decayed matter dropped by seagulls; that there is a health menace both from a large population of live rats and from the bodies of poisoned rats and birds. Apart from that they allege a fire danger and a smoke nuisance.

If this is the case, it is surprising to say the least that public health officials have not already acted more positively and effectively to remedy the situation. Thorough assessment of the extent of the hazards is clearly in order at once, closely followed by a determination whether satisfactory, continuing measures can be undertaken to make garbage disposal in this location reasonably sanitary.

It might be of considerable concern—and cost—to the city if the privately-operated dump had to be closed, and the present arrangements cancelled. Another convenient site that would not result in new complaints on the same score likely would be difficult to find, and no one would want to go back to the system of dumping rubbish in the sea, with its consequence of dirty beaches.

But that would be no excuse for reluctance to order closure of the Saanich operation if it is the health menace the people of the district claim it to be and if, in that case, ample corrective action cannot be ensured.

An Example

IT is an interesting circumstance that the unit which has been on standby assignment for some time as a "brush-fire" contingent for possible UN call, and now arriving in Cyprus, should be a Quebec regiment.

Its deployment serves to offset opinion that all of Quebec is engaged in dissent from confederation or national policy, and wants to secede. These young soldiers, French-speaking but in federal service, are upholding the honor of their country in a task they can be relied upon to fulfill to the letter.

Perhaps the Creditiste leader in Parliament, Mr. Real Caouette, should be invited to pay the Van Doo's a visit. The country would be glad to foot his expenses. He is the man who has expressed admiration for Hitler and Mussolini, and who has said he refused to fight for Canada in the last war and wouldn't fight for it in another.

It may be doubtful, but the example of these soldier patriots of the Royal 22nd Regiment might help to change his mind about such things as national unity and national purpose. As he watched them carrying out an onerous duty in the uniform of their country there would at least be cause for him to ponder on his ways.

But then the Van Doo's might not themselves welcome him; for he lets down the race of which these soldiers are heirs.

In One Word

IN recent years it has become the custom of politicians and other interested observers of national affairs to find a short but descriptive nickname for every federal budget that is brought down.

In the past we have had, among others, the "flip-flop" budget, the "too-little, too-late" budget and the "stop-gap" budget.

It is interesting to note that this year's budget was no exception to this rather loose rule that is doing its best to become a Canadian tradition. Hardly, in fact, had it been introduced to the House by Finance Minister Gordon than it became variously labelled across the country as the "stand pat" budget, the "mark-time" budget, the "do-nothing" budget, the "dry sandwich" budget or the "small potatoes" budget.

In the main all these nicknames have some merit in that they point up either the weakness or the strength of the government's budgetary measures as outlined by Mr. Gordon last Monday. And unquestionably each is the result of much head-scratching and considerable searching for originality.

However despite all this effort the all-round best title for Mr. Gordon's latest budget resulted from a simple typographical error on the part of a Canadian Press teletype operator, who in the rush of despatching news inadvertently punched a "d" instead of a "b" to come up with the delightful word "dudget."

For a simple one-word definition of Mr. Gordon's budget, "dudget" can't be beaten.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN the vanguard of the plane at Nicosia, the news wires report, there was an appreciative murmur from watching Cypriot and UN officials. They were as smart as all get-out. Knife-edged creases in the battle-dress trousers. And alert as only young men in the pink of condition can be.

The same reaction, I remember, was evoked among U.S. observers who witnessed the departure from Seattle of Canada's special force for the Korean campaign. The bearing and elan of the troops won admiration.

You might think perhaps that creased trousers is no criterion of military efficiency but you'd be wrong. A sloppy outfit might fight well in battle but a well-groomed contingent would never fight poorly.

It is the hallmark nowadays of Canadian soldiers that their appearance bespeaks their performance; and of the heritage that is theirs you may reassure yourself by reading the history of two wars.

I personally don't think they take a backseat to any other national troops, either in parade competence or battlefield calibre.

As to the latter the Daily Express, perhaps fearing that Turkey was about to send a force onto Cyprus, had a piece last week about the fine fighting qualities of the Turks. Veterans of Gallipoli and Palestine of the first war know at first-hand what sturdy warriors these chaps are, tough and hardily bred and tied to discipline. The Canadians of Korea also had cause to note their quality, although the Turks in this instance were comrades-in-arms of the UN.

Happily enough Turkey has withheld its hand and so the Van Doo's won't be called on to reverse the Korean picture by engaging a former ally. They haven't gone to Cyprus to fight a war, of course, but instead in the police role of preventing one. Although like all peace-keepers who try to separate combatants they're apt to have both sides attacking them.

The same issue of the Daily Express contains a letter from a British soldier already on this thankless job, writing home to his mother. He says to her, apropos a Greek Cypriot picketer parading a poster demanding "English soldiers get out," that "he ought to have heard what you said when you heard I was going to Cyprus."

And further that "I feel like going up to these poster men and saying: 'All right, we'll get out. Then you and the Turkish Cypriots can murder each other, and the Turkish Army will come in to "protect" their lot, and the Greek Army will come in to "protect" your lot, and how much Cyprus will be left when they've done with it?"

But he admits he can't say that; his job is to be neutral. So is the role assigned to the Van Doo's, the Royal 22nd Regiment of renowned and French-speaking soldiers. Whatever your sentiments about the current unrest in Quebec here is one unit that will uphold Canada's good name and confederation into the bargain.

One visitor to Victoria this week who would read of the Van Doo's and their turn-out with pride was Lt.-Col. Paul Triquet, of Cabano, Quebec, who at the Union Club met with two other VC winners, Lieutenant Governor George Pearkes and Brigadier Fred Harvey, of Calgary.

It can't be often that three Victoria Cross holders from different parts of the country meet together. Colonel Triquet, a Van Doo himself, won his VC in Italy in 1943, General Pearkes his on the Western Front in 1917, and Brigadier Harvey his in France in the same year. I believe there are now only 21 surviving Canadian VCs.

What they talked about of course one cannot presume to inquire but undoubtedly the Van Doo's and their Cyprus mission would find a place in the conversation.

And in one sense these Canadian troops are in a hot spot perhaps as tricky as the veterans experienced in their military heyday. The Van Doo's are in No-man's-land, never a nice location at any time, and with rival forces facing them front and back.

But they'll hold the fort with distinction; the creased trousers are a guarantee of that.

A Clear-Eyed Assessment

By RICHARD JACKSON

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THE GOOD, grey Times of London, in its annual "Supplement on Canada," has stood well back and taken an unusually penetrating look at the Canadian political situation.

With all sound and fury in Parliament and the tumult and turmoil in and about Quebec raising such political dust, it's becoming increasingly difficult sometimes to keep a clear perspective.

Enlightening, then, to see how others see us, particularly an impartial international observer of such eminence as the Times, which has been keeping a clear, cool and careful eye out on the world and its ways for nearly 200 years.

Well, how does the Times size up the situation as of spring, 1964?

Like this: After nearly a year in office, the Pearson government has yet to find a secure mooring either in Parliament or in the country. In Parliament, where the Liberals are still four seats short of a majority, survival has been assured more by the Opposition's overriding fear of an election than by the quality of the government.

In the country, polls indicate that Mr. Pearson's team has been unable to improve its popular support since the general election of April last year.

By all the statistical measurements—production, trade, employment, income—Canadians have cause for thanksgiving. And in these circumstances one would expect the government to benefit from at least some of the thanks.

But in Canada today there is no secure footing for any party.

The whole country has been thrown off balance by the surge of French-Canadian nationalism in Quebec, the demand for provincial autonomy, for new alignments between French and English-speaking Canadians.

The uneasy quest for nationalhood which is almost a part of the Canadian character has been renewed with disturbing force.

Old wounds have been opened.

Vicious young men in Quebec (these are the Times' own words) have sworn to kill or be killed for Quebec independence, and the sullen reaction is already evident in English-speaking Canada.

Mr. Pearson is the man in the middle. His conciliatory moves towards Quebec have cost him dear in other parts of Canada.

He is accused of surrender to Quebec, of destroying Confederation by treating Quebec as a nation within a nation.

The Conservative leader, Mr. Diefenbaker, sees in this a heaven-sent opportunity for a return to power.

"One Canada," he thunders, and though this is exactly what Mr. Pearson wants, too, people are listening to John Diefenbaker.

Most of the provinces are demanding larger shares of taxation, but the attack is being led by the governments of Quebec.

And so the politique de grandeur of the premier, Mr. Jean Lesage, is proving costly.

But another year, a good session of Parliament would put the Liberals in trim for a general election, with hope of winning a majority.

It is time that they need, and the Opposition leaders, except for Mr. Diefenbaker, are prepared to supply it.

With an almost iron-clad assurance of support from the Social Credit leader, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Pearson need have little fear of being forced into an election before he is good and ready.

That's it. The political picture as the Times sees it in the long perspective of history from London.

And it's as calm and clear-eyed an assessment of the situation as has been the public light of day on printed page, domestic or foreign.

Only one incalculable could upset this balancing by the Times of the Canadian political scales—an accident in Parliament. A sudden issue, so hot and hard as to solidify the fragmented Opposition. It has happened, before—just last year—and could again, nothing being impossible politically.

Suggestion for Viet Nam

TV Fare for the Enemy

By SHAUN HERRON

CITIZEN Garbage took his place at the head of the table in Ye Olde Puritan Pub and poured his beer into a tall glass.

"Now, my fellow Americans," he said, "the military advisers in Viet Nam want advice. They have opened a suggestion box on 'how to lick the Commies.' What can we tell them?"

"Why don't we get them before a Senate committee? That should cool them off quite a bit," said Charley Wilson.

"Put salt on their tails," said Johnny Leggett.

"Frivolous," said Citizen Garbage. "This is serious business. We are asked to tell the military how to win a war. Now who has the first serious suggestion?"

"I think, Citizen Garbage," said Rogers Flather who is always serious and purposeful in his approach to military matters, "I think we should try to deceive them, get them off their guard, make them underestimate us and grow slack."

"And how will we do that?" "We should extend aid to North Viet Nam and make it of two kinds. We should send them transmitters and television receivers on the one hand, and on the other we should provide them with some of our television programs and the commercials that go with them."

"For example?" "For example, some of our happy family shows and our afternoon soap operas. The family shows prove that we are a happy nation totally involved in our small personal affairs, full of the kind of push button goodness that brings every temporary strain to a full and happy conclusion within the prescribed 30 minutes. We are therefore too good natured, too mutually congenial and too happy to have the guts for tough jungle warfare."

"And the soap operas?" "They prove that we are all deeply neurotic, pathologically self-obsessed and profoundly resistant to therapy. We are therefore too preoccupied with our own navel to have any capacity for jungle warfare."

"You included commercials." "We should send them our cigarette commercials. These would prove that we are a nation with the death wish—show them all those men and women inhaling deeply on a drug that gives us a 10-to-1 chance of dying of cancer. But we don't want to die on the battlefield—all the backgrounds are sylvan streams in summer fields of fine paneled rooms with deep leather chairs, or snow scenes of happy harkari and the deep draw. Or contented family men smoking on the job, instead of using their brains and muscles to make an honest living for lazy families just waiting to collect life insurance for the old man." "You'll have to do better than that."

"Well then, send them our beer and coffee commercials. They'll prove we're a nation of thirty adults who never get off our pads—just lie around drinking beer and coffee day and night."

"And we want to prove to them that the problems our people face as a nation are big and are shared by—as we say on this continent—'each and every one of us': problems like dandruff, and bad breath, and how to keep our dentures in, and body odor. Was there ever a nation that faced graver domestic issues? Doesn't every woman go around unweaving about dandruff and don't men get jobs when they get rid of it?"

"How many men and women in North America feel secure about the problems of being close?"

Rogers was winding up into something approaching eloquence. He got up from the table and struck a presidential nominee posture.

"And who needs to be scared of a nation that can't sleep at night? That has headaches all day and into whose millions of stomachs acid drips constantly like Niagara in a spring thaw?"

"Don't we all overeat and don't our wives pour stomach settlers into us like attendants at gas stations?"

"Don't we hear voices? Aren't our wives always talking to voices about brushing our teeth after every meal and if they're not talking to voices about our teeth, they're talking to voices about detergents or seeing giants in washing machines. Who hears voices? Nuts! And who sees giants in washing machines? Americans!"

"What have the Commies to fear from us?" Rogers sat down amid what at board meetings were larger dividends have been proposed, is called a significant silence. Citizen Garbage had nothing to say for an unusually long spell. Then he said:

"OK, Citizen. You have persuaded them that we are not to be feared. Now what do we do? Invite them to form a government?"

"Not by a long chalk," said Rogers, and took the floor again. "We erect large television screens on every front, screens so large that they can be seen a quarter-mile away. We have given the enemy a false sense of security—teased him into attack."

"And as he advances full of false confidence, we throw on the large screens the TV series 'Combat,' which shows how seven American privates first class and a buck sergeant won the war in Europe all on their own with not a toothbrush, an aspirin, a bottle of hair oil, a dandruff cure or a deodorant between them."

"The enemy will collapse and surrender in droves." "Did you get all this down Citizen Secretary?" Then send it to the Viet Nam suggestion box and get this war over."

Washington Calling

Quiet Interval

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AN advance look at President Johnson's campaign strategy shows his conspicuous talent for appraising the mood of the voters. If any confirmation had been needed to underwrite the Johnson appraisal it came out of the New Hampshire primary.

As the White House assays the mood of the United States, the American people have suffered a series of severe shocks. First was the implied threat to send American troops into Laos. That was followed by the Bay of Pigs calamity. The Cuban missile crisis in October, 1962, came close to nuclear war with every weapon in the nuclear arsenal ready for firing.

The climax was the assassination of President Kennedy. Recent studies in depth of public reaction show that the effect of this tragedy of violence was shattering. Most people were not only shocked and saddened but they were troubled over what an uncertain future might hold.

So now, it is the White House conclusion, they want to be let alone. They want an interval of at least comparative quiet. A study of voter reaction in New Hampshire to Sen. Barry Goldwater's "send in the Marines" seemed to bear this out.

The campaign, therefore, will be understated. It will be as nearly as possible "non-political." The principal stress will be on the nation's rising prosperity and the need to see that all Americans share in this prosperity. The theme in short is to be: Don't rock the boat.

The president and the Johnson-Kennedy team working for him are, it hardly needs to be added, realists. They realize that violent hands quite beyond their control may do the rocking and precipitate a new shock wave. But an incident illustrates the president's determination to prevent any needless alarms and excursions.

In the rather silly game of hawks and doves advertised around the Viet Nam crisis one of the hawklike hawks in the state department had been importuning every reporter who would listen with warnings of imminent peril and the need to bomb or blockade, perhaps both, North Viet Nam. Word of this reached the president and he is said to have been distinctly unhappy about it.

If anyone is going to hawk a foreign policy, he is reported to have said to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, then I hope he will hawk my policy. Steps were taken, to use that convenient diplomatic phrase, and the Paul Reveres of Foggy Bottom were silenced.

As this is written, Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara has not yet made his report to the president on Viet Nam. He may conclude that his own role should be that of Paul Reveré.

On the spot in Saigon he went a long way in pledging American help to the government of South Viet Nam "forever." But, campaign or no campaign, the president does not like government by crisis. What must be done must be done, and better to do it without an emotional storm.

Underlining the president's control over policy is the conviction that the shaken-down is definitely at an end. Mr. Johnson is making his own moves in his own way. He is placing his pawns around the board and this is one of his specialties as a political chess player. The appointments he has been making have a high degree of political content.

If a Republican opponent, whatever his name may be, will do his best to shove the president off the comfortable, prosperous, contr. The objective will be to blur the image of a big, capable American in the office who wants to do his best for everyone. And Mr. Johnson has a low boiling point. But he was also a youthful student at firsthand of the peace-and-prosperity approach to politics of FDR.

If this line can be held, ruling out unexpected crises, the campaign promises to be dull. Already the political dialogue has been damped down. The president, by coupling a demand for economies with an acceptance of the tax cut and deficit spending has taken the edge off the bold approach to the use of budgetary deficits as a stimulus. The economies are shrewd politics but they could prove to be poor public enlightenment.

This same shrewd political judgment would seem to apply to the Johnsonian appraisal of the public mood. Call it apathy and indifference or simply a desire to be let alone, most soundings indicate that he would like to leave things as they are for the foreseeable future.

Faraway Giant-Killer Needs a Lot More Votes

By HAROLD MORRISON

Big sleeper of the 1964 Republican preliminary bouts may take place in April in the hog-and-rail state of Illinois. It is there perhaps more than any other region where Henry Cabot Lodge's true popularity may be tested.

Without a single personal appearance, the tall, husky U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam scored a stunning upset in the March 10 New Hampshire primary where he swept aside heavyweights Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller.

Lodge now has 14 of the 655 votes needed to win the Republican party's presidential nomination in July. As the figures suggest, the New Hampshire victory in miniature in terms of power at the San Francisco convention.

Goldwater, the Arizona senator, can boast of assurances of getting between 400 and 500 votes from the western and southwestern states. Rockefeller, the New York governor whose White House prospects have been largely demolished, can say he has at least the New York delegation locked up and that's 92 votes.

Rockefeller demolished

Lodge needs a lot more votes if he is to eliminate the widely held interpretation that all New Hampshire proved is that the party is somewhat fragmented; that a search for a leader still goes on, with a lot of attention on Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton, who's playing the disinterested observer with cool disdum.

The next primary is in Wisconsin April 7 with 30 convention votes but it will be a more formality because the delegation will be pledged to Congressman John Byrnes, a "favorite son" with no presidential aspirations. Wisconsin will merely watch how the national battle shapes up and decide later which candidate to support. Lodge's name didn't appear on the New Hampshire ballot but voters were allowed to write in his name. There will be no write-ins in Wisconsin.

But write-ins will be allowed at the April 14 primary in Illinois where 58 delegation votes will be the winner's prize. Only the names of Goldwater and Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine—who trailed badly in New Hampshire—will be printed on the ballot. A Lodge upset there could turn a regional favorite into a national star.

It was in Illinois that former president Dwight D. Eisenhower showed his great vote-getting power. He got about 150,000 votes on a write-in movement in 1952 after scoring heavily through a New Hampshire write-in.

Again, Lodge will be the "invisible" man. He remained on duty in Saigon while Goldwater and Rockefeller fought it out in New Hampshire. Lodge has shown no indications of removing himself from Saigon at this stage, although both Goldwater and Rockefeller have challenged him to come back and fight.

From Illinois, the preliminary bouts move on to New Jersey April 21 and to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania on April 28. New Jersey, with 40 votes, may go for native Lodge. Pennsylvania's 64 will be bottled up by Governor Scranton.

Other outstanding primaries will be May 2 in Texas, where for the first time the Republicans hold a state popularity contest for presidential nominee. Lodge's name was entered but later withdrawn. His own men questioned whether he could capture the 56 votes from Goldwater who also maintains he'll get California's 86 votes June 2, when the primaries end. Other states select their delegations by state convention or party caucus.

big test coming

As matters now stand, some of the major contenders will enter the July 13 convention with a sizeable block of votes, but not enough to assure a first-ballot victory. With each new round of voting will come shifts in state support, as candidates jockey for the magic 655 votes needed for victory.

In the end, the contenders who entered the arena with an assured block of votes may find the endorsements have lapsed, with the possibility of a "dark horse" contender emerging as the final choice.

Bunche Speech Raises Points

Guns 'Defend' UN Troops in Action?

By CARMAN CUMMING

United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche, an acknowledged authority on peace-keeping forces, delivered a 28-page speech on the subject in New York this week without ever mentioning the word Cyprus.

But, he raised some interesting points relevant to the latest UN venture in the Mediterranean tangle spot—and to the debate over the functions and powers of the force.

Specifically, he talked of the relationship of UN peace-keeping forces to local governments and whether a UN force can use its weapons to keep order. Some eyebrows have been raised by the tentative terms of reference of the Cyprus force, particularly stipulations that the force can fire only in self-defence, can take no action to disarm Cypriots and can not interfere in the country's internal affairs.

To some observers, this has seemed to be tantamount to giving a policeman a gun, then telling him he can't use it until a criminal opens fire on him.

Notable Quotes!

I must have goofed it.—Senator Barry Goldwater.

The first squeak of the Royal baby drowned the voice of the prime minister.—Eoina Hughes, M.P.

If beating is the proper way to treat fellows at public schools for bad offences, why should it not apply to boys of the same age in Bosnia?—Mr. Justice Lawton.

I would get rid of the navy tomorrow and spend the money on the territorial army.—George Wigg, M.P.

Bunche talked of the UN Congo force, saying its weapons had been used for defensive purposes only—"although they may be used for its protection when it is discharging responsibilities assigned to it by security council resolutions, such as the prevention of civil war."

Translated into the terms of the Cyprus force, this principle would mean that the UN troops will not be expected to sit idly by while, for example, a group of Greek-Cypriots set up machine-guns on opposite sides of a street.

UN planners hope, of course, that this kind of situation won't arise.

Bunche commented that he doubted any UN peace force could be stationed for very long in any country if, even in self-defence, it would have to turn its guns on civilians rather than military forces.

Bunche also said that the Congo force had carefully refrained from interfering in the internal affairs of the country except upon the specific request of Congolese authorities.

Despite this, it is clear that action by the Congo force had the effect of preventing the secession of wealthy Katanga province and thus had a profound effect on the internal affairs of the Congo.

In the case of Cyprus, the issue is complicated by questions of the legality of the Nicosia government of President Makarios since the Turkish-Cypriots take no part in it. Secretary-General U Thant is denouncing the Makarios government and will certainly be under pressure from it to use the force to put down the rebellion of the Turks.

Several countries taking part in the force, including Canada and Britain, are understood to be pressing the UN to insist that the force be allowed to do business with both communities. Even aside from the threat of Turkish intervention, it is doubtful that the countries involved would permit their troops to be used only to bolster the power of the Makarios government.

Pearson Book Lacks Diefenbaker Drama

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — It's getting harder by the book for Canadians to plead ignorance of their current political leaders.

Until recently, aspiring authors of biographies of our national figures shied away from tackling a living subject. They found it safer and more rewarding to dig in the archives of the dead than to explore the minds and actions of the contemporary molders of our destiny.

The few brave souls who, like Robert Tyne with his Douglas in Saskatchewan, broke the unwritten rule of scholarly research into the past, found that their effort was love's labor lost.

It took the accidentally superb timing of Peter Newman's Renegade in Power to breach the wall of indifference. This week a biography of the present prime minister will hit the bookstores in an attempt to widen that breach.

John Beal's The Pearson Phenomenon lacks the dramatic circumstances which helped the Newman book to become Canada's all-time bestseller.

Lester Pearson, the soul-searching, soft-spoken statesman in power, does not evoke the curiosity and the strong emotions that accompanied the rise and fall of John Diefenbaker.

Nor does Mr. Beal's much more slender volume cover as much ground of our political scene as Newman had to deal with to explain the Diefenbaker phenomenon. But the story told by the seasoned journalist and biographer of the late John Foster Dulles is no less absorbing.

Gathered together and arranged in chronological order, a wealth of new material goes a long way toward explaining "the Pearson phenomenon" which Mr. Beal sees in the fact that "a man handicapped with a sense of fairness... was able to get enough votes to win an election in a democracy."

Step by step, the author shows how Lester Pearson was without a pre-conceived design on his part, pushed and groomed by circumstances for his political role of mediator of Canada's accumulated internal strains.

The Pearson that emerges from these pages is not a political philosopher, not an ivory tower intellectual, but a practical, skillful conciliator guided by pragmatic universalism and an all-pervading sense of fairness.

Sin Is Not Acceptable But Its Revenue Is

By RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — Probably as durable as the amazing write-in for Henry Cabot Lodge was New Hampshire's decision to sell tickets for a sweepstakes lottery through state liquor stores.

This is a method of raising money to operate the New Hampshire government without resorting to a state sales tax or state income tax. Sin, if commonly known, is not acceptable in New Hampshire but the revenue from it is welcome.

If the lottery succeeds in its purpose, as it undoubtedly will, it may be the model for similar lotteries in other states and introduce generally in this country public, legalized gambling on the English scale. Vermont, Massachusetts, Delaware, Rhode Island and other states are exploring the possibilities.

Opponents of the lottery were accused of being modern reincarnations of the blueses of the prohibition era. Puritanical objections were raised against the lottery, but the true objections were on much more practical grounds.

The lottery is supposed to raise about $4,000,000 a year earmarked for the public school system. This seems like a painless, if not harmless, way to pay school costs. But the simple fact seems to be that the cost of operating the school system

Lottery Hurts Painlessly

In New Hampshire is increasing at about the rate of $4,000,000 annually.

New Hampshire's state contribution to the maintenance of local public schools is already at the bottom of the list compared to other states. What bothers the opponents of the lottery is that this method of raising state money merely avoids and postpones a more serious approach to paying the increasing costs of public schooling, and tends to free the state contribution at the present rock-bottom level.

"Rock" was a name well known in New Hampshire long before Rockefeller. This is the local name for Rockingham Park, a race track. The sweepstakes race will be run there. Tickets are sold by number and a drawing will determine the horses to which numbers are assigned.

New Hampshire officials are fully aware they may be inviting the gangster and racketeering elements to find ingenious ways to make a killing out of the sweepstakes. A former FBI agent has been hired at a salary greater than the governor's to run the lottery, as if the magic name of J. Edgar Hoover were being invoked to insure sanctity.

But various dodges already are creeping in to make it easier for out-of-state speculators to carry "receipts" for large blocks of tickets across state lines and sell them at marked up prices to the venturesome. This opens the door for hijacking, receipt-running and other antics reminiscent of the prohibition era.

The truth is that organized gambling, whether legal or illegal, is not very savory. To perform it in the name of education is more than slightly fraudulent for the simple reason that it gives taxpayers the false sense of somehow escaping the skyrocketing costs of educating the young.

It is already indicated in New Hampshire that attempts will be made to get out of the commitment of earmarking all the lottery "take" for education. Five tries in 10 years to pass the lottery bill succeeded only when the proceeds were tied to education.

All this slippery business only reinforces the reasons why state lottery proposals should be examined with great care whenever proposed.

Violent Youth Fined $50 For Breaking Down Door

A youth who broke down an apartment door in an attempt to see a girl friend was fined $50 in Victoria magistrate's court yesterday on a charge of wilful damage.

Robert Renaud, 21, of 4935 Cordova Bay Road pleaded guilty to the charge. He also was ordered to pay the owners of the apartment house $20 compensation for damage to the door.

Const. E. P. Hardy testified Renaud had told police he had had an argument with the girl earlier in the day and wanted to see her. The girl had not been home when Renaud had broken in.

Ian Houston, 18, of 2321 Lee was fined $20 for being a minor in possession of liquor. Const. John Burdny testified he had found Houston in the driver's seat of a car and there had been a case containing five bottles of beer on the car floor.

Magistrate William Ostler told a man in city court yesterday that his behavior toward a police officer had been "im-petinent, insolent and truculent." But the magistrate acquitted the man on a charge of consuming liquor in a public place.

Const. Burdny testified he had found Cecil J. Temple, 817 McClure, sitting in a downtown cafe with a glass in front of him containing liquid which the constable said smelled like rye whisky.

The constable told court the man had refused to say what was in the glass, had refused for some time to give his name and address, had told the constable to "put down" that he lived at the Empress Hotel. He had told the constable that police are stupid and had threatened to sue the constable for false arrest.

Magistrate Ostler said it had not been proved that the liquid in the glass was liquor.

Bennett's Ferry Dream Reality by Next Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett's dream of a car and passenger ferry service linking Vancouver Island with the B.C. coast should be a reality next year.

Specifications now are out for an 18-knot ship with accommodation for more than 400 passengers and 120 cars. She may cost up to $7,000,000.

The new ferry will be a long-haul vessel, differing radically from the present provincial fleet of short-haul vessels. It is based on a successful Baltic Sea design.

It is planned to operate the proposed vessel between Kelsey Bay, northern terminus of the Island Highway, and Prince Rupert, where she will link up with the Alaska State Ferry system. The passage is expected to take about 20 hours.

The specifications call for a ship with streamlined funnel and mast, 325 feet long and a breadth of 56 feet nine inches, and fin stabilizers for the benefit of queasy passengers.

There will be cabin space for 100 passengers on the lower deck, 80 double-berth cabins with baths on the promenade deck, and 16 de luxe cabins on the bridge deck.

There will be a dining salon with accommodation for 200 passengers, and a cafeteria with seating for 150. The forward lounge will have 230 seats.

There will be no cargo accommodation apart from the car deck.

She will have twin screws and a bow propeller, and specifications call for four Mirlees National diesels developing 8,000 shaft horsepower. She will be 3,500 tons gross and will have a crew of 56, with 13 officers.

Bids have already been called for the new ship.

The federal subsidy will account for 35 per cent of the cost, and it is likely that the provincial government will seek a further grant on the grounds that the ferry will be an extension of the Trans-Canada Highway system.

No Women Wanted For Arctic Trip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sorry, ladies, the answer is no.

There is no place for you on board the 17-foot Northern Princess during an attempt this summer to navigate the Northwest Passage.

Since it was disclosed recently that Win McKinnon of Fort St. John, B.C., applied for a job on the yacht, women from all walks of life have been making inquiries.

SENT TO NEWSPAPER

Many have been sent to Al Fotheringham, Vancouver Sun reporter, since he wrote an article on Miss McKinnon's desire to join the yacht's crew.

"I've got . . . enough women deckhands, women cooks and women adventurers to man the Queen Mary," said Fotheringham.

THOUSANDS OF THEM

Northland Navigation Company, owners of the yacht, said Wednesday it has received thousands of inquiries. Many were from single Canadian girls, free of responsibilities and just dying to swap city life for adventure.

$5,000,000 in Bullets Ruined by Cardboard

LONDON (UPI) — A report on the British Army's expenditures disclosed that 92,000,000 rounds of .303 rifle ammunition valued at $5,000,000 were corroded and ruined because too much salt was used in making cardboard boxes in which the bullets were packed.

JAMES ROBERTSON

Years of Firefighting End for Deputy Chief

With a lifetime of firefighting in Victoria behind him, city fire department Deputy Chief James Robertson retires at the end of next month.

Mr. Robertson joined the department in 1925 as an ordinary fireman — and progressed through the department as a driver, lieutenant, captain, assistant chief, until he was made deputy chief a year ago.

EQUIPMENT IMPROVED

At the age of 60 he has seen firefighting progress from the "turn on the nozzle and forget the damage" days to the present era of such equipment as smoke masks, inhalators and high-pressure fog apparatus.

Since the change-over to oil heating and asphalt shingles, says Mr. Robertson, fire risk to houses has been greatly reduced in recent years.

WILLOWS ARENA

"I attended practically every major fire in the city," he recalls. "The most spectacular was the one at the old Willows arena on Cadboro Bay Road in 1929."

The educational program currently being carried out by the department is helping to cut down hazards, he says.

During his 38 years' service, Mr. Robertson saw 10 deaths in the many fires he attended.

Tracking Probe

Moonlet Space Spotlight

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Technicians were preparing a 90-foot rocket for an attempt today to orbit a satellite that will explore new methods of tracking spacecraft by using powerful beams of light called lasers.

By measuring the time it takes the intense light beam to travel to the 120-pound moonlet and bounce back to earth, scientists hope to be able to get a fix on the satellite's position far more accurate than could be obtained by radar or radio tracking.

IONOSPHERE PROBE

In a separate experiment, the satellite will send continuous radio signals to a worldwide network of ground stations to examine the ionosphere — the electrically-charged layer of gases blanketing the earth that reflects radio waves and makes long distance broadcasts possible.

Scientists will be able to determine the size, intensity and irregularities of the ionosphere by studying the effects the ionosphere has on the satellite's radio transmissions.

Indian Next Director In Federal Job?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The director of the federal Indian affairs department told the annual convention of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. here that he foresaw himself being succeeded in his job by a native Indian.

Robert Battle of Ottawa said hundreds of young Indians would enter commerce and industry in the next few years.

Vote Called for April

Saskatchewan Breaks Tradition in Election

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Premier, Woodrow Lloyd Wednesday broke with tradition and called a provincial general election for Wednesday, April 22. Nomination day will be Monday, April 6.

The April date marked the first time since 1908 that an election had been called in the province for a month other than June. The time allowed between calling of the election and the voting date—35 days—is one more than the minimum allowed by law. The maximum is 44 days.

Progressive Conservative party Leader Martin Pederson and Social Credit Leader Martin Kellin said the date and short campaign indicated the CCF government feared it would lose support if it waited longer. Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher welcomed the early date.

All other provincial governments in Canada have been returned to power in elections in the last 18 months. The CCF has governed Saskatchewan for 20 years.

SHORT SESSION

The election writs were issued a day after prorogation of an unusually short six-week regular legislature session. At dissolution standing in the 55-seat house was CCF 34, Liberals 21.

Voters will return 59 members in the election under a redistribution act passed at the 1963 legislative session and proclaimed Wednesday. Regina, formerly a single constituency, returning four members, has been divided into four constituencies — two returning two members each and two returning one member apiece for a total of six.

Saskatchewan, a single constituency, will return five members instead of the three it had in the last legislature.

Chief Electoral Officer Dave Vansickle said all constituencies would vote the same day. In the last two elections voting in the northern constituency of Athabasca was deferred.

Saskatchewan's last election was June 8, 1960, when T. C. Douglas, now national New Democratic Party Leader, led his CCF party to a renewed five-year mandate. Mr. Lloyd became premier in November, 1961, when Mr. Douglas left to take over the NDP helm.

Since the 1960 election the Liberal opposition has gained seats from the CCF in by-elections in Weyburn (Mr. Douglas's former seat), Turtleford and Prince Albert.

City Joins In U.S. Space Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is one of 31 countries which will take part in a new comprehensive international study of the ionosphere, the mysterious radio mirror 60 to 30 miles above the surface of the earth.

The study will involve the collection and study of signals from an American ionosphere beacon satellite which is scheduled to be placed in orbit by a Delta rocket at Cape Kennedy, Fla., today.

The international undertaking, unprecedented for a single United States space project, could lead to improved long distance communications on earth. Such communications can be bounced off the ionosphere.

During the experiment, a network of 80 stations around the world, including three in Canada, will receive signals directly from the satellite. The Canadian stations are located at Baker Lake, in the Northwest Territories north of Churchill, Man.; Prince Albert, Sask., and Victoria.

Senators Get Challenge To Vote on Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A southern senator's statement Wednesday that backers of the U.S. civil rights bill can't get the votes to pass it brought a prompt challenge to the opposition bloc to permit a vote.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem., Minn.), floor manager of the bill, replied there was one way to find out what that was to vote on the bill. The Senate so far has not even reached a vote to consider the measure.

Hydro Strike Idles 500

WINNIPEG (CP) — Virtually the entire 500-man labor force was idle Wednesday in the second day of a strike at the site of a $140,000,000 hydro development at Grand Rapids, Man.

Four union locals with 138 men at the site, 235 miles north of Winnipeg, are striking Grand Rapids contractors for higher pay. Other workmen were respecting pickets.

The unions involved are the laborers, carpenters, teamsters and operating engineers. Not involved in the dispute are painters, boilermakers, plumbers, electricians and ironworkers.

Ken Fallick, superintendent of the Manitoba Hydro project, said union men had reported in essential jobs such as tending boilers and pumps and grading to keep an airstrip open.

Wages are the only item of dispute. Most trades want an across-the-board hourly increase of 50 cents.

Activity Night Features Play

Students will take part in the annual Activity Night, starting at 7:30 p.m. Friday, in the school auditorium by the Wilfords school PTA.

Feature will be the school's drama club's presentation of The King's Creampuffs, which was presented last week in the school drama festival.

Strike Thwarts Mohawk Chief

Chief Bow and Arrow chose a bad time to come to Victoria. A town with a strike on at its shipyards is no place for a steelworker to find a job, and the chief realizes it.

Chief Bow and Arrow says he is from Brantford, Ont., and is a member of the Mohawk tribe of the Six Nations Indians who are famous for steel work. Members of the tribe for years have moved around to wherever there was high steel had to be erected for tall buildings.

Some have made their homes in Brooklyn and New York where they have found a good deal of work.

It was men of the Mohawk tribe who erected steel for the Empire State Building years ago.

Some work on construction projects and return at the end of the job.

Others, when possible, work during the week and return to Ontario for the weekends.

Chief Bow and Arrow's father was a steelworker for a number of years before he turned to farming and guiding for a living.

The chief lost his parents when he was eight years old and he left the reservation. He became a steelworker himself and moved to wherever the work was.

He says that until recently he lived at Brantford, Ont. Now he has moved to Victoria where he hopes to make his home.

But a steelworker who hopes to make his home in Victoria at a time when other steelworkers are on strike must be pretty optimistic.

Metal Nuclear-Heated, Power 'Boiled' Out

PORTLAND (AP) — The Columbia Basin Inter-Agency Committee, an organization of public officials and public and private power firms, was told Wednesday of efforts to convert atomic energy into electric power. Robert Plott, San Diego, manager of General Dynamics Corporation's project, said laboratory devices have been developed which, in effect, boil electricity out of metals heated by a nuclear reaction. He said the devices are very expensive but they offer excellent prospects for use in space. Gus Norwood, executive secretary of the Northwest Public Power Association, told the luncheon meeting that in the next 10 years "we must provide as much additional electric power as we developed in the previous 80 years."

Names in the News

Parents Acquitted In Eight Minutes

KAMLOOPS — An assize court jury deliberated only eight minutes before acquitting Robert Bennett and Sherie Greenwood of a charge of abandoning their four children and exposing them to danger.

Three of the children died when fire Jan. 18 destroyed their home at Blue River, 120 miles north of here. Mr. Justice T. W. Brown told the jury the couple, visiting a home two minutes away, was only "momentarily inattentive."

WICHITA, Kan. — Robert Davis celebrated his 107th birthday by trying to thread a needle to demonstrate his "pretty good" eyes. He failed. Davis has outlived his wife and three children.

VANCOUVER — Leukemia victim Bradley McDonald, whose stepfather went to jail for stealing money to provide him with toys and treats, died in hospital. He was five years old.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A University of Dallas student group has begun a campaign to make actor John Wayne the 1964 Republican presidential candidate, using the slogan "We need a president who can act."

FORT DIX, N.J. — Capt. Eugene Goldman, 30, an army doctor and father of two, accused by three women patients of rape and indecent assault, was declared not guilty on all counts by a court-martial board.

LONDON — Harold Bowman, fired from his $11,500 job as sales manager at the age of 61, wrote to 3,000 firms, but they all rejected him. Then a court ordered his old firm to pay $71,400 severance pay and Bowman set up his own export advice company.

BONN — West Germany disclosed it expelled Soviet embassy first secretary I. A. Morozov in January for taking from the foreign ministry the passport of a Soviet scientist who had fled to the West. Bonn said Russia's expulsion of Heinz Naupert, West German economic expert in Moscow, was in retaliation.

NEW ORLEANS — Mrs. Joan Merriam Smith landed safely under emergency conditions at New Orleans airport after she radioed "something" had ripped loose from her plane. She is trying to be the first woman to make a solo flight around the world.

BOGOTA — William Angel Arranguera, alias The Avenger, one of the last of Colombia's big bandit leaders, was killed in a gun battle with a combat patrol.

OAK CREEK, Wis. — The Chamber of Commerce named Mrs. Lester Scherbarth suburban homemaker of the year and also man of the year, explaining: "We just felt she had done the most for Oak Creek lately."

UNITED NATIONS — President Johnson has commended 13 officers and NOOs of the UN Congo force, including three Canadians, for evacuating rebel-threatened foreigners in Kwilu province. The Canadians are Brig. J. A. Dextraze, Lt.-Col. Paul Mayer and Sgt. L. Lessard.

Tempers Flare As NDP Votes For Power Bill

By JACK FRY

Tempers flared and a shouting match erupted in the legislature yesterday when the NDP grudgingly agreed to bail the government out of its power policy difficulties.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner retorted that "maintenance of public power in this province has been in spite of the combined opposition in this House."

CHALLENGES NDP

He challenged the NDP to vote against second reading of a power bill which legalizes all business done by the B.C. Hydro since Aug. 1, 1961.

He also charged the Liberals with being "the real enemies of public power in this province."

Bill 87 was given second reading by a vote of 44 to 4—opposed only by the four Liberals who were in the House when division was called.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan told the House this bill was brought in to validate a B.C. Electric Company takeover settlement made by the Soreled government "three days before the Sept. 30, 1963 provincial election."

The settlement was "an unauthorized act of this government" taken prior to the election "for political purposes," charged Mr. Strachan.

The legislation is "an admission the government went far beyond its authority last September," and the only reason his party is willing to support the bill is "we simply can't leave the publicly-owned B.C. Hydro in jeopardy any longer," stormed the NDP leader.

CARRIED IT ALONE

Mr. Bonner jumped to his feet to claim that the government has carried the fight of the B.C. Hydro without the help of the other two parties since 1961.

Mr. Strachan, his face flushed with anger, muttered some comment to the attorney-general. "Will my friend be quiet," continued Mr. Bonner. "You made a poor speech when you were on your feet and you're out of order now."

He challenged the NDP leader to "take your whip off your members" and let them vote the way they wished "because we don't want your support."

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Oak Bay MLA Alan Macfarlane delivered a scathing attack against the government's special privileges to wealthy BCE shareholders able to afford a costly legal battle over the exchange of shares.

A widow of a First World War veteran, Mrs. Ada Payne, whose $1,000 worth of preferred shares in the BCE were replaced by 25-year perpetual bonds, wrote Premier Bennett a letter on Sept. 24, 1961, asking for either her shares back or cash for them. The Liberal MLA told the House.

WOMAN LOST

The woman's request was denied and she lost $150, along with a 20 per cent tax credit for income tax purposes, he said. "She was denied by this government the right to have her money back."

However, Elgin W. Vanstone, one of the largest shareholders in the BCE, hired a good lawyer who found an obscure loophole in the law and obtained a B.C. Supreme Court judgment plus interest, which amounted to $311,623.55—and the money has been paid.

"The government talks of special privileges to none. Here is a man granted special privilege and the government plans to take away the rights of others in law, in justice and in morality," said Mr. Macfarlane. "Whom justice is available in British Columbia," he said.

thropist from St. Catharines, Ont., died at 68. A part-owner of the Chicago Tribune, he had just returned from his honeymoon with the widow of a Tribune publisher.

BELGRADE — Yugoslav President Tito, 71, went to his Adriatic island retreat of Brioni for rest and medical care on his doctor's advice.

ELIZABETHVILLE — Jason Sendwe, leader of the Baluba tribe, has been forced out as president of The Congo's North Katanga province by political opponents who accused him of being a dictator.

BUFFALO — A heart attack killed John Montana, 70, who said he was at the 1957 Apalachin gangland meeting only because his car broke down.

CHICAGO — The 10 better-dressed men of 1964 in the U.S. chosen by the Custom Tailors' Guild, include Nelson Rockefeller and Raymond Burr.

VIENTIANE — The right-wing intelligence chief of Laos, Major Praseuth, died 12 hours after being shot by an assassin who escaped. Praseuth was sitting in his home when he was shot in the head by a pistol fired from the street.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Rev. Austin Davis, former superintendent for poor relief recipients, filed for welfare payments himself. He is the father of nine children.

LONDON — Baron Thomson of Fleet, publisher Roy Thomson, took his House of Lords seat. His sponsors were the Earl of Longford, Labor, and Lord Balfour of Inchrye, Conservative.

Canadiens and Leafs Satisfied After Playing to 2-2 Sawoff

Montreal Canadiens, who were a bit fortunate to get out of it as well as they did, and Toronto Maple Leafs both won last night in playing to a 2-2 National Hockey League stalemate.

The point each club got in the wide-open and sometimes fogged game could have won first place for Canadiens and third place for the Leafs, making them semi-final opponents in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

As a matter of fact, the tie was just about as good for both clubs as a victory would have been.

It left Canadiens but one point behind the Chicago Black Hawks and in a position to win the league title by beating Boston and New York in their remaining two games, something they probably would have had to do even had they won.

	W	L	T	P	PTS
Chicago	22	12	2	1	46
Montreal	21	13	3	1	45
Toronto	21	13	3	1	45
Detroit	20	14	3	1	43
New York	19	15	3	1	41
Boston	18	16	3	1	39

Last night's scores: Toronto 2-2 Montreal.

Remaining games: Toronto-New York at Detroit, Saturday; Boston at Montreal, Detroit at Toronto, Sunday; Montreal at New York, Toronto at Detroit, Chicago at Boston.

As for the Leafs, they are now five points ahead of Detroit Red Wings, who have to win their three remaining games, two against the Leafs, to make it.

Canadiens almost completely dominated the first period, grabbing a 2-0 lead on goals by Bill Hicke and Claude Provost, then had to hang on to salvage the point as the Leafs came back to dominate the second period and enjoy a smaller margin in the final 20 minutes.

Don McKenney, on a power play, and George Armstrong got the Toronto goals in the second period, Canadiens lapsing on defence both times.

On other occasions, Frank Mahovlich missed a gaping net from 15 feet and Bob Pulford and Dave Keon both connected with the piping on shots that had Charlie Hodge beaten.

Canadiens, who were often disorganized, appeared to get the worst of what seemed to be loose officiating and coach Toe Blake was still speechless for minutes after the game as his players discussed game calls.

The four goals scored damaged the chances of Hodge and Leafs' John Bower for the Vezina Trophy. Bower is almost certainly out of the running while Hodge, with one extra game to play, is one goal ahead of Chicago's Glenn Hall and needs a shutout Saturday against Boston to keep his margin for Sunday night's finale.

BEHIND THE GLASS

By Jim Tang

HE'S GOT SOMETHING: W. G. Anderson, a veteran curler who says he has been interested in comments appearing here on Vancouver's Totem bonspiel, writes in with an interesting thought for the bonspiel committee and Pacific Coast Curling Association officials. He suggests that most interest be shown in the "rank-and-file" curlers.

"In 1958," he writes, "three curlers (used loosely) and myself travelled from Mayo in the Yukon at a cost of $1,000 for the rink to take part in the Totem bonspiel.

"We had never curled as a unit before and had not thrown a rock for at least six months so we naturally had no great ambitions on capturing any of the spoils. We did, however, hope to see a little hospitality. But this was entirely lacking except on the part of some visiting rinks. We were never once greeted by a member of the Totem executive.

"As my curling days are over I am not beefing for myself but I do think if the Totem committee would get some understanding person to organize the event and pay some attention to the sportsmen who pay the shot I think they would be on the way to a huge comeback."

Mr. Anderson makes a fair comment on what has been a practice at the Totem bonspiel, as well as something that is too often overlooked at many another bonspiel.

It is only natural that bonspiel news has to concern itself with the winners and those who have proven by past performance that they are likely winners. However, the average, or rank-and-file curler, who makes up probably 80 per cent or more of the entry in any bonspiel, is the fellow responsible not only for bonspiel success, but also for the very success of curling.

He is, as Mr. Anderson says, the fellow who pays the shot—and he shouldn't ever become the forgotten man. Carpiels and the tournaments of champions, now becoming so prevalent, have their place in the game. They are the "big" events for big name curlers but in other events more thought has to be given to those who haven't reached championship class and to those who never will. The "average" rock-thrower won't win often, and he really doesn't expect to, but he'll always be there if he is shown some of the hospitality and consideration curling claims it has.

IN FLORIDA, YET: If you have $875, three weeks to spare and don't want to call the curling season over at the end of the month we have just the trip for you and the missus, who would probably love the trip to Florida even if she doesn't curl.

Florida Golf and Curling Association has announced plans for its first annual Fort Lauderdale bonspiel. It is open to the first 250 couples who book for the 12-day holiday trip, which will start on April 6 and end on April 18.

Jet "champagne" flights will leave Montreal, Toronto, New York, Detroit, Chicago and, for some reason not readily discernible, Madison, Wis., on April 6 and the return trip will be made on April 18.

In between, starting with the "official gala airport welcome," at which daiquiris will be served by "Polynesian beauties" direct from the Mai-Kai of Fort Lauderdale, there will be three cocktail party and banquet extravaganzas and the five-event bonspiel, supervised by Don Campbell, at Winterhurst Ice Arena, and all manner of other things to do.

Included in the latter category are dog and horse races, jai alai, golf, scenic cruises, fishing trips or just reclining on the beaches watching the parade of bikinis.

If this proves anything it's that the people of Fort Lauderdale must believe curling is really fascinating to use it as the "pull" to an area offering what the brochure says it does.

TRADITION STANDS: For unaccountable reasons, curling in Canada has been bound to the Royal Caledonian Curling Club of Scotland. While the game practically died in Scotland, and was no great shucks elsewhere, it grew to become close to the national sport of Canada. But through it all, the so-called "mother" club continued to be recognized as the ruling authority.

Dick Topping of Oliver, B.C., now immediate past-president of the Dominion Curling Association, dared wonder about it at the 1964 annual meeting of the DCA.

He had the temerity to suggest that the DCA break away from the "mother" club because "It's time we stood on our two feet" while Scotland is "sitting on tradition."

"Promotion of the game in Scotland," Topping told DCA delegates, "seems to be sadly lacking. Facilities for curling leave much to be desired, there appears to be no interest or any chance for the young people to get into the game. Which brings me to the question I have asked myself many times—why when in Canada we have the largest, most progressive and active curling organization in the world should we have to submit to the Royal club our ideas and proposed rules changes for sanction?"

"I submit the time is now here when we should inform the Royal club that we will no longer do this. I feel we could possibly maintain a token affiliation as a matter of tradition and respect and keep them informed of any changes we make or actions we take, but that is all."

This, and more, was in Topping's president's report to the DCA which had been approved by delegates but when a motion was made to delete the traitorous paragraphs, Topping didn't stand on his rights, being content with having "made my point."

The traditionalists who rule the DCA prevailed. The vote was 26-5, and Scotland, with fewer sheets of curling ice than any of a half-dozen or more Canadian cities, keeps her traditional control.

Chuvalo in Breeze

REGINA (CP)—George Chuvalo of Toronto regained the Canadian heavyweight boxing championship for the third time Wednesday night, knocking out Hugh Mercier of Regina at 1:38 of the first round.

Chuvalo, ninth ranked in world listings, decked his inexperienced opponent three times in the first round to gain an automatic knockout. Mercier landed only one convincing blow, a wild left early in the round.

Chuvalo, 216, stalked his man from the opening bell. He crashed across a series of lefts and rights and hurt Mercier, particularly in close.

TORONTO—Ernie Boushy's Winnipeg rink kept Manitoba in the lead in the first annual Canadian mixed curling championship Wednesday with squeaker victories over Prince Edward Island and Northern Ontario.

Boushy had to go an extra end to defeat Wilf Biron and his Sudbury rink. Manitoba tied the score on the 10th and then managed to get some rocks out front for Boushy to use to hide his winning stone.

Dean Miller's Saskatchewan rink, upset by Newfoundland Tuesday, stayed close with easy victories, 9-4 over New Brunswick and 15-4 over Ontario.

"In third place, and the only other rink with less than two defeats, was British Columbia. Gil LeMoel and his Trail combination trimmed Newfoundland, back to earth again, 11-3, and followed up with a 10-9 thriller over New Brunswick, scoring three on the last end.

Saints Win Western Crown

VANCOUVER (CP)—With the score tied, 47-47, with 10 minutes left in the game, CYO Saints of Vancouver broke away to defeat IPAC Junior Buffalos of Winnipeg, 80-63, and win the Western Canada Junior Basketball Championship Wednesday night.

CYO won the championship for the second straight year, defeating IPAC in three straight games in the best-of-five series. CYO won Monday night's opener, 69-60, and Tuesday's second game, 85-72.

"We gave it all we had, but with two starters off the floor we had no more stuff in the last minutes," Winnipeg manager Harvey Lipkin commented.

"We lacked one Neil Williscroft to cope with his tremendous shooting and rebounding."

Williscroft topped Vancouver scoring all three games. He netted 32 points in the first game and 36 in the second.

Vancouver will meet Hamilton here for the Canadian championship best-of-five series starting March 30.

Will Wrestlers Mop Up Boxing's Gravy?

By STEVE ANDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cassius Clay... Sonny Liston... Floyd Patterson...

Was boxing ever in worse shape at the top?

That trio—in or out of the ring or both—puts the bea-pers as the most forgettable in history up to that point.

At Madison Square Garden the other night, the grunt and groaners pulled 18,717 and jammed the streets outside the old joint with another 5,000 who couldn't get in.

The scripts are familiar and the cast of characters includes the usual assortment of heroes and villains plus 325-pound tackle Ernie Ladd of the San Diego Chargers pro footballers.

Ernie isn't sure what category he's in and doesn't care as long as the loot comes in.

"Anyway, it's a great way to stay in shape for football," he says.

match despite the frequent appearance of several boxers from Latin America.

The revolution possibly will spread, though, unless the prize-fight industry can restore some sort of order in what has become a shameful situation.

Clay, earlier regarded as a potential life-saver for the waning game, scarcely fits the role of dignity maintained by earlier heavyweight champions of the world.

Patterson, twice flattened by Liston in less than a round, didn't help matters any with his offer to fight Clay for free in a religious crusade against the new titleholder who revealed he has joined the Black Muslims.

And Liston, defrocked while sitting on a stool in his corner of the ring, wasted little time making headlines in another brush with the law.

Right about now would be a good time for all hands to clam up and let time heal a few wounds in the public esteem.

Boxing still holds a tremendous appeal for an important audience willing to shell out for a good show.

Clay and Liston, on many occasions, have proved they can deliver what the customers want—when they confine their delivery to punches inside the ropes.

Patterson isn't a crowd pleaser but the only major item proved against his ring ability is that he can't fight Liston—and that's for sure.

Where the heavyweight division is heading now is anyone's guess. It had better be up.

The rasslers, who have taken plenty of falls in their day, may be lurking in the wings to mop up the gravy.

Wouldn't that be somethin'?

Riders, James To Talk Contract

REGINA (CP) — Coach Bob Shaw of the Saskatchewan Roughriders confirmed Wednesday he has agreed to sit down and talk contract with Gerry James, one-time boy wonder of Canadian football.

Shaw said "if Gerry is physically sound—which I think he is—I'm quite sure he can help us. He's a winner, the type of boy we want. If we can agree to terms, he'll be in our camp."

The acquisition of James could solve a pressing problem facing the Western Football Conference Roughriders in their kicking department. Guard Reggie Whitehouse, plagued by an injured knee, made only 54 per cent of his field goal attempts and only 16 of 28 convert attempts last season.

FREE AGENT

James, who returned to his Winnipeg home a few days ago after spending the winter as a hockey coach in Davos, Switzerland, now is a free agent.

He said in Winnipeg, "I'll probably travel to Regina sometime within the next week or so and talk to Shaw to see if some kind of arrangement can be made."

James earned the Boy Wonder tag when he cracked the lineup of Winnipeg Blue Bombers at the age of 17. His father also was a star western football player.

James became the leading all-time Bomber scorer with the help of his place-kicking ability, but was given his release at the start of last season after a bitter contract dispute.

Terrible Trio Strikes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco's Terrible Trio—Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey—continued their torrid hitting pace Wednesday as the Giants extended their mastery over the Cleveland Indians 15-13 in a 40-hit exhibition game.

The Giants amassed all of their runs in the first three innings en route to their ninth victory in 10 games and fourth straight against the Indians.

The three San Francisco sluggers belted three hits each, with Cepeda and McCovey knocking in four runs apiece. Mays raised his spring average to .483, McCovey to .455 and Cepeda to .367. Rookie Jesus Alou chipped in with two triples, boosting his mark to .333.

OVERSHADOWED INDIANS

The outburst overshadowed three Indian homers by Fred Whitfield, Mike de la Hoz and Wally Post.

The New York Yankees also went on a hitting binge in whipping Kansas City 9-4. Joe Pepitone cracked a grand slam home run while Bobby Richardson raised his average to .615 with three hits. Tom Tresh also had three safeties.

Four B.C. Men on Board

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

Four Vancouver men have been named directors of the proposed new Laurentide Bank, along with two from Montreal. They will serve along with P. F. Saunders, president, and Andrew Saxton, vice-president. Best known of the four Vancouverites is Howard T. Mitchell, this year's president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce and president of Mitchell Press.

Another is W. C. Mainwaring, formerly an executive of B.C. Electric and of Peace River Development. He was at one time a resident of Victoria. Edgar Saba, owner of a chain of dress and fabric shops, and a lawyer, Paul B. Paine, partner in the firm of Paine, Edmonds, Mercer & Williams, complete the four.

The directors nominated from Montreal are Bernard Bourgeois and Lionel Leroux. Mr. Saunders says the petition may go before the senate next week. The petition will be sponsored by Senator Donald Cameron of Banff, Alta.

T.D. DIRECTORS VEBIT

Twenty-five directors of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, including president A. T. Lam-bert, and S. T. Paton, general manager, will be in Victoria May 5 for the official opening of the bank's new main office on Douglas Street.

The office will be situated on the main floor of the new Bentall Building, and will be managed by Bob Gunning, who until recently was manager of the former main branch at Yates and Broad.

The bank directors' visit to Victoria is part of a three-day tour of British Columbia that will include a visit to the Peace River hydro development project at Hudson Hope.

OFFER FOR BURNS

An offer from an anonymous Canadian firm has been made to Burns & Co., Calgary meat packing firm, to purchase 300,000 shares (40 per cent of the total outstanding) for $11.25.

Shares will be accepted on a first-come first-served basis. Toward J. Kelly, president of Burns & Co., said the takeover offer was a "complete surprise" to him. Burns is Canada's second largest packing firm, ranging next to Canada Packers.

BUSIER FEBRUARY

Debits to individual bank accounts in the Victoria area during February are reported at $219,300,000 by the Canadian Bankers Association. This compared with $248,700,000 in January, but is higher than the $206,100,000 in February, 1963.

BONDS OFFERED

Province of Ontario made the first post-budget test of the Canadian bond market Wednesday with a $50,000,000 open end offering of two maturities.

On sale are 5 per cent debentures, dated April 15, 1973, at 98% to yield 5.20 per cent and 5% per cent debentures, dated April 15, 1984, at 97% to yield 5.45 per cent.

PROXIES SOUGHT

Shareholders are receiving a personal letter from directors of Central Del Rio soliciting proxies for the forthcoming annual general meeting.

Central Del Rio has been involved in merger rumors for some time, the last being one with Scurry Rainbow, which broke down on an unfavorable tax ruling from the federal tax department.

Shares of Central Del Rio were traded actively up to 8.05—a gain of about 35 cents on the day.

CASSIAR PROFIT

Cassiar Asbestos net profit for 1963 was increased to $2,589,808 (63 cents a share) from $2,449,205 (62 cents) in 1962.

DOFASCO SPLITS

A four-for-one split in the shares of Dominion Foundries and Steel has been proposed by the directors of the company.

CHALLENGE AHEAD

Consolidated net sales of Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada in 1963 were down five per cent at $335,000,000. Net profit was $12,014,000 ($1.20 a common share) against $13,361,000 ($1.33) in the previous year.

Chairman F. C. Wood says the future is challenging, but the company is determined to maintain its long record of growth and earnings.

GAS SHARES TRADED

Canadian Industrial Gas Ltd. has purchased 19 per cent interest in Mid-Western Industrial Gas, through the acquisition of 600,000 treasury shares at $3 each net to Mid-Western.

IRON WORKS RECOVERY

Toronto Iron Works in 1963 made a net profit of $158,529 ($1.18 a share) in comparison with a net loss of $175,348 in 1962.

Soviet Forces Train Cubans

WASHINGTON—Soviet forces in Cuba have for some months been training Cubans in the operation of advanced anti-aircraft missiles which Russia installed on the island in 1962, reliable sources said here.

Emergency Look

Uniforms for civil defence auxiliary police who will serve alongside RCMP in unorganized territories in event of emergency were taken into stock at RCMP store room in Victoria this week. The trim uniforms are patterned after service dress of RCMP. Stores Cpl. D. E. Williams shows one of uniforms, 200 of which are to be distributed throughout B.C.—(Bud Kinsman)

Suing Government Remains Resolution

The legislature yesterday again approved a resolution which would allow people to sue the government without first obtaining a fiat from the Crown.

The motion was made by Gordon Dowding (NDP, Burnaby) who told the House this is "a long overdue reform."

He suggested the government should study Great Britain's Crown Proceedings Bill which was passed in 1947, and said he hopes a similar bill will be introduced in the legislature next year.

Oak Bay Liberal MLA Alan Macfarlane told the House the government "accepted this resolution a year ago" but that nothing had been done about it since that time.

Tony Gargrave (NDP, MacKenzie) commented that "the fact we endorsed the resolution doesn't mean to say the government will act."

"I know the Queen can do no wrong, but sometimes she

Cowichan Copper

Mine Reopening Due by May

Cowichan Copper Company's mine—out of action since December when the Jordan River broke through a slope and washed out the workings—may be back in action within six weeks, manager J. R. Billingsley announced yesterday.

The reopening will follow new financial arrangements, subject to court approval, made in Vancouver Tuesday.

RE-EMPLOY 130

The 14-year-old Sunro mine is expected to re-employ 120 of its original 140 workers. Work is currently being carried out to seal off part of the break-through and clear out the tunnel.

Creditors of the company, who met mine officials Tuesday, have agreed to defer payment of claims totalling $2,198,228.

$1,000,000 LOAN

This will enable the company to obtain a $1,000,000 loan, which will then be tied to a purchasing contract. New backers are unknown, but Cowichan president O. G. MacDonald indicated that in future concentrates will be shipped to the U.S. for refining. In the past they have been made direct to Japan from the company wharf at Hatch Point.

SHELBURNE, Ont.—T. F. E. Claridge, editor of the weekly Shelburne Free Press and Economist, died at 87. Survivors included grandson Thomas Claridge, Canadian Press Victoria editor.

Doris Was First Turntable Girl

By KEN JOHNSON

From the turntable to the dinner table—that's the story of dark-haired, attractive Mrs. Doris Thompson.

The Colonist story Sunday about 20-year-old Jeannie Belcher, reportedly Victoria's first and youngest girl disc jockey, raised a mild cry of indignation from Mrs. Thompson's home at 1691 Stanhope Place.

FIRST DEE-JAY

For 15 years ago, Mrs. Thompson—then Doris Dillabough—was billed as Victoria's first girl dee-jay.

"I'm not trying to steal Jeannie's thunder or anything," said Mrs. Thompson yesterday. "But when I saw that she had become a disc jockey, it reminded me of when I was spinning records for CJVI."

BEGAN IN REGINA

Mrs. Thompson's broadcasting career began in Regina, after she got a best actress cup in high school dramatics. She worked—writing and broadcasting—for a local radio station.

In 1949 she came to Victoria and did a similar job with CJVI.

Few Women

"There were not very many women working in radio in those days," she recalls. "I had a women's afternoon show with local affairs, recipes and household hints. Then I had a one-hour record show at 11 p.m. every night."

"The idea of a woman doing a disc-jockey job then was a gimmick in itself—even though the word gimmick had hardly been thought of."

ENJOYED WORK

"I really enjoyed radio work, and I hope Jeannie enjoys her programs just as much."

Now, Mrs. Thompson confines her radio activities to just listening, and her tabling is restricted to tabling food for her husband, Bob, public information officer with the provincial government, and their three children, Monte, 11, Ricki, nine, and Leanne, three.

Controversial UBC Film

Bitter Ash 'Bloody Awful'

By JUDITH BAINES

The only trouble with The Bitter Ash is that there wasn't enough ash on the cutting room floor.

Watch Lost By Pensioner

A pocket watch, which a city pensioner has cherished since his wife gave it to him 50 years ago, has been lost and its owner is anxiously hoping that it will be returned.

Percy Wells, a 78-year-old pensioner and widower, lost the pocket watch and chain in Easton's washroom.

The watch is a Civitas and it was treasured by Mr. Wells not only for its sentimental value, but because it still keeps excellent time after half a century.

Mr. Wells' son can be reached at 382-8667.

Traffic Fines

VICTORIA

Bruce Wright, 2715 Quadra, failing to obey police officer's signal, $20; red light, $20. Douglas Rowbottom, 249 Regina, unnecessary use of horn, $5.

Kirsten Astonishing

Full House Applauds Talented Met Soprano

There was a full house at the Royal Theatre last night for the recital by Metropolitan Opera soprano Dorothy Kirsten.

Miss Kirsten has many qualities to be envied by all sopranos and possessed by comparatively few. Outstanding among these are her astonishing vocal flexibility and command of dramatic presentation.

GOLDEN MOMENTS

This latter showed to best advantage when she was presenting her Golden Moments from opera. Thus, she sang Un Bel Di as Cio-Cio-San and Vissi d'arte as the fiery Tosca; beautiful characterizations which went far to dispel the usual worries about removing these arias from their proper context.

Exceptionally popular in the first half of Miss Kirsten's program was Howard Brockway's Kentucky Mountain Song. This phenomenon of a simple melody sung in English appealing to a far greater extent than complicated items in other tongues is by no means isolated.

EASILY EXPLAINED

In fact, it happens very often, and is easily explicable.

Marcel Frank was Miss Kirsten's talented and sensitive accompanist.

Incidentally, he is also a soloist and composer in his own undisputed right. These things he proved conclusively with his two piano selections, one of which was his own Poem Brazil. Mr. Frank received a well-deserved encore.

The next Famous Artists concert comes March 30, when pianist Gina Bachauer, famous for her interpretation of Beethoven, will appear.—H.B.B.

Sacred Music Program Sung by Visiting Choir

Close to 200 people attended at Christ Church Cathedral last night for a recital by the Warner Pacific College choir, conducted by Lauren Sykes.

The choir, which has earned the highest praise from critics in many centres, provided a fine program of sacred music, including a Bach motet, All Breathing Life, Sing and Praise Ye the Lord.

Other items were by Tchaikovsky, Palestrina and Grieg in addition to Wondrous Love and the 50th Psalm, arranged by Paul Christiansen.

Choir Here Good Friday

The 45-voice California Lutheran College Choir, directed by Dr. C. Robert Zimmerman, will present a program of music centuries-old and contemporary in the college ensemble's two Good Friday concerts in Victoria. They will appear at 3 p.m. at Metropolitan United Church and 8 p.m. at Grace Lutheran Church in part of a 16-day, 19-city West Coast tour.

Opposition Wants To See Tom Jones

EDMONTON (CP)—The movie Tom Jones became the centre of debate in the Alberta legislature Wednesday.

William Dickie (L, Calgary Glenmore) asked if opposition members would be allowed to view an uncut version in order to help them debate a proposed resolution dealing with censorship.

Most government members saw the uncut version at a special showing the evening the session opened. P. J. Fleming, chairman of the Alberta board of film censors, has prohibited public showing of the film without certain cuts.

PREPARING RESOLUTION

Mr. Dickie said the opposition was preparing a resolution dealing with the Amusement Act which covers censorship in Alberta.

He said opposition members would be at a disadvantage in debate on the resolution unless they could first see the uncut version.

"Could arrangements be made for the opposition to view the movie, along with their friends?" because the movie might be mentioned in debate, he asked.

CAN'T DISCUSS IT

"We can't discuss it unless we see it," he told Provincial Secretary Ambrose Holowach, whose department is responsible for the censorship board.

Mr. Holowach replied that censorship regulations exist "to avoid pornography, obscenity, foul language and uncouth dialogue which can only offend acceptable standards."

DAY OF OPENING

He said it had been custom for 16 years for a film to be shown to members on the day the session opened. He said it could be any film available, not necessarily one likely to be questioned.

"I'm sorry the honorable member (Mr. Dickie) hadn't seen it," said Mr. Holowach. "I didn't see it and I'm not a bit sorry," interjected Highways Minister Taylor.

Mr. Dickie was asked to put his question in written form or as a resolution because it could not be debated during the question period.

The two-storey, brick building called Columbia Rooms at Broad and Pandora has been bought by the owners of the adjacent Douglas Hotel, who have no long-range plans for it "at the moment other than to improve the appearance of the building to complement the new Centennial Square across the street," solicitor J. ## NDP Warning:

Forest Monopoly Likely

If the present trend toward monopoly in the B.C. forest industry continues the province will be confronted with "a monopoly bigger than the government itself," the legislature was told Tuesday night.

Anthony Gargrave (NDP, Mackenzie) said large timber operators in B.C. already hold "terribly powerful economic weapons."

The time may come, he said, "when the government will be unable to deal with the giant future mergers may create."

CONTRACTORS FEARFUL

Mr. Gargrave said the large firms have "affronted" the legislature's select committee on forestry by not making submissions to it.

The NDP member, said the committee's effectiveness has also been hampered by the fact sub-contractors logging for pulp mills have failed to come before the committee for fear they will lose their contracts.

Mr. Gargrave, one of four opposition M.L.A.s on the committee, said trade unions, universities and non-quota-holding timber operators were also conspicuous by their absence at committee hearings this session.

NO PROPER HEARING

"Frankly, the committee has not received a proper hearing of all views within its terms of reference."

He said the government should study decentralization of the B.C. forest service's activities. One idea might be to allow municipalities to manage forests in their vicinity to gain full benefits from their recreational potential.

PARTIAL PROCESSING

B.C. might also study the trend in the United States toward development of small pulp mills for partial processing of the product.

The point had been reached where "if the political objectives of the two or three largest forest companies coincided with the political objectives of this government... we would be coming very close to having a corporate state."

VOTE FINALLY PASSED

Mr. Gargrave spoke during a marathon discussion of the salary vote of Forests Minister Williston. The minister's vote was finally passed at 11:40 p.m. and the full $19,538,996 departmental estimates for 1964-65 went through in 18 minutes.

Don Robinson (SC, Lillooet) said there is no need for a new royal commission on forestry.

The house forestry committee had accomplished a lot more in the last two years for the industry than any royal commission ever had "and for a heck of a lot less money."

SIT YEAR-ROUND

He said that if the committee were allowed to sit year-round "we could soon solve 90 per cent of the problems."

Mr. Robinson said that if B.C.'s forest resources were fully developed the province could support 40 pulp mills. Surveys indicated the world newspaper shortage was such that there would be ample demand for the mills' production.

Thieves Raid Motel

Thieves took $276 cash and important personal documents from a Gorge Road motel suite early Wednesday.

Saanich police said a young man, the son of the male occupant of the suite, reported awakening around 2:45 a.m. to see two men standing in a doorway. He spoke to them and they fled.

The two men were described as both stocky. One was reported to have been wearing a sports jacket and light-colored pants.

It was discovered that $76 in cash and the documents had been taken from a jacket hanging inside the front door and $200 was reported missing from a purse in the bedroom.

Black Death Oozing Toward Island Shores

Retired fisheries officer Gordon Barrie, 2860 Foul Bay Road, last night described how he witnessed a huge oil deposit in the sea off the Washington coast devastate clam beds and kill sea birds by the thousands this week.

The oil deposit was from a fuel barge grounded off Pacific Beach.

Mr. Barrie, for 37 years a Pacific coast fisheries officer, warned the deposit could bring an oozing black death to clam beds and shore wildlife on Vancouver Island and wreak incalculable damage.

The razor clam beds of Long Beach, at Tofino, where Mr. Barrie was stationed until recently, could be the first area affected, he said.

Mr. Barrie and his wife were on the Washington coast on a razor clamming holiday. They are friends of Mrs. Ted Phelps, who manages T & R Clam Co. of Ocean City.

"Mrs. Phelps had orders for more than $20,000 worth of clams this season," said Mr. Barrie. "And she was able to salvage only $200 worth."

"It was a horrible and shocking sight to see all the thousands of dead birds and tens of thousands of clams carpeting the shore."

Earl Coe, chairman of the state pollution control commission, was reported as the man who gave the order for the barge to pump off its cargo after the vessel grounded.

down the whole international code of protecting migratory fish and birds.

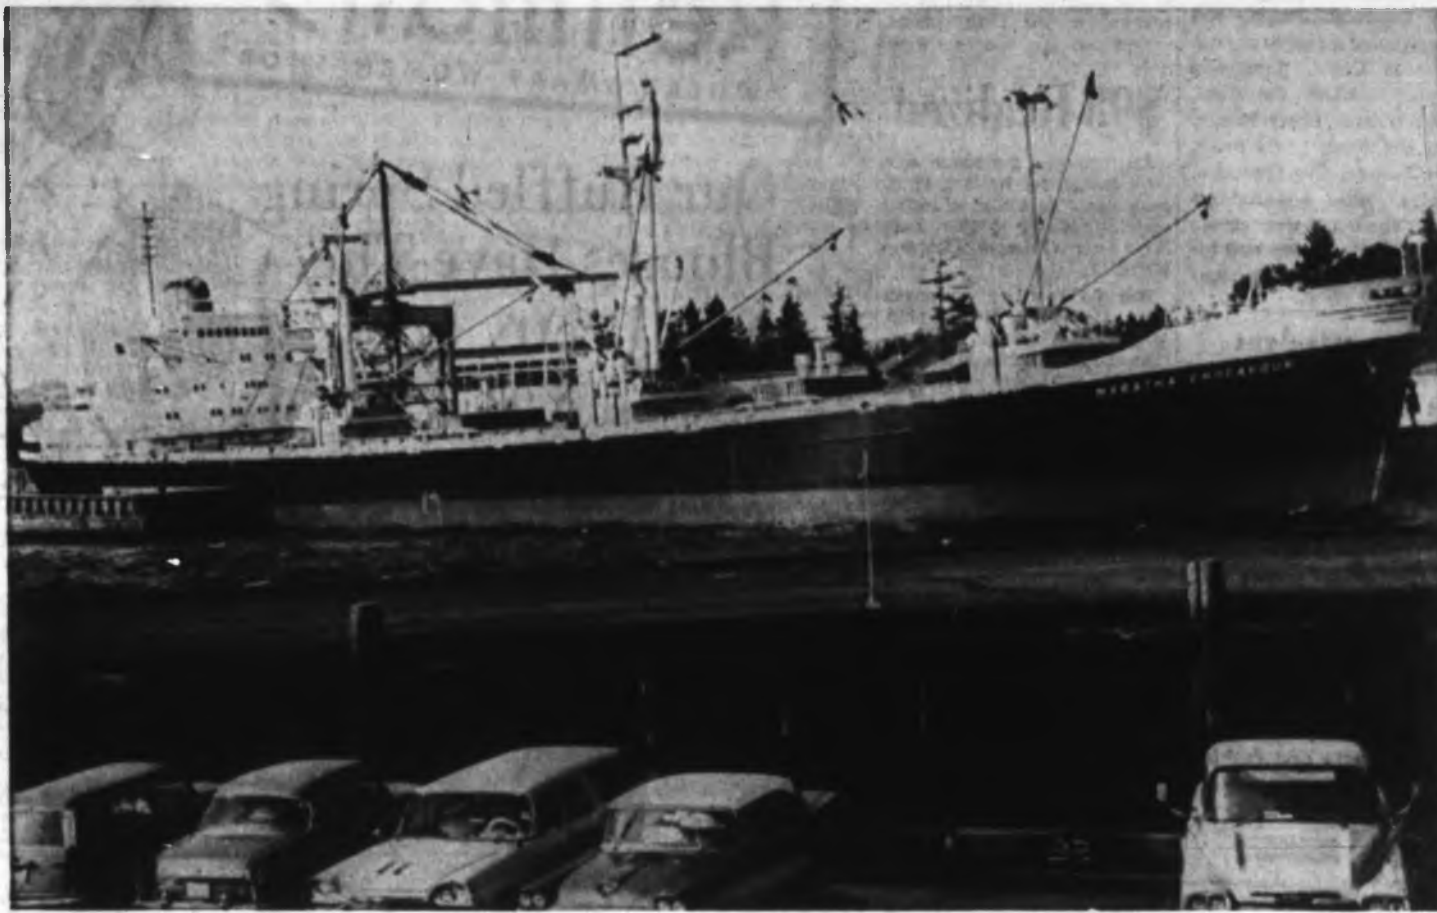

"If this action had been carried out in Canada, the people responsible would have been prosecuted immediately."

"They could have pumped the oil into a railway tanker not 200 feet above sea level, right on the coast. Instead, they have run the risk of causing incalculable damage to wildlife along the shores of the Island."

"This has happened three times along our shores in 15 years of my experience."

"It is well known that there are currents which could bring the pollution up the coast. It's a shameful affair."

Repair contract that got away: Maratha Endeavour returns to Esquimalt to reload lumber.

Strike Bill in Millions for Victoria

New Effort Friday to End Shipyard Dispute

By DON GAIN

Victoria shipyard workers are losing $25,000 a day in wages in the six-week-old strike but shipyard officials say that is only part of losses to the city's economy, which now are counted in the millions of dollars.

New attempts will be made Friday to settle the strike but meanwhile Victoria's two major shipyards and one in Vancouver stand idle.

Victoria Machinery Depot, Yarrow and Burrard Dry Dock Friday will make a new proposal at 10 a.m. in a labor department office in Vancouver. Deputy labor minister William Sands will represent the government.

At the suggestion of Mr. Sands each of the 22 unions in the strike will be represented and an executive from each shipyard will attend.

More than 1,400 workers in Victoria have lost about $750,000 in pay since the strike started Feb. 5.

Stalled by the strike is work on coastal vessels ferries, an oceanographic ship, numerous barges and repair and refit work.

In Ottawa Victoria Liberal MP David Gross said last week his efforts to secure government contracts for shipbuilding and repair work are being hampered by the strike.

He said it would be a disaster if west coast shipyards were to lose irreplaceable contracts to the east coast because of delays caused by the strike.

Mr. Gross said two major naval ships now tied up in mid-contract in the idle yards are needed without delay by the navy and other naval vessels require refit.

At Yarrow's shipyard is held up on six ship barges, a $1,500,000 self-loading and unloading log barge, a Pacific Naval Laboratory's research vessel and refit of the frigate HMCS New Glasgow.

"Springtime repairs on coastal vessels are waiting to be done," general manager John Wallace said last night. "This is difficult for the various owners."

He estimated close to $2,000,000 in contracts already has been lost.

To mention two such contracts, the Bahamas-based freighter Maratha Endeavour went to Seattle's Todd Shipyard for a $500,000 repair job and was followed by the Greek freighter Elli. Yarrow's was low bidder on these jobs but could not guarantee completion of the work due to the impending strike.

Contract negotiations between the 22 unions and the three shipyards began last July.

When no agreement was reached a conciliation board came up with an offer of a three-year contract with wage increases and welfare benefits totalling 30 cents an hour. The shipyards accepted the recommendation but the unions rejected it Dec. 24.

After a majority strike vote toward the end of January 1,400 shipyard workers in Victoria took to the picket lines Feb. 5, followed by 800 in Vancouver the next day.

During subsequent negotiations the unions agreed to accept 30 cents over two years instead of three but the shipyards turned it down.

Friday's meeting may turn up some common ground for ending the strike.

"I hope it will be fruitful and will lead to a settlement of the dispute," Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said.

Hospital Change

Veterans' Future Causes Concern

By ALAN CAMPBELL

About 120 men under domiciliary care at Veterans' Hospital in Victoria are fearful over their future under the federal government's new plan to integrate veterans' and community hospitals.

Their concern is shared by members of the Royal Canadian Legion, who have been opposed to the plan since it was first discussed in Ottawa last year.

IN PAVILION

The men, mostly older returned soldiers are patients in one pavilion at the Victoria Veterans' Hospital.

The government proposal, made public last week in Ottawa, calls for a takeover of administration of veterans' institutions by city hospitals, which would later lease space required for veterans to the federal government. It was proposed to alleviate acute shortages of beds in community hospitals.

MOST CONCERN

S. J. Mayzes, South Vancouver Island zone commander of the Royal Canadian Legion, said yesterday these domiciliary patients are the ones for whom the most concern is felt by the Legion.

"We are very interested in what is going to become of these men," he said. "Maybe everything will be all right—but we don't know yet, and we would like to."

NO COMMENT

Yesterday, Dr. W. L. Coke, medical director of the Veterans' Hospital said he could not comment on the government plan, as he had not yet heard of it officially.

"We know nothing of what will happen locally," he said.

ZONE MEETING

Mr. Mayzes said the matter will be discussed Friday and Saturday at the provincial command meeting in Vancouver, and next Thursday will be a topic at a zone meeting in Victoria.

Mr. Mayzes said Legion members were also concerned with what will become of the present practice of treating all recipients of war veterans' allowances free of charge.

MPs WIRED

Meanwhile, the Britannia Branch in Victoria has wired two Victoria MPs "strongly opposing" any change in federal administration of hospitals.

Liberal David Gross and Tory George Chatterton were also asked by the Britannia Branch for full information on any changes which would have the effect of curtailing treatment of veterans in all treatment classifications.

Close to 50 Entries For Car Road-eo

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has close to 50 entries for Sunday's car road-eo at Town and Country shopping centre.

Entries are still awaited from hot rod and custom car clubs in Portland, Seattle and Vancouver. The event is to tie in with Victoria's Spring Flower Festival.

The contest will consist of a written test and a series of skill tests.

Stop, Says Ostler

Haigh Must Pay $600 in Fines

Fines totalling $600 were levied yesterday against Harry Haigh, convicted of maintaining a junkyard at his Rockland Avenue residence and of obstructing a police officer.

"There must come a time when mocking of the courts must cease," Magistrate William Ostler said in city magistrate's court. He fined Haigh $100 or 14 days for obstructing a police officer and the maximum $500 or three months for operating a junkyard.

Magistrate Ostler said that normally the offence involving the officer would be more serious than the other.

So Often

But in this case the situation was reversed because Haigh has kept the junkyard so long, and been convicted of doing so often, that his continuing to do so amounted to contempt of court.

He said the matter of the state of Haigh's premises at 1586 Rockland is "disgraceful" and is not a game between Haigh and city building inspector Alexander James.

Law Point

Evidence was heard on an other charge against Haigh—that of obstructing a building inspector. Magistrate Ostler deferred judgment on that matter until March 25 so he can consider a technical point of law.

During the course of the junkyard trial, Crown counsel Peter Birkett read to Haigh, item by item, part of what the magistrate later described as "a very large and comprehensive list" of objects which had been noted around Haigh's premises.

As each item was read, Haigh, frequently frowning his brow and shifting, gave a variety of answers about whether he recalled such an object being there, how it might have got there, what he intends to do with it and so on.

New Rip

The magistrate described Haigh's testimony as disarming.

He said Haigh seemed to be trying to paint a picture of himself as "a modern Rip Van Winkle who awakes . . . and finds someone has brought coals to Newcastle."

He said he suspected Haigh was, in fact, quite familiar with the objects on his property—and even if he wasn't, it was his duty to be.

In response to defence lawyer Edmond St. Jorre's suggestion that it was a moot point whether Haigh's yard was a junkyard or just an untidy yard, the magistrate said to describe the yard as untidy would be "the understatement of this or any other year."

Moving

Referring to Haigh's statement that he is selling his Rockland Avenue property and moving to another municipality, the magistrate said that is not the point, since there is no guarantee Haigh will respect the bylaws of another community more than he did Victoria's.

Testimony on the charge of obstructing an officer—which arises out of incidents Jan. 31 at Haigh's property involving Victoria Const. M. H. Curry—was heard on a previous occasion.

Testimony on the charge of obstructing a building inspector, involving an incident Jan. 30, was heard yesterday.

Fists Up

Victoria building inspector Alexander James testified he and assistant John Ford had come to the property with a camera and Haigh had instructed them to get off, at one time even taking off his glasses and coat, putting up his fists and challenging Mr. James to fight.

Haigh insisted he objected only to the taking of pictures—and the magistrate later said he agreed Haigh's primary objection was to the camera.

At one point, under cross-examination, Mr. James said of Haigh: "He's an individualist. So am I, when it comes to that."

Labor Council Urges

Garbage at a Profit

City fathers should consider running the city's business at a profit, Victoria Labor Council was told last night.

The city council does not indulge in running the city at a profit. It regards private business as sacred, Fred Bevis said.

DISPOSAL AREA

He was speaking in support of a resolution calling on Victoria to meet with the surrounding municipalities to discuss construction of a garbage disposal area which could be used by all the municipalities.

He pointed out that there were cities in Europe that made money out of processed garbage and added he did not see why similar arrangements could not be made in Victoria.

GARBAGE DUMP

The resolution came on the heels of several stories carried in the Colonist of complaints of taxpayers' groups about the garbage dump on Hartland Road.

Mr. Bevis said the city fathers would continue operating the city's business without profit as long as the people permitted them to do so.

It's up to us to shake them up, he said.

Decision on Polls 'Regretted'

Victoria Labor Council accepted "with regret" a report that city council, after a survey, had decided against having more than one polling station during civic elections.

Raider Crows No More

The winged attacker of the Cadillac area in Saanich will soon be no more.

Attacks were said to have been launched on several children in the neighborhood and police traced the bird—a crow with a red band on its leg—to John Taylor, 338 Homer Road.

Mr. Taylor asked that he be permitted to dispose of the bird.

The letter was signed by city clerk Frank Hunter, and offered no explanation of why city council decided to leave things as they are at present with a single polling station.

Fred Bevis suggested the labor council write to city council for a copy of the document which brought them to vote against more than one centre.

The document already caused a controversy between city clerk Hunter and labor council secretary-treasurer A. W. Toome who is also a city alderman.

In other business, council learned from B.C. Hydro chairman Gordon Schrum he was unable to get any bids in B.C. for construction of a certain type of building and had to go to Alberta to a contractor for pre-cut material.

Mr. Schrum also said there was a shortage of about 70 inspectors and engineers' helpers. He said to qualify as an inspector required a high-school education, and men with this qualification seemed to be in short supply.

Secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, Pat O'Neal, told the meeting Canada was from five to 10 years behind in planning for automation and technological change.

Originally a complaint had been read to the labor council charging that the labor-recruiting offices had been set up in Vancouver to obtain skilled labor for the Peace River project, and had never failed to supply any skilled help needed.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have heard it said that there is no such thing as love at first sight, but I am living proof that love at first sight can happen. I am floating on a cloud. I hear a million violins. If this is a dream I hope I never wake up.

The man walked into the office at noon yesterday. All he did was ask me to direct him to the manager's office. His voice sounded like a radio announcer's. I knew instantly this was it! About 20 minutes later he came by and said, "Do you happen to have a luncheon date?" I replied, "No, I don't." Before I knew what hit me we were having spaghetti and wine in a divine little Italian place.

The man is single, three years older than I am and lives in Akron. He says he'll call me next week when he comes through town again. We like the same movie stars, books, records and I know he's what I've been waiting for all my life. Please Ann, don't tell me there is no such thing as love at first sight.—SNOWED

Dear Snowed: Any girl who can go scoby-doby-do on one lunch is beyond my reach. But I hope you'll keep this column around and look at it six months from now.

Sorry, Doll, I still say there's no such thing as love at first sight. You've been hit by a chemical reaction—not love. If your Akron boy friend possesses the qualities that count in a relationship he may be the big love of your life—but time alone will tell.

Guild Plans Spring Tea

FULFORD — The quarterly meeting of St. Mary's Guild was held recently at the rectory in Ganges. Members were welcomed by Mrs. Leech, and Rev. S. J. Leech opened the meeting with a prayer.

Letters of thanks from Mrs. F. L. Jackson and Mrs. A. D. Dane were read by the president, Miss Doris Anderson. Discussions on work which has to be done on the church, and for future social events, were held.

It was decided to hold the garden fete at Rosemeath Farm in August, the date to be settled later. Also plans were made to hold a Spring tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Roddis May 27.

The next meeting will be held at Dromore on June 12, the home of Mrs. A. Davis and Miss Bea Hamilton.

Nancy Edmison was named Teen Queen on Saturday afternoon after completing a charm course at the Hudson's Bay Company. Judging was completed at a fashion show in Hollywood House. Runners-up were Rosalind Frankland, Eileen O'Keefe, Cheryl Haines, Gail McQuirter, Lynne Booth, Lois Jacques, Eve Cranston, Evelyn Butler and Kathryn Peatt. The top 10 were chosen from the 80 girls who took the course.—(George Y. Simpson)

LAWN BOWLING TEA

Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club will hold a bridge-tena in the Douglas Room of Hudson's Bay store March 20 at 2 p.m.

Character Party

Xi Nu Chapter Beta Sigma Phi played host to Xi Chapter at a TV character party at the home of Mrs. D. Budd, Astoria Road. The rooms were decorated in St. Patrick day theme and games were played.

The judges, Mrs. E. Prentiss and Mrs. Miriam Rogers, had great difficulty in selecting the winning costumes. The winners were Mrs. R. H. Mercer, Mrs. G. Goodwin, Mrs. H. Downard, Mrs. J. O'Keefe and Misses Audrey Kelly, Betty Morris and Flora Frankland.

At Fulford

Dance Proceeds $150

FULFORD — The first big dance sponsored by the Fulford Athletic Club was most successful. It was held on Friday at the Fulford Hall. Just over $150 was taken in. The four-piece orchestra from Victoria played with no letup all evening. They played and sang a number of the Beatle songs. Also, the Beatle recordings were given as spot dance prizes.

The Fulford Hall, looking smart with a new ceiling and new walls, was gay with decorations in honor of the patron saint of Auld Ireland. Younger members of the club hung paddy green streamers, festooned with colored balloons, from the centre of the ceiling and these swung completely from end to end of the hall. Tall ferns and other greens were in the windows and on the tables.

Mrs. G. H. Laundry who was at the door was dressed in the costume of the Irish colleen, and was surrounded by Irish decorations, even the hefty shillelagh beside her.

A number of people arrived in costumes and were paraded in a grand march, while the judging was done by Mrs. J. Ward, editor of Driftwood, Mrs. W. Shaw and Miss Bea Hamilton. First prize went to a Moon Maid, Mrs. J. Reid of Ganges.

A Crazy Cat was next, Mrs. Mary Fellows, and a beatnick, Larry Ginn. Mrs. Ward presented prizes to the winners.

The dance was well supervised by adult members of the Athletic Club, chief of whom were Jack Roland and Bob Akerman and Mike Byron acted as M.C.

Birthday Party

Honoring the 53rd birthday of Mrs. Emily Ward, a number of her relatives "surprised" her at the Queenswood Drive home of her niece, Mrs. Hilda King. It being leap-year, tea was poured by her son, Mr. Eugene Phillon, assisted by her grandsons Bill and Richard Phillon, nephew Mr. Arthur Kirby, and nephews-in-law Mr. Cecil Risebrow and Rev. Dr. K. M. King. The decorated birthday cake was carried in by her two small grand-nieces Joyce Fairbrother and Gwen Risebrow. Other guests were her brother-in-law Mr. Harold Westmacott, 87; niece Mrs. Mary Fairbrother and Mrs. Ethel Risebrow; granddaughter Jeanette Phillon; and Mrs. Jennie Harkness, Mrs. Yvonne Kirkby, Mrs. Evelyn Phillon, Mrs. Eveline Ward and Miss Dorothy Greenhalgh.

Mrs. W. M. Landmore, left, who was a luncheon hostess at Admiral's House yesterday, is pictured with Mrs. H. B. Elworthy. Other guests were Mrs. E. E. Pearlman, wife of the president of the Armed Services Centre board of directors; wives of the board executive; Mrs. Gordon Brown, wife of the president of the Kinsmen Club, and wives of the giant bingo to be held in the Memorial Arena on April 7. Proceeds of the game will go to the Armed Services Centre after nearly $10,000 is paid to the lucky winners. Prizes range from $100 to $1,000 and a 1964 Pontiac four-door sedan in the 14th game. An extra prize for an extra $1 is free air transportation for two to any place in North America and return.

50 Tables Played

Auxiliary Bridge-Tea Nets Hospital $315

Spring blossomed forth in earnest Wednesday afternoon in the Nurses' Residence at St. Joseph's Hospital for the annual bridge and tea party presented by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

High fashion spring millinery, worn by the guests, vied for attention with Mother Nature's springtime costume. There were lovely spring flowers—daffodils, Japanese cherry blossoms and tulips—in practically every nook and cranny in the bridge and tea rooms.

The lace-covered tea table was centred with a delightful arrangement of pink carnations, iris and narcissus, while the refreshment table for the bridge players was highlighted with a large bowl of camellias.

There were 50 tables in play during the afternoon with some 300 guests enjoying the bridge or just relaxing with a friend over a cup of tea. The sum of $315 was realized and will be used to help pay off the auto-analyzer purchased previously by the auxiliary for the hospital.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. M. J. Griffin, Mrs. A. L. Cox and Mrs. R. T. Lee presided at the tea table. Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, president, welcomed the guests and later presented the bridge prizes.

Mrs. M. Atkinson was bridge convener and was assisted by Mrs. E. J. Michaux, Mrs. J. W. Golby and Mrs. Atkinson. Mrs. W. Rothery and Mrs. F. Sedgwick were in charge of refreshments and Mrs. G. DeCorte, tea pot arrangements.

Serviteurs were Mrs. T. Pye, Mrs. A. Kelpin, Mrs. A. Cowden, Mrs. J. O. St. Denis, Mrs. J. Chadderton, Mrs. J. McKenna, Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs. A. J. Shipley, Mrs. W. R. Brand, Mrs. P. V. Flynn, Mrs. P. Salla-way, Mrs. W. H. Hayward, Mrs. A. Taylor, Mrs. R. Atkinson, Mrs. C. Sluggett, Mrs. A. L. Robinson, Mrs. J. Robinson, Mrs. R. Lindsay and Mrs. H. O. Neill.

Mrs. W. Rogers convened the home baking tables, assisted by Mrs. A. Rhodes, Mrs. C. M. Kilgour and Mrs. M. Beesley. Mrs. Blair Reid, Mrs. W. Caldwell, Mrs. P. Semenchuk and Mrs. A. D. Blair were in charge of receipts.

The prettiest dessert of the season—
Chocolate Charlotte.

Looks Beautiful Tastes Better

Chocolate and coconut and ladyfingers all in a row... these are features of a dessert that's ideal for parties. It's rich, light and luscious, offering a flavor and texture combination so popular it's almost a standard for goodness in sweet treats. If you think you can't make a dessert that's as pretty as a picture, begin with this surprisingly simple recipe.

Chocolate Charlotte looks like a dream and tastes even better. It takes advantage of many of the qualities of instant pasteurized powdered skim milk... convenience, versatility, whipping ease. It also provides a bonus of nutritional benefits: B vitamins, protein and minerals for good health.

At a bridal shower, a luncheon party or an extra-special dinner, Chocolate Charlotte is the dessert you'll want to serve. Make an extra... your family will enjoy it, too.

CHOCOLATE CHARLOTTE

(Makes 10 to 12 servings)
Three envelopes unflavored gelatine, ½ cup water, 3 cups instant pasteurized powdered skim milk, ½ cup cocoa, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 cups water, 3½ cups whipped instant pasteurized powdered skim milk, 1 package (3 oz.) ladyfingers split, flaked coconut.

Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup water to soften. Stir softened gelatine, instant skim milk powder, cocoa, sugar and salt into 3 cups water. Cook and stir over low heat until gelatine is dissolved. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Fold chocolate mixture into whipped instant skim milk powder. Line 8-inch springform pan with split ladyfingers. Turn chocolate mixture into pan. Chill until firm. Remove sides of pan to unmould. Garnish with coconut.

*To whip instant pasteurized powdered skim milk (makes about 3½ cups):
1. Mix ½ cup instant pasteurized powdered skim milk with ½ cup ice water in bowl.
2. Beat until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice.
3. Continue beating until stiff peaks form (3 to 4 minutes longer).

COFFEE WALNUT BAVARIAN

(Makes 8 servings)
One package (3¼ ounces) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix, 1 envelope unflavored gelatine, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ cups strong coffee, ½ cup instant pasteurized powdered skim milk, ½ cup ice water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup chopped walnuts.
*Combine pudding mix, gelatine, sugar, vanilla and coffee in saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat until thickened. Cool thoroughly. Mix instant skim milk powder with ice water in bowl. Whip until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add lemon juice and continue whipping until stiff (3 to 4 minutes). Using same beaters, whip pudding until light; fold with walnuts into whipped instant skim milk powder. Spoon into 6-cup mould. Chill until set. Unmould.

Open-Face Sandwiches Are Appetizing

By BASIL FITZGIBBON

Smorgasbord is a title which conjures up in the imagination a wonderful collection of Scandinavian dishes served buffet style, but oddly enough when you talk to people about Smorgasbord, the specific dishes that come to mind are mostly herring or meat ball variations. Admittedly, the herring plays a great part in any Smorgasbord, but one should bear in mind that any good Swedish cook book would supply up to 120 different recipes. Other items on a well-planned Scandinavian table include open-face sandwiches and here are a few suggestions that are different but very appetizing:

DANISH SANDWICHES

Use good fresh rye bread, thinly sliced, and use sweet butter whenever possible. All sandwiches are open faced:

1. Roast beef with crisp bacon and fried onions. Make sure that the onions are thinly sliced and well crisped.

2. Ham with Camembert one egg yolk, raw and whole, cheese, raw egg yolk and chives, and sprinkle with chives.

3. Sliced tomato, fried egg and fried onion.
Slice the ham thinly spread with

Some of the sandwiches are hot, and here are a couple of suggestions:

1. Hot scrambled eggs with smoked salmon. This variation is served on toast.

2. Poached egg with tiny shrimps or caviar or smoked salmon, thinly sliced. Garnish with chopped chives.

3. Poached egg served on toast with stewed mushrooms and fresh shrimp or lobster.

You don't have to wait to organize a Smorgasbord to serve these good sandwiches, because they make excellent snacks. I would like to give you one last selection which is my favorite: Sliced tomatoes, one raw egg yolk, capers, horseradish sauce and finely chopped onion. To this you can add very thinly sliced raw beef.

Remember that one of the most palatable drinks to go with these sandwiches is lager beer, well chilled!

Tired of Missing Out

COENWALL, Ont. (CP)—Two young mothers, Diana De Filippi and Sally Zilber, decided to launch a business. Tired of missing public events because they didn't know about them until it was too late, the housewives worked at home making up their own public events calendar. It was easy to sell it to local retailers.

How Much Money Main Question In Students' Minds

University of Victoria students are awaiting with interest the dominion-provincial conference at the end of this month when interest-free loans to students are expected to be discussed.

Mrs. Olivia Barr, president of the students' council, said yesterday she was pleased with the announcement in the federal budget that student loans would be made available and stressed there is still a need for bursaries and scholarships.

How much money will be made available to students is the question uppermost in students' minds.

"We don't know how much money will be available to each province," Mrs. Barr said.

Whooper Dies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. interior department says a young whooping crane has died at the Arkansas National Wildlife refuge on the Texas Gulf coast.

Time and cause of the death were unknown.

She also noted press reports of the budget said loans would be interest-free while students are studying, but as soon as they graduate, interest must be paid.

"If this means a student must start to pay interest as soon as he graduates, whether he has a job or not, perhaps the loans aren't as rosy as they seem," she said.

Students are hoping some arrangement can be made at the federal-provincial conference so students can take advantage of the loans in the coming fall term.

OWN TERMS

David Jenkins, president of the Canadian Union of Students, said each province must have the right to accept loans or scholarship money on its own terms. What would be suitable for one province might not be good for another.

He said one province might want to make direct grants to students while another might prefer to widen its taxation powers.

Condition Serious

Scaffold Man Falls

A man was reported in quite serious condition, but not on the critical list, after a 25-foot drop to the sidewalk from a scaffold at a downtown construction site yesterday.

Ewen Duncan, 45, of 4497 Harriet in Vancouver, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after his fall. He was unconscious and suffered bruises and scrapes as well as his head injury.

Victoria police said Mr. Duncan, an employee of Bordignon Masonry Ltd. of Vancouver, was working on installation of a stone front on the Bank of Nova Scotia building at Yates and Douglas.

Mr. Duncan was taken to hospital in a city police vehicle. He was working along with Andrew Biron of 2297 Charles in Vancouver.

An 1,800-pound piece of stone was being raised by a crane operated by Thomas Cox, 3590 Saanich Road, when the accident happened, police said. A pin used to hold the piece of masonry broke and the huge piece fell against the scaffolding and then to the ground.

The blow of the stone against the scaffold made Mr. Duncan topple from the scaffolding to the ground, but Mr. Biron managed to grab an edge of the building and keep from falling.

Mr. Duncan was taken to hospital in a city police vehicle.

Sir Galahad Free But Through

Sometimes it's difficult to help people and as far as Irwin La Bounty, 2922 Douglas, is concerned, the more difficult it is the better, because he has sworn off helping anyone in distress after being charged with assault.

Recently, down from the Cariboo country, La Bounty and his wife were watching television around midnight Feb. 2 when she heard a scream. La Bounty looked out, saw a man apparently dragging a woman up an alley, grabbed his trusty shotgun and went out to do battle for the fair sex.

Trouble was, he didn't know it was a husband-and-wife quarrel and that the husband was merely exercising his rights.

When the police arrived they found La Bounty, victoriously poised over the man, shotgun levelled at the offender's chest.

Police didn't see it the way La Bounty did. They took away his shotgun and charged him with assault.

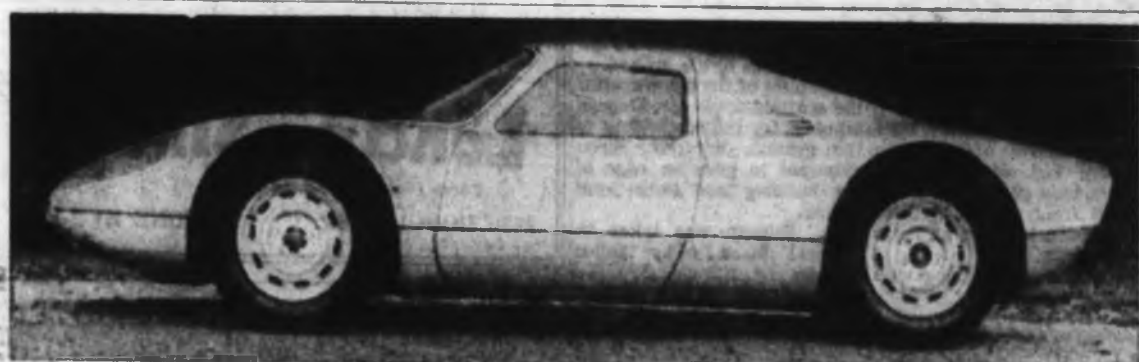

But, Monday, La Bounty's faith was renewed in his fellow man. Magistrate William Ostler dismissed the charges but offered a gentle reprimand.

He told La Bounty it might have been unwise for him to take a gun to the quarrel but added La Bounty showed commonsense in rushing immediately to the aid of the woman.

Evidence indicated La Bounty had been in Victoria from the north only eight months. He told the court it was natural for him to pick up a shotgun.

Defence counsel Cecil Branson, in summing up, quoted a recent speech by Police Chief J. F. Gregory calling for active co-operation from the public and greater use of the "citizen's arrest" to aid the police.

As far as La Bounty is concerned, there has to be another way. Breaking up fights is not for him anymore.

Stop 'Fix' Claims Judge Tells Writer

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — A judge warning against the recurrence of charges that the Quebec government was trying to fix the outcome of a royal commission probe was voiced Wednesday by commission president, Judge Roger Brossard.

Mr. Justice Brossard said such charges, given wide space in newspapers during the last few days, and made by author-publisher Jacques Hebert and his lawyers, could harm the commission's work.

REMAIN OBJECTIVE

He said the royal commission, which is investigating the events which had led to the execution of Wilbert Coffin in 1956, had to remain objective no matter who appeared before it.

Hebert, who wrote a book which sparked the inquiry, complained Monday that the attorney-general's department and the provincial police were aiding the very people whom the government, on the advice of the attorney-general's department, had ordered to be investigated.

LAUNCHES FUND

Hebert made his charges at a press conference in Montreal to launch a "Coffin Fund" to raise money to present his case to the inquiry.

He said some 120 witnesses were to appear before the inquiry.

Jews Face New Snag With Bread

MOSCOW (UPI)—The congregation of the Moscow Central Synagogue yesterday was told no more flour will be accepted for making Matzo for the Passover holidays.

It means many members may have to do without the unleavened bread.

The cutoff was believed due to the limited capacity of the small bakery rented by the synagogue to produce the traditional bread.

Head Cut Treated

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—The FBI arrested two women here Wednesday on charges of threatening "bodily harm" to Gov. Connally of Texas the same day that Jack Ruby was convicted.

Connally, seriously wounded by the assassin of the late President Kennedy, did not personally receive the call. The FBI said it was taken by a highway patrolman stationed at the mansion in Austin, Tex.

Ruby was convicted last Saturday and sentenced to death for the slaying of Lee Oswald, the accused presidential assassin.

BOTH JAILLESS
The two women charged with the crime were identified as Christine Burke, 34, and June McGriff, 38, both of Nashville. Both women are unemployed.

An FBI spokesman said the person who phoned the mansion would not state the reason for the threat, saying only "It had to do with the conviction and sentencing of Ruby."

NOT TO KILL
The caller also refused to disclose the specific nature of the threat, the FBI said, other than to declare "It was to do bodily harm... not to kill."

Connally said in Dallas earlier he had received "three or four" threats on his life since Ruby was condemned. The governor was in Dallas yesterday to have a cast removed from his wounded right arm.

Connally conceded that he worried about threats but not so seriously that "I want to hole up somewhere."

VILE LETTERS
He said he had also received some "very vile" letters since Ruby was convicted.

The women arrested here were taken into custody at their homes and offered no resistance, agents said. Both waived preliminary hearings before U.S. Commissioner A. B. Neale Jr. and were released under $2,500 bond.

FEDERAL STATUTE
The spokesman said the women were charged under a federal extortion statute with "willfully making a long distance call from Nashville to Austin threatening to injure the person of Gov. John Connally."

The maximum penalty for conviction on the charge is five years imprisonment and $1,000 fine. The complaint was filed by the FBI in San Antonio, Tex.

Very Careful

Commission Quizzes Friend of the Oswalds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Warren commission Wednesday painstakingly questioned an Irving, Tex., woman who befriended the wife of Lee Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy.

Mrs. Michael Paine said she told of meeting Oswald and his Russian-born wife, Marina, at a party in February, 1963, and continued her account through last May. She was recalled for more testimony today. Her husband was questioned early in the day and dismissed.

"They are being very careful to cover everything in detail and I hope to be equally careful in telling them exactly what happened," Mrs. Paine said.

GREATER DETAIL
Mrs. Paine told reporters she generally went into greater detail of her experiences with the Oswalds than in reports that have already appeared in the newspapers.

Mrs. Oswald and her two small children stayed with the Paines at their home near Dallas for two weeks in May and again from Sept. 24 until Kennedy's assassination in Dallas on Nov. 22.

Mrs. Paine told reporters she had not seen Oswald's widow since the assassination until March 9, when they had a pleasant chat together. She said Mrs. Oswald is learning English well and hopes to get a job.

FULL REPORT
In another development, Rep. Gerald Ford (R-Mich.), a member of the Warren commission, told his constituents in a newsletter that the commission should make public a full report of its investigation early this summer. He said nothing should be withheld.

Ford said daily sessions of the commission have been scheduled for the next five or six weeks to receive testimony from about 50 more witnesses.

SECURITY CHECK
One of the main results of the hearings so far, he said, is that the commission is "taking a hard look at the security measures affecting the president. We are examining the current regulations and the extent to which these were complied with in Dallas."

'Burn My Clothes'

Jack Ruby, convicted in slaying of Lee Oswald, is reported to have told his lawyer, Melvin Belli, to "take my clothes and burn them. Don't let them put them in a wax museum." He was referring to Dallas museum, where spot is already picked out for him. Ruby is already in Tussaud museum in Niagara Falls, Ont., as shown here, and director Bus McTaggart has been trying to get clothing of both Ruby and Oswald to authenticate display. —(Fednews)

No Job For War Hero

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto apparently has no job for a Greek war hero who says he saved 32 Jewish families from the Nazis.

Theodoros Karakatsoukas, his wife and their three children arrived in Toronto a month ago, broke and unable to speak English.

The Canadian Jewish Congress here has been able to raise several offers of help, but no one has come up with a job.

The congress has found a job for his wife in a shoe factory, but Mr. Karakatsoukas is temporarily washing dishes for his sponsor, his brother-in-law who owns a restaurant.

Russians Resume Big Gold Sales

LONDON (UPI)—Russia has resumed large-scale gold sales in Europe to meet the heavy bill for wheat purchases in the West, authoritative British sources reported Wednesday.

The Soviet Union was understood to have offered on European markets 40 tons of gold in the past few days, valued at about $4,500,000.

The price of gold slumped under the weight of further Russian sales.

Thant Rules Under Fire

NICOSIA (UPI)—A head-on clash appeared shaping up today between Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios and United Nations Secretary-General Thant over operations of the UN peace-keeping force on this troubled Mediterranean island. The threat stemmed from the force have the right to search, disarm and arrest suspects and the "green line" separating the feuding Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities in Nicosia be maintained.

A top aide to Makarios told newsmen that "as far as the archbishop is concerned, the 'green line' must be abolished with the end of the 'British phase'."

OBJECTION SEEN

Informed sources said that while the Greek Cypriots would have no objections to the UN troops searching and arresting Turkish Cypriots, it was questionable whether they would accept the same treatment for the 5,000 "special" constables recruited by Makarios last month.

Other developments:

● The arrival yesterday of 150 more Canadians bringing Canada's peace force contingent to 552, with another 138 expected today.

● An anti-American and anti-British demonstration by about 5,000 Greek Cypriot school children in the southern port of Limassol.

● An Ankara radio broadcast that Turkish gunboats, submarines, destroyers and landing units "continued their all-service training program" at the port of Iskenderun, 100 miles from Cyprus.

'Unfair' Competition

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Vance Hartke (D, Ind.) has appealed to President Johnson for relief from "unfair" Canadian automotive parts competition which, he said, caused a layoff of 700 employees at a Muncie, Ind., plant.

He specifically asked for elimination of defence department purchases of Canadian products sold in competition with those manufactured in the United States.

Hearing Adjourned

Short Shrift Given Western Bank

OTTAWA (CP)—The proposal for the new Bank of Western Canada went to the all-important Senate banking and commerce committee Wednesday. But it got short shrift, at least for the time being.

The senators—some of them directors of major financial institutions including existing banks—listened to short statements by the two chief petitioners, Sinclair Stevens and James E. Coyne of Toronto, then adjourned indefinitely without asking a single question.

The case may not be revived until late April or May, informants said.

With at least three other bank petitions expected, the Senate had sent the Bank of Western Canada bill to committee for detailed scrutiny on the tacit agreement that it would languish there pending the report of the royal commission on banking and finance.

That report is not expected until mid-April, possibly later. Meanwhile, the Senate is to take an Easter recess lasting until either April 7 or April 14—with the latter date considered the most likely.

OTHERS SEEK CHARTERS

By that time, Parliament may have three more proposed charters to deal with—those sought for the proposed Bank of British Columbia, the Laurentian Bank of Canada, and the one being proposed by a group led by Jean-Louis Levesque, president of Trans-Canada Corporation Fund.

Mr. Stevens detailed the financing, saying nearly $13,000,000 now has been raised or committed for proposed bank stock. He said the bank would have around 8,000 shareholders, participating either directly or through the main corporate subscribers. Wellington Financial Corporation, Canadian Finance and Investments Limited, and York Trust and Savings Corporation. Mr. Stevens is president of all three companies.

CAN BE DONE

He said an impression had been built in Canada that a new bank could not be established.

"We are here to say we believe it can be done. It is not proposed that our operation would deviate from the sound banking principles that have so far been the backbone of the Canadian banking system."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police are baffled by the increase in pedestrian deaths this year, traffic superintendent Alan Rossiter says. Ten pedestrians have died in the city this year compared to only four at the same time last year.

At the same time, it asserted, mass deportations are taking place of Albanians to other parts of Yugoslavia.

Boy Holds Ticket On Race Favorite

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 19-year-old member of a family of 12 has an Irish sweepstake ticket on Time, the favorite in Saturday's Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Adrian Gagne, one of two British Columbians holding tickets on the 14-to-1 favorite, stands to win $150,000 if his horse wins Saturday.

He bought a ticket for the first time when his mother was in hospital with a heart condition and pneumonia.

"We were all pretty worried about expenses then — we still are," his mother said yesterday. "So Adrian said that if his ticket won we wouldn't have to worry about money anymore."

Adrian is one of 10 children aged from 13 to 25. He used the nom-de-plume "Cony," the name of a girl acquaintance.

The other British Columbian holding a ticket on Time is identified only by the nom-de-plume "This Time," Fernie.

City Woman Wins Round In Golden Gavel Contest

Winner of the preliminary round in the annual Golden Gavel competition last night was Mrs. Mary Winston of the Arbutus Toastmasters Club. Runner-up was Evm Mitchell, of Woodward's Speechcraft Course.

The topic was "Don't Just Sit There."

Both speakers advance to the final Friday, April 3, in the St. John Ambulance auditorium.

The speaking contest is sponsored by the area council of Toastmasters International and is open to all residents of Lower Vancouver Island who have less than 15 months' experience in public speaking.

Tomatoes Oddballs

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I suppose every writer who works with a deadline date snapping at his coattails has moments of panic when he can't think of anything to put down on paper. I had such a moment earlier today, and I think my wife must have sensed that something was wrong, for as I sat before my typewriter staring glassy-eyed at a blank piece of paper, she tiptoed into my den bearing a most welcome cup of coffee.

"What are you going to write about today?" she asked, probably in an effort to break the tension.

"I was toying with the idea of an article on Oddball Tomatoes I Have Known," I answered.

"Don't forget to include that girl you were going with before we were married," she snorted as she whisked out of the room.

The tomato family is singularly rich in off-beat types — far more so than any other vegetable I can think of. You never hear of oddball carrots or way-out spinach, but there are climbing tomatoes, perennial tomatoes, husk tomatoes, tree tomatoes and varieties in all kinds of weird shapes and colors. Some of these are worth knowing.

For instance, if someone in your family cannot eat a tomato without suffering the pangs of indigestion, you can grow a low-acid type that anyone can tolerate. These are a bit short on flavor — they are bland almost to the point of tastelessness — but at least they are edible. Morden Yellow is an early ripener with pale yellow fruits of good size. Jubilee is somewhat later in ripening, bearing larger fruits in a rich golden color.

I grew a pure white tomato once — I think its name was White Lady, and it was listed years ago in the McKenzie seed catalogue — and while it grew and cropped very well, the colorless slices looked so unappetizing on the plate that my family turned up their noses and wouldn't eat it. One of my neighbors who couldn't even look at a red tomato without suffering a stomach upset took a chance on the white ones and found they didn't bother him in the least.

Two oddball tomatoes I like are San Marzano and Diener's Pepper Tomato. San Marzano is an Italian variety — seeds are listed in the Steele-Briggs catalogue — developed originally for canning and for the making of Italian tomato paste, but it is a grand tomato for slicing in a salad, with an intriguing flavor somewhat different from the conventional kinds. The plants bear very heavily, and the fruits are a queer oblong block shape, 3½ inches long by 1½ through, with thick walls and meaty flesh.

Diener's Pepper Tomato has a unique and spicy flavor with a distinct suggestion of green pepper mixed in. I don't know whether this is a natural tomato flavor or whether the plant is actually a cross between a pepper and a tomato, but the taste certainly suggests the latter. I imagine such a cross would be possible, for the tomato and the pepper are closely related. In any case, this off-beat tomato can lift an ordinary salad right out of its rut. Seeds are available from The Dominion Seed House, Georgetown, Ont.

At our house in addition to the conventional kinds, we always grow a few plants of Fargo Yellow Pear tomato. This one makes a dwarf plant in bush form bearing clusters of tiny yellow pear-shaped fruits not even as big as a small plum. In season, we set out bowls filled with these little fruits, and members of my family grab a handful every time they pass, munching on them as you would cherries.

For those unfortunates who don't have any garden, there is a little houseplant tomato called Tiny Tim, not much bigger than a geranium, and bearing quantities of small but deliciously flavored red tomatoes.

JOHN CROSBY Finds

Capri's Jail Cosy, Empty

CAPRI—It's sunny and cold on this fortress of an island that rises out of the blue sea. Capri is full of nothing but Capritians and at this time of the year there's no language but Italian in the air. That and the sound of hammers as they get the place ready for the tourists who start arriving at Easter. I sit in the square, bundled up against the wind, drinking coffee and reading about Jack Ruby in far-off Dallas.

"When did you last have a murder here?" I ask the correspondent for one of the big Rome dailies.

"Forty years ago," he says. "One porter stabbed another one. Drunk."

Capri has a no-crime problem which is quite a problem. The new jail has just opened. Very nice. One very nice room for girls, one very nice room for boys. One for the warden. No inmates.

"There are never any inmates," said the Italian. "That's our problem."

For years Capri's jail was a house. Two cells and a room for the warden. Always empty. Then the owner wanted it back to revert to household and they had to build a new jail. "The only inmate the jail ever had was a dog," said the Italian. "My friend used to keep his pet in there when she was in season to keep the other dogs away from her."

The air is full of the smell of new earth and pines. Very springlike, though cold. I journey up to the hill to the villa where Tiberius ran the Roman Empire a long time ago. It's a long climb and I'm pretty winded when I get to the top. There's an ancient Italian guide sitting in the sunshine. "My legs are not good any more," he apologizes. "I can't make it to the ruins."

"This is Tiberius's leap. When he didn't like anyone, he had them pushed off." I look down. A thousand feet. Hell of a drop, sea blue as sapphires, and very far away.

"He was a bad man, Tiberius," I said.

"Propaganda," said the guide. "The other emperors have blackened his reputation. You can't trust historians. Liars."

"I'm interested in his prison problem. Did Tiberius have a prison?"

"The dungeons are at the lower end of the palace," says the guide. "Quite large." I have a look. Very nice dungeons, if you like dungeons. Hell, when I was a boy, every house had its own dungeon and its own ballroom. Now they have breakfast niches. Life is very prosaic.

In the afternoon I go over to say hello to Gracie Fields. "Just take the bus," she says on the phone. "and say Gracie Fields. He'll tell you when to get off." That's the way to run an island.

The rain is pouring down when I get there and Miss Fields, England's most popular singer before this rock 'n' roll nonsense started, is before the fire. It's warm and dry in there and she gives me a cup of tea.

"I've lived here 35 years," she said. "My husband lived next door for 20 years before I met him. He used to look over and see that crazy comedienne with the crazy, dyed red hair. Then we met. We've been married 12 years. My husband has got Capri fever. He doesn't even like to go to Naples. It's a very quiet, peaceful island."

The house she lives in was called the Fortress, and it, too, was a jail. "When I bought it, I used to say it had three rooms and seven cells." The cells have long since been converted into very comfortable, very middle-class English bedrooms. There's no market for prison cells here at all.

In the dining room her husband, who is known as Mr. Boris, a smiling, open-faced Bessarabian, is doing his income tax, cutting out long strips of paper and pasting them together to make a very broad sheet. "Italian taxes are very complicated," he says. "The trouble with this island is that it's build, build, build. Push, push, push. Sixty thousand people come to Capri every year just to spend the day. They try to see everything in one day. Push, push, push—it destroys the calm."

"I'm interested in Capri's crime problem," I say.

"Crime problem?" he laughs. "We had a little crime wave years ago. A series of petty thefts. They looked all over the island and couldn't catch the thief. He must sleep somewhere and, after all, it's a small island. Where can he be? He was sleeping in the jail. Only place they didn't look."

The Jet Set Is Talking

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Socialite-actress Dina Merrill and plain but good actor Cliff Robertson are a conversation piece for the jet set who talk in terms of marriage. Dina is separated from just-as-rich and just-as-social Stanley Rumbough.

One reason for the break-up in the Jack Webb marriage is an actor who was once married to a famous singer... Ariene Dahl, back from her goodwill trip to South America, found time for some private goodwill in Rio with "Baby" Pignatari. However, Baby, having just regained his freedom-fun, is not in the mood for another marriage, not just yet.

MGM is calling Bobby Morse back to Hollywood for Quick Before It Melts... and the now featureless lot will get busier with 36 Hours, starring James Garner, Eva Marie Saint and Rod Taylor.

Prince Rainier has been cool to Cary Grant, ever since Cary was photographed kissing Princess Grace when she met him at the airport during a visit to the south of France. The Prince was concerned with protocol and all that jazz. He is the only person I have ever heard of who is not 100 per cent enamored of Mr. Grant... and there is only one actor that Princess Grace doesn't care for — Stewart Granger, with whom she made the unsuccessful Green Fire film. This was her only film flop.

Warren Beatty gets the Playmate of the year, in Mickey One. She's Donna Michele, a blue-eyed blonde who shed her all for that glib magazine, and was rewarded with the above title and a role in Beatty's film. But don't get Donna wrong. She is a UCLA graduate. And can she help it if her vital statistics—38-22-37—have plunged her into an unexpected career?

Tony Curtis was paid a mere $65,000 for Operation Petticoat, several years ago. This picture was on an old contract when Tony was not as powerful as he is today.

Now he receives $500,000 per film, plus a percentage. Cary Grant made millions from Petticoat, and in three years, when this top moneymaking picture reverts to Cary, he will have complete ownership. But not for long if Tony is successful in buying the picture from Cary. If he gets it, he will re-release it every five years.

Robert Ryan prefers to live in New York where he has a home. But he may be coming back to Hollywood for a couple of months to star as the pathological menace in Return From Ashes, which Lee Thompson will direct for the Mirisch Brothers. Robert was a devout Californian until he starred on Broadway in Mr. President. He liked New York so much he even moved his mother back east.

Shirley Booth's 25 per cent of Hazel will make her a triple millionaire. The series has been renewed for a fourth season. And with her weekly pay cheque of $5,000, Shirley is bidding on two homes in Beverly Hills, one for herself, and one for her sister who will come here to live from the east.

Van Johnson's daughter, 16-year-old Schuyler, is determined to be an actress. If she would make up with her father who adores her, I am sure she could get some valuable tips. Van had to make it the hard way. And perhaps that's the best way. When they are casting for Dr. Doolittle, how about Van for the title role?

Tony Perkins was sporting a Beatle haircut before there were Beatles. Tony hasn't used a brush or comb for three years. He gets that wild effect by running his fingers through his locks. Tony's last picture in France didn't do too well. His next sounds better — that Battle picture in Norway.

I hear Menta Berger, who had the other German girl role in The Victors, was terribly jealous because Elke Sommer had all the nude scenes. You see, in Europe they regard the female form as a natural phenomenon. They make no bones about baring all.

No Commitment

Hansard Study Approved

A big debate flared up in the legislature yesterday about whether a verbatim report is needed for proceedings in the House.

When the smoke cleared away and a division was called, the House approved by a 42-to-6 vote a resolution asking the government to "consider the advisability" of printing a Hansard.

Six Social Credit members, including party whip Bert Price, Victoria MLA Waldo Skillings and Esquimalt MLA Herbert Bruch, formed the sole opposition when a division was called.

The resolution introduced by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan was supported by Social as well as Liberal and NDP members.

Premier Bennett refused to commit the government to publication of a verbatim report of the proceedings, but said they would continue to study the question.

Attendance and participation in debates is essential to good government and members have to be in the House to know what is going on, he said.

Mr. Bennett then left the chamber and missed about 20 minutes of debate on the resolution.

Before he left, Premier Bennett said, "The government will accept the resolution but will make no commitment when it comes into effect, because this is a study the government is carrying on from year to year."

Encourages Turnout

Absence of a Hansard encourages the turnout of all members for the debates, he said.

This is in contrast to Washington, where members of Congress can file their speeches without bothering to deliver them in Congress, and to Ottawa, where members rely on Hansard to the point where attendance is less than 25 per cent for important debates, said Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bruch, who spoke against the resolution, suggested debate would suffer if there is a Hansard.

Debate of the House is not for public consumption and "we are not catering to an outside audience," he said. "We are not here to debate for the record but to solve the issues facing B.C."

Waving a copy of the Saskatchewan Hansard, Mr. Bruch said that legislature "took a whole session" to debate a resolution which was clearly within jurisdiction of the federal government.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault said it is "incredible" that a government with an annual budget of about $400,000,000 does not have a transcript of what goes on in the House.

He was also in favor of broadcasting key debates from the legislature and said he is "tired of the battle of news paper clippings which goes on in every session of the House. It is a battle of who has the most clippings."

Nothing Done in Year

Mr. Macfarlane pointed out that nothing has been done about a Hansard since the government accepted a similar resolution a year ago.

Mr. Strachan said he has noticed a tendency for the speeches to become shorter in the House in recent years. "Maybe they are shorter, but they are shorter."

Premier Bennett asked from across the floor, "What are you smoking these days?"

Mr. Strachan continued: "Some of the statements and chit-chat that goes across the floor would not be said for fear it would go on the record." If there were a Hansard in the House.

Alexander Matthew (S.C. Vancouver Centre) felt a Hansard would "add appreciably to the dignity of the House."

Alex Macdonald (NDP, Vancouver East) challenged Premier Bennett to vote against the resolution if he is not prepared to authorize a Hansard. "The only inference which can be taken is you are afraid to see your policies in print," Mr. Bennett laughed.

At Least $100

Fees Urged to Fight 'Blackmail Bidding'

The legislature's committee on forestry has recommended bidding fees of at least $100 on all publicly-managed Crown timber put up for sale in B.C.

The committee's report on its 1964 hearings, tabled yesterday afternoon, said the fees would be used "with respect to blackmail bidding."

BUT NOT LESS
It recommended the bidding fee be set by the Forest Service at between one and five per cent of the bidding price but not less than $100.

The recommendation follows introduction Tuesday of an enabling amendment to the Forest Act by Forest Minister Williston.

The amendment would allow the minister to set a bidding fee for all bidders except the holder of a timber quota who asked for the sale within his own quota. The fee would be returned only to a winning bidder. The amendment follows complaints by logging operators before the committee that the present statute encourages blackmail bids.

At present quota holders may be bid against by anyone in sealed tenders. The quota holder may win the sale by matching the competition but loses the portion of his quota involved if he fails to meet the competition. The operators pointed out to the committee anyone who wanted to bid against a quota holder for spots or other reasons had nothing to lose and stood to win the quota.

DISALLOW SALES
The committee also recommended the minister still be allowed continued use of his discretion to disallow high-bid sales.

The report recommended that the committee's terms of reference be broadened next year to include pulp harvesting licences and the Forest Service's appraisal system. It recommended against creation of any new royal commission on forestry.

Slanted Textbooks Blamed for Rift

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Slanted textbooks on Canadian history and the religious division in the school system contribute to a perpetuation of the "two solitudes" in Quebec, the royal commission on biculturalism was told Wednesday.

The consensus at an informal meeting attended by 350 community leaders and students at the University of Sherbrooke was that the French- and English-speaking groups in the Eastern Townships have very few cultural and social relations.

FACTUAL BOOKS
Many participants suggested that more factual and objective history textbooks are needed in both languages to dispel misunderstandings. The meeting, attended by commission co-chairman Andre Laurendeau, was held simultaneously with a similar gathering in Trois-Rivières, Que., attended by co-chairman Desjardins Dumais.

NEW CONDITIONS
Mr. Laurendeau said in an opening statement that the meaning of the whole inquiry is to find new conditions under which the two main language groups will agree to live together in a spirit of understanding.

Quebec's division between Roman Catholic and Protestant schools was mentioned as a factor holding back bilingualism. Most qualified French teachers in the province were legally barred from teaching in English-speaking schools because they were Catholic and the pupils were Protestant, and vice-versa.

MLAs Again Pigeonhole B.C. Public Access Bill

A public access bill which has loomed over the forest industry for two consecutive legislative sessions went back into seclusion yesterday for another year.

The bill was drawn up more than a year ago, when public clamor for access to private timberlands and logging roads was at its height.

PIGEONHOLED

When industry pledged co-operation in opening up access, the bill was pigeonholed.

This year the legislative committee on public access brought it out again and briefly dusted it off.

Industrial briefs stressed the progress made on a voluntary basis during the past year, and protested the proposed legislation was unnecessary.

Campus

No Move Made For Clinic

The University of Victoria's Lansdowne campus would make a good site for a mental health clinic, Saanich MLA John Tisdalle insisted last night.

He renewed a plea made earlier during health department estimates in the legislature.

He asked Works Minister Chant during debate on estimates for his department whether the board of directors at the senate of the university had approached him about the possibility of using the land for mental health purposes.

Mr. Chant replied no one has approached his department about such a scheme.

Mr. Tisdalle requested a survey of the property with a view to using it for this purpose instead of land acquired on Lee Street near Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Members Fed Up To Sills

Several MLAs complained last night about inadequate facilities for the members.

The complaints came during debate on the public works department estimates.

Works Minister Chant told them "we recognize that to be the case," but he could offer no solution to the problem.

Cyril Shelford (S.C. Omineca) said things are so crowded "I have seen members sitting on window sills dictating letters—and believe me, that's going too far."

The house took 90 minutes to approve the total public works estimates of $13,561,826, including the minister's salary vote of $25,800.

Eyesight Lost

Bullets Bare Love Triangle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leonard Nade, 42, was charged with attempted murder Wednesday in a case police described as a love triangle shooting.

Nade is accused of having twice shot David Van Duzen Tuesday night in a west-end apartment occupied by Van Duzen and a woman who gave her name as Frances Van Duzen.

Van Duzen is in fair condition in hospital with bullet wounds in the abdomen and head. Doctors said he has lost the sight of one eye but the other may be saved. He is given a fair chance of survival.

Police said the shooting occurred after a man appeared at the Van Duzen apartment and threatened to shoot the woman. Van Duzen stepped in front of the man and was shot in the stomach.

Officers said the gunman then threatened to shoot the woman but the wounded Van Duzen distracted him with a plea to "call an ambulance." The gunman shot the prone man in the head with a .45-calibre pistol, then he fled.

Police later picked up a suspect in the waterfront area.

Homes Entered

Three break-ins were reported in Saanich homes last night. The homes were at 1280 Union, 1265 Union and 3371 Maplewood. It was not immediately known if anything was missing.

$1,500,000 Assured

Provincial officials confirmed yesterday the federal government has agreed to share the cost of a new provincial museum and archives at Government and Belleville.

The federal government is willing to pay half the cost of the $3,000,000 centennial project. A cost-sharing agreement will be signed in about two weeks, said officials here.

View Royal Protest

Smoke Not His Baby Says Fire Marshal

Plumper Bay Sawmills Limited yesterday refused to comment about a fly ash and smoke nuisance in the View Royal area—and area fire marshal A. E. Beasley said he had no jurisdiction in the matter.

Local residents are angered because they say smoke from cone burners at the sawmills is rolling clothes hung outside to dry.

But said Mr. Beasley, "I can't take any action—unless there is a fire hazard. It isn't, so it's out of my jurisdiction."

Wig Flipper Just Wants Wig

City police yesterday reported probably the first time they were ever called in when a girl literally flipped her wig.

They were called to Maplewood Avenue when a wig was discovered after what appeared to have been a struggle between a girl and a boy at 2:15 a.m.

The girl phoned the police station about 9 a.m. to say she did not wish to bother about the incident but just wanted her wig back.

Vietnam Boss Declares War On Slackers

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces battered regular government troops in a devastating daylight ambush south of Saigon today and South Vietnamese strongman Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh pledged to mobilize the general public for the war against Red guerrillas.

Khanh threatened to shoot or imprison slackers and said there are two South Viet Nams—the countryside where people are fighting and dying every day in the battle against the Communists, and Saigon "where it's just twisting every night."

Shortly after the general spoke, it was disclosed that a Communist Viet Cong battalion of some 600 men had attacked a battalion of Vietnamese regulars 50 miles south of this capital.

Preliminary reports indicated the government forces suffered at six men killed and 26 wounded, with an undetermined number missing. Communist losses, if any, were not known.

The government troops, numbering about 300, were conveying a supply mission to Ba Than when the Communist guerrillas staged their bold ambush just south of the provincial capital of Kien Hoa. The Red forces were believed to have captured a supply of weapons from the Communist Viet Cong battalion convoy.

To Wenner-Gren Friends Socreds 'Playing Santa'

The government is playing Santa Claus to its Wenner-Gren friends, an NDP member charged last night.

Leo Nimsick (NDP, Cranbrook) said the legislature a bill to give the Peace River Power Development Company Ltd. the power to appeal for more money in the courts is "just another Santa Claus deal to help out the friends of this government."

The bill allows the Peace River company to appeal the $8,020,328 compensation figure set by the comptroller-general in 1961 for hydro-electric power surveys and studies made in the Peace River area taken over by the Power Development Act in 1961.

It drew heavy fire from the NDP side of the House last night but passed second reading on a division of 33 to 13, with Liberal ranks voting on the side of the government.

John Squire (NDP, Alberni) said it is "a question of whether somebody who's already got their pockets lined with fur this time."

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan told the House "there isn't much chance of Wenner-Gren going broke when we pay them $8,000,000 and give them a bill to come back for more."

"The Wenner-Gren group has raided the public treasury of B.C. enough," he said.

ver East) said the government in effect is issuing the company "a special invitation" to sue for more money.

Alex Macdonald (NDP, Vancouver East) said the late Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren

Crash Victim Conscious

Peter Shaw, 17, of 1586 Verling, regained consciousness in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday. He had been unconscious since a car he was driving went off the road March 12. A companion, Richard Fletcher, 19, of 1073 Stelly's Crossroad, was transferred to Naden Hospital Monday.

was a man who "flatly broke every undertaking he ever made to this province yet the government has paid him over $8,000,000."

Attorney-General Bonner, who closed debate for the government, charged that the hatred displayed by the NDP in the legislature earlier against the Wenner-Gren interests "was almost pathological."

"You pursue the same view even after that man's death," the Attorney-General told the NDP.

He said the bill is only a re-enactment of the principles on which the House based its approval in 1961 and that the alternative is to display carelessness in the legal safeguards.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

BEAUMONT SPORT DELUXE COUPE

Owner's View

How does an owner see his new Acadian Beaumont? With great pride! For Beaumont is '64's most exciting new car with a sparkling personality all its own. Look at the roofline and the lilt of the rear fender curve. Sheer poetry in steel! Of course, when you're enjoying Beaumont's V8 or 6-cylinder performance, everyone else will be enjoying its good looks. If you go in for off-beat views, look under a Beaumont—that's where you'll see the Full Coil suspension that provides a smooth, cushioned ride. Owners point out that's the comfort view. If you go in for panoramics, take a tour around a Beaumont—it won't take long because Beaumont is trimmer than the big cars. Or, if you like conducted tours, give your own. Take the whole family. Show them Beaumont's interior. They'll love the room. And they'll compliment you on your choice of fabrics. But if you're like most Beaumont owners, you'll keep one special view for your own. That's the most satisfying one. The one behind the wheel. Enjoy it at your Acadian-Pontiac dealer's today.

Rom Knott

Park to Honor Sportsman At Brentwood

To Be Installed

To be installed as master councillor of the Signal Hill Chapter of the Order of De Molay, is Jim Power, of 216 St. Charles. Installation is set for 7:30 p.m., Saturday in the First United Fellowship Hall. Also to be seated are Barry Warner, senior councillor; Wayne Blake, junior councillor; and Miss Coral Smith as Chapter Sweetheart.

A two-acre site just a few yards from his former home at 913 Sluggett Road, Brentwood, will commemorate well-known sportsman Rom Knott for the work he did in youth circles.

The newly-formed Rom Knott Memorial Park committee decided to buy the land, in Wallace Drive, near Brentwood Community Club Hall, for $4,000, Monday.

SOFTBALL DIAMOND

It will be developed as a softball diamond for school children with other additions, depending on contributions to the memorial fund.

Next Monday, the committee will stage an intense canvass in Brentwood, Sidney, Sooke and Cadboro Bay. Minimum objective: $5,000.

HIGHWAY CRASH

Mr. Knott was killed March 4 in a traffic accident on Patricia Bay Highway.

Around 2,000 handbills are being distributed by the committee, giving a short history of his work among juveniles and outlining the purpose and use of the donations for the Memorial Park.

Thief Finds Chow Mein Attraction

The idea of a Chinese meal apparently was a main attraction for one would-be thief overnight Tuesday.

Victoria police said a delivery man for a Chinese restaurant was taking some Chinese food to an address on Menzies Street when a man snatched two orders of chow mein from his car and fled up a fire escape.

The chow mein was later recovered on the fire escape.

'Completely Unfounded'

Carlow Complaints Denied by Bonner

Attorney-General Bonner yesterday branded as "completely unfounded" the public statements made by fugitive Frank Carlow about conditions at Colquitz jail.

Carlow, who escaped from jail with Richard Rodriguez Feb. 23, surrendered the next day to Saanich Det.-Sgt. Joseph Armstrong after telling the press his story of conditions inside the jail.

Rodriguez is still at large. Mr. Bonner said, on the heels of a confirmation from former Colquitz inmate Leslie Hurlburt that Carlow's story is true, he received three reports on Carlow's charges and security conditions at the jail.

"There is no basis in fact for the complaints voiced in the press. I believe a very thorough review has been conducted," said Mr. Bonner.

"Accommodation and conditions are as suitable as any prison conditions are ever likely to be."

McGee President

City Boys' Club Elects Officers

The Boys' Club of Victoria has chosen its slate of officers for the 1964 term.

T. D'Arcy McGee was re-elected president of the organization. He will serve his second term in that post this year.

Other officers named at the annual meeting this week are: Bernie Van Aggelen, vice-president; Charles Hewitt, secretary; Robert Phipps, treasurer, and Ronald Havard, executive director.

Directors for the 1964 term will be Charles Mullins, Alan Macfarlane, Douglas Patterson, W. A. Pearson, William Ostler, Charles Price, Frank Shandley, Tom Clements, Fred Tanner, Howard Tomlin, Brook Douglas, Edward Gudewill, A. H. Westinhouse, Robert Harman, E. W. Finch-Noyes, W. G. Heaney and C. McIntosh.

Soviets Ignore Warning To Free U.S. Airman

BERLIN (UPI)—The Russians yesterday ignored a sharp new U.S. warning to free three downed American airmen held captive in East Germany. They also refused to let an American doctor treat one of the men suffering from a broken leg and arm.

In a diplomatic protest delivered in Moscow, the U.S. warned the Soviet Union refusal to release the three Americans, held after their unarmed plane was shot down by a Soviet fighter, would jeopardize U.S.-Soviet relations.

Shortly afterward, a U.S. Air Force surgeon travelled to a Red Army hospital in Magdeburg, East Germany, on a vain mission to treat the airman who was injured when he parachuted from the plane.

The surgeon said the Russians refused to permit him to take the officer back to the West or let him treat the flier's broken limbs.

The doctor was allowed to visit the man for 90 minutes, but Russian officers were present throughout the visit and prevented him from questioning the flier about the plane incident.

Sandwell Rites Friday

Funeral services will be held Friday, at McCall's Chapel, 2 p.m., for Mrs. Marion Street Sandwell, 85, widow of B. K. Sandwell, former editor of Saturday Night, Toronto. She died Tuesday night in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Mrs. Sandwell came to Victoria seven years ago and lived at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Socred MLAs Lash Socreds

By TERRY HAMMOND

Four government members yesterday lashed out during final reading of a new Mental Health Act at the inadequacy of B.C.'s facilities for retarded children.

The attacks were spurred by sections of the Act which make mental institution superintendents the final arbiters on admission of patients. Previously the courts could order admissions.

Two of the four Socreds who attacked retarded facilities also attacked the admissions section of the bill — but then voted for it.

RIGHT DEPRIVED
NDP members charged that in cancelling the authority of the courts the government was depriving the public of the right to care and treatment. Gordon Dowling (NDP, Burnaby) spearheaded NDP opposition to the admissions of the bill calling it "a retrograde step of the most distressing kind."

Availability of accommodations, he said, has been substituted for the need for treatment.

JOKERS IN IT
Socred Whip Bert Price launched criticism from the government side of the house by saying the new act had "jokers in it so somebody can pick and choose" those to be admitted.

"I certainly question the right of a legislature to take away rights which have been the rights of the people for many generations," he said. At Woodlands school for retarded children, he went on, there was an admitted waiting list "a mile long."

Pressure on Welfare

Suspended Social Worker Here

A suspended B.C. social worker from Prince George said in Victoria yesterday she would like to have her job back—but that's not why she came here.

"I can't deny I came down here from Prince George to try to put pressure on the government to improve its welfare program," said Mrs. Bridget Moran.

Mrs. Moran was suspended by the provincial welfare department five months ago at the height of a controversy which she sparked late last year with a scathing open letter to Premier Bennett.

Three other Prince George social workers who were suspended at the same time have been reinstated.

Mrs. Moran described herself as a compulsive social worker who will be "lost" if she isn't reinstated.

But she doesn't plan on pleading for her job—she has a lawyer looking into possible grounds for appeal.

Welfare officials said they didn't know whether Mrs. Moran would be reinstated. But reinstatement or not, she plans to make her mark on government welfare policy.

As an opening gambit she will continue to sit in the public galleries of the legislature throughout debate on the estimates of Welfare Minister Black.

She said she doesn't care if the debate takes a week. "I've come down here to see just how the provincial govern-

Heathman 'Just a Citizen'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Police Chief Robert Taft Wednesday night said that as far as his department is concerned the case of Charles Heathman is closed.

Heathman, twice tried for the 1960 murder of a Vernon, B.C., newsboy, is living in a Winnipeg rooming house under an assumed name.

Chief Taft said, "It would not be proper for a police force to put any private citizen under surveillance."

"As far as we're concerned he's just another citizen."

Heathman's married sister in Winnipeg said she has not seen him or heard from him since his reported arrival in the city last week.

ARGOS, Greece (AP)—Police reported Wednesday a girl hurled herself into the path of a freight train but was saved because her dress caught on a signal wire. The wire pulled up a red stop signal. The train engineer halted the train in time.

Mortars Fire In Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters)—Fighting involving mortars broke out in Cyprus early today at the small Turkish-Cypriot village of Ghasivora, 40 miles west of Nicosia, a British military spokesman said here.

NICOSIA (Reuters)—The buildup of Canadian troops for the United Nations Cyprus peace force continued Wednesday.

A Canadian military spokesman said 33 Canadians were flown in during the day, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 446. The total Canadian force will be about 1,000 men.

Party Safe Stone Age Tribe Foiled

LIMA (AP)—Unconfirmed reports reached here Wednesday that 50 Peruvian soldiers have rescued a mixed party of engineers and soldiers from a week-long attack by savage, stone-age Indians.

These reports, printed by Lima newspapers, said the whole party was en route through the Amazon jungle toward the Yari River where a gunboat was waiting to pick them up.

Armed soldiers in the beleaguered party held off the Indians until help came, these reports said.

RADIO CONTACT

However, the ministry of education had nothing beyond news released by spokesmen earlier. This said that radio contact had been made with the group who said "they are closing in on us."

As the message cracked through the steamy air, torrential rains slowed down rescue troops hacking their way through jungle to the knoll where the engineers were making a stand.

STILL A CHANCE

A ministry of education spokesman said if the weather cleared there was still a chance for the 50 to 75 soldiers to reach the beleaguered party in time, but otherwise Indians might wipe them out.

The trapped party of 30 civilians and eight army engineers set out five weeks ago from Requena, 550 air miles north of Lima, to map a road through the trackless jungles to the Brazilian frontier 75 miles to the east.

STUMBLE UPON VILLAGE

A week ago, according to sketchy reports, they stumbled into a village of hostile Indians who attacked. One engineer was killed and two others were wounded.

The survey team was driven to a tiny knoll, barely visible from the air. This became a fortress to stave off repeated attacks by the Indians.

URGENT MESSAGE

Using a mobile radio transmitter, engineers tapped out an urgent Morse Code message picked up by a military post in Iquitos, an Amazon River port 100 miles north of Requena.

Transport planes dropped food, ammunition, medicine and other supplies. It is impossible to drop parachutists to reinforce the engineers or rescue them by helicopter because of the dense jungles and frequent tropical rain storms.

Heil-Hitler Shout Greets Vancouver Boss

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver seamen gathered angrily in their downtown hiring hall Wednesday following news of the removal of Hal Banks as president of the SIU.

About 100 men clustered around John Meredith, newly-appointed local representative of the federal government trusteeship as he walked into the building.

At one point Mr. Meredith, an official of the New Westminster National Employment Office, was greeted by a shout of "Heil Hitler." He took the name of the man who did the shouting.

Simultaneously, commissioners hired by Mr. Meredith took up 24-hour duty at the hall.

Mr. Meredith conferred briefly with Rod Heinekey, Seafarers' local vice-president. Mr. Heinekey had no comment following the meeting.

Mr. Meredith denied suggestions by seamen that Mr. Heinekey had been "muzzled" or his dismissal was imminent.

The seamen who crowded the hall claimed that, in the dismissal of Mr. Banks, they had lost their rights as citizens. Some charged the government was turning over the union to the rival CBRT.

Seaman Frank Benson sent a protest wire to Mr. Justice Victor Dryer in Montreal, chairman of the trusteeship which fired Banks. He said the wire was signed by 150 of his mates and read: "We protest the arrogant, overbearing action in dismissing our president without consulting the membership. We demand an explanation of this vicious act."

Mr. Meredith said he had been called to Montreal for consultations with the trustees and had taken up his new position here Monday.

'Hear, Hear'

MPs Hail Banks' Dismissal

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of Hal Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was greeted with applause when it was announced in the Commons Wednesday.

Labour Minister MacEachen said the government's three-man board of trustees decided to dump the 55-year-old union boss "after long consideration of the affairs and interests of the SIU of Canada and of the maritime industry."

He said the trustees — appointed over the SIU and four other marine unions last October—decided that it was not in the interests of the SIU, the shipping industry or the public at large that Mr. Banks remain in office.

OBVIOUS APPROVAL

"Hear, hear," shouted MPs as they thumped their desks in obvious approval of the action.

Former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr said there seemed to be "more truth than fiction" in reports that the ouster of Mr. Banks was approved in an agreement involving the SIU, the United States government and the Canadian government.

David Orlikow, NDP member for Winnipeg North, said he greeted the announcement with a good deal of enthusiasm. "It is certainly the first step in what has been needed for a long time," he said.

EARLY SESSION

He proposed an early session of the Commons industrial relations committee so that the trustees could report to MPs about other plans cleaning up labor lawlessness of the Great Lakes.

Support for the ouster of Mr. Banks was voiced by Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, and William J. Smith, national president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers. Thirteen CBRT marine locals are under the trusteeship.

Trustees Move In

Railwayman Running SIU

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, one of Canada's most powerful and controversial union leaders for the last 15 years, was removed from office Wednesday by orders of the board of trustees over maritime unions.

His place was taken by an employee of the trustees for the last two months, Charles Turner of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

LOUDSPEAKER

At least 50 RCMP officers and city policemen surrounded the downtown Montreal headquarters of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) when announcement of Banks' dismissal as president of the 14,000-member union was made over a loudspeaker.

Some of the fiercely-loyal supporters of Banks who frequent union headquarters objected to the takeover after SIU vice-President Leonard McLaughlin told them to "remain peaceful."

Black Death Oozing Toward Island Shores

Retired fisheries officer Gordon Barrie, 2860 Foul Bay Road, last night described how he witnessed a huge oil deposit in the sea off northern Washington coast devastate clam beds and kill sea birds by the thousands this week.

The oil deposit was from a fuel barge grounded off Pacific Beach.

Mr. Barrie, for 37 years a Pacific coast fisheries officer, warned the deposit could bring an oozing black death to clam beds and shore wildlife on Vancouver Island and wreak inestimable damage.

The razor clam beds of Long Beach, at Tofino, where Mr. Barrie was stationed until recently, could be the first area affected, he said.

Mr. Barrie and his wife were on the Washington coast on a razor clamdigging holiday. They are friends of Mrs. Ted Phelps, who manages T & R Clam Co. of Ocean City.

"Mrs. Phelps had orders for more than $20,000 worth of clams this season," said Mr. Barrie. "And she was able to salvage only $200 worth."

"It was a horrible and shocking sight to see all the thousands of dead birds and tens of thousands of clams carpeting the shore."

Earl Coe, chairman of the state pollution control commission, was reported as the man who gave the order for the barge to pump off its cargo after the vessel grounded.

"His decision was a thoughtless one in my opinion," said Mr. Barrie. "He has broken down the whole international code of protecting migratory fish and birds."

"If this action had been carried out in Canada, the people responsible would have been prosecuted immediately."

"They could have pumped the oil into a railway tanker not 200 feet above sea level, right on the coast. Instead, they have run the risk of causing inestimable damage to wildlife along the shores of the Island."

"This has happened three times along our shores in 15 years of my experience."

"It is well known that there are currents which could bring the pollution up the coast. It's a shameful affair."

New Effort Friday to End Shipyard Dispute

By DON GAIN

Victoria shipyard workers are losing $25,000 a day in wages in the six-week-old strike but shipyard officials say that is only part of losses to the city's economy, which now are counted in the millions of dollars.

New attempts will be made Friday to settle the strike but meanwhile Victoria's two major shipyards and one in Vancouver stand idle.

Victoria Machinery Depot, Yarrow's and Burrard Dry Dock Friday will make a new proposal at 10 a.m. in a labor department office in Vancouver. Deputy labor minister William Sands will represent the government.

At the suggestion of Mr. Sands each of the 22 unions in the strike will be represented and an executive from each shipyard will attend.

More than 1,400 workers in Victoria have lost about $750,000 in pay since the strike started Feb. 5.

Stalled by the strike is work on two government ferries, an oceanographic ship, numerous barges and repair and refit work.

In Ottawa Victoria Liberal MP David Groos said last week his efforts to secure government contracts for shipbuilding and repair work are being hampered by the strike.

He said it would be a disaster if west coast shipyards were to lose irreplaceable contracts to the east coast because of delays caused by the strike.

Mr. Groos said two major naval ships now tied up in mid-contract in the idle yards are needed without delay by the navy and other naval vessels require refit.

At Yarrow's work is held up on six ship barges, a $1,500,000 self-loading and unloading log barge, a Pacific Naval Laboratory's research vessel and refit of the frigate HMCS New Glasgow.

"Springtime repairs on coastal vessels are waiting to be done," general manager John Wallace said last night. "This is difficult for the various owners."

He estimated close to $2,000,000 in contracts already has been lost.

To mention two such contracts, the Bahamas-based freighter Maratha Endeavour went to Seattle's Todd Shipyard for a $500,000 repair job and was followed by the Greek freighter Elli. Yarrow's was low bidder on these jobs but could not guarantee completion of the work due to the impending strike.

Contract negotiations between the 22 unions and the three shipyards began last July.

When no agreement was reached a conciliation board came up with an offer of a three-year contract with wage increases and welfare benefits totalling 30 cents an hour. The shipyards accepted the recommendation but the unions rejected it Dec. 24.

After a majority strike vote toward the end of January 1,400 shipyard workers in Victoria took to the picket lines Feb. 5, followed by 800 in Vancouver the next day.

During subsequent negotiations the unions agreed to accept 30 cents over two years instead of three but the shipyards turned it down.

Friday's meeting may turn up some common ground for ending the strike.

"I hope it will be fruitful and will lead to a settlement of the dispute," Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said.

New Emergency

Fire Damages IWA 'School'

LAKE COWICHAN — With the memory of the $500,000 high school fire Jan. 22 still fresh, one of the emergency classrooms was badly damaged yesterday in a fire of unknown origin at the IWA Hall here.

Fire Chief B. R. All said the blaze broke out at about 4 p.m., damaging the downstairs office but the prompt response of the volunteer fire brigade confined the blaze and 30 minutes later it was under control.

One of the three emergency classrooms suffered heavy smoke and water damage.

NO ONE INSIDE

Mr. All said the fire marshal's office at Vancouver has been notified and investigators are expected at Lake Cowichan any time.

He said it is believed no one was in the building at the time. The damaged classrooms accommodated about 30 students.

BEING MADE

Arrangements are being made to overcome the new problem.

After the January fire, most of the students were accommodated in emergency quarters at private and church halls, and in the undamaged part of the high school.

Repair work on the damaged school is progressing.

Parkville Youth Cleared

NANAIMO — An Assize Court jury here found a Parkville youth innocent of rape after two hours deliberation last night.

Two Injured as Car Plows Into Stump

NANAIMO — Two Nanaimo residents are in hospital after a motor vehicle accident last night on Extension Road.

Albina Bassanello, of 618 Logan was the driver of a car which went out of control, left the road and crashed into a stump.

She is believed to have suffered a seizure as the result of a recent operation.

Albert Plomiko, the lone passenger in the car, was also taken to hospital with undetermined injuries. Both are in good condition in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital.

RCMP estimated damage to the vehicle at $400.

PARKVILLE — There's a Star-Spangled Banner flying somewhere to the chagrin of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Mount Arrowsmith Branch of the Legion here has forwarded a resolution to the zone council calling for hotel and motel owners to lower the American flag from their rooftops unless its raising is warranted by the visit of U.S. dignitaries.

The branch has also gone on record as favoring the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

Duncan Tractor Link with Northern Wilderness

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — The sweet smell of springtime here and the serene, snow-blanketed valleys and plateaus of the Spatsizi or Red Coat wilderness in northern British Columbia are almost 2,000 miles apart.

The latter, about 300 air miles northwest of Fort St. James, is God's own country to the handful of white people and some Tahltan Indians.

It is one of the last retreats of solitude, a virgin grandeur of nature, and now it is linked with Vancouver Island.

A few days ago the owners of the T. W. Ranch, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Walker, supervised the dismantling of a tractor at the Cowichan Creamery Association here.

The machine is being hauled by truck to Prince George and the Alaska Highway. Sometime before Easter, it will be transferred to a Beaver aircraft at Eddonton Lake to be flown to the last 70 air miles to the ranch.

Although Mr. Walker's ranch is only the smaller of his two enterprises — the other entails the outfitting of hunting and fishing parties — it is important, as it is the home for 70 horses used for hunters and fishermen from many parts of the world.

The ranch is approximately 35 miles from the hunting resort headquarters at Coldfish Lake.

The tractor from Duncan will be the first mechanical vehicle at Spatsizi, and will ease the task of breaking land to grow more feed for stock.

Future plans also call for an upgrading of the horse herd. Mr. Walker, a life-long big game guide and outfitter came from England in 1930, and started his first hunting and fishing resort in the Bella Coola area.

His Canadian-born wife from Nelson was the first white woman when they arrived at their new northern wilderness home in 1948.

After they had sold their business at Bella Coola the couple, a friend, some Indians and a small herd of horses embarked on a two-month, 900-mile ride from the west coast to the Spatsizi wilderness.

They not only crossed some of this world's most beautiful country, but encountered several misadventures. Boarding a leaky scow at Fort St. James, they were almost lost in a storm.

Some of the reservations for expeditions are booked as far ahead as 1967. During the summer months, a total of 30 persons work for the Walkers. One of the main tasks each spring is to fly in three tons of foodstuffs to last until the early snow and frost covers the isolated wilderness.

Then the middle-aged couple returns to their winter residence at Qualicum Beach.

Mrs. Walker said when they first came to Spatsizi, only few of the natives were able to speak English, but she was amazed at their thirst for knowledge.

She said her Indian friends in the wilderness are exceptionally clean and trustworthy.

Of the Coldfish Lake area, Mr. Walker said:

"Such a country provides a last opportunity for the younger generation to appreciate the natural wealth that enabled our early settlers to lay the foundations of a great new world."

Ducks and Eagles Fish in Herring Bonanza

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD — Residents along the waterfront at Fulford were in for a surprise Sunday morning — the sea was full of herring.

"The first time we have seen herring in 33 years," said Leslie Molles, son of the late John Molles, an oldtimer of Salt Spring Island.

It was like old times as the spawning herring boiled through the water to reach the point near the old mill and around the head of the harbor. Captain Molles explained herring stopped coming into Fulford around 1931.

The herring fleet had taken a terrible toll of the herring year after year, until no more herring came into the bays.

With them went the salmon and grise.

It got so that the stories of the great shoals of herring in Fulford were just so many fishing tales to the young people.

But on Sunday, one family went out with hand nets and everyone had a hand in pulling in the fish.

Another oldtimer dug out an equally old-time herring rake — a long pole, flat at the end and with nails driven right along for about two or three feet like a comb — and raked in the silvery fish for family and neighbors.

The herring are caught on the points of nails and tossed into the canoe or boat. Seagulls and ducks have gone mad and gobble fish side by side with big bald-headed eagles. Even the ducks forget they are possibly on the eagles' menu when the taste for herring dulle.

Mrs. R. R. Alton watched seven eagles swooping up the herring outside her home on the waterfront.

The eagle would grab a fish, fly upward to get its balance and, throwing its head back, toss the fish down its throat and swoop back to the sea for more.

The screams of the gulls, the quacks of the ducks and shrill whistle of the eagles combined to make a deafening noise.

Farther along the seething shore, several seals floundered in the shallows to find the herring.

Oldtimers say salmon used to crowd up Valley Creek in Fulford in huge numbers to spawn each autumn.

Nick Stevens of Ladner, member of a fishing family well known here, thinks there could be a great fishing comeback if smaller spawning beds are laid in small, important coastal streams.

He thinks Valley Creek could be improved this way, as dog salmon and coho still spawn in its waters — in small numbers.

Little wonder then that this unexpected shoal of herring caused excitement among fishermen and residents. They hope this is a sign of better times in the fishing around these islands.

Water, Oyster Petitions Under Study

NORTH COWICHAN — A group of taxpayers living in the Maple Bay and Quamichan Lake areas have expressed their concern in a petition about possible contamination of the lake which is used as a drinking water source.

They told North Cowichan council they feel increased motorboat traffic will increase the danger. Their petition will be referred to the medical health officer Dr. Gerald Bonham for comment.

OYSTER ROW

Council will favor the protest of Saltair waterfront residents who will appeal the decision of the department of lands giving a shucking-shed operator permission to process oysters.

In a letter, the Saltair spokesman F. R. Duncanson told council the residents would appreciate the support from North Cowichan although the area concerned is not in the municipality.

Councillors Gerry Smith and Mrs. Elaine Dobbins voiced sympathy with the Saltair residents.

Councillor Smith said, driving up Island he noticed several shucking sheds along the highway and said it is "a disgrace" how some sheds are being operated.

Referring to the Saltair area, noted for high tax assessment, he said, "It is like putting a garbage dump in a high-class residential district."

Faces Morals Trial

NANAIMO — An Edmonton man has been committed for trial to an assize court for the alleged rape of a Nanaimo mother of three.

Robert Glen Ward was originally charged with indecent assault, following an incident which occurred in Nanaimo Sept. 24, 1963.

Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts presided over the day-long preliminary hearing.

Exam Time Looms

NANAIMO — Students at Nanaimo District Senior Secondary School begin the crucial Easter exams Thursday.

The examinations range in length from one hour to two and a half hours and cover every subject taught at the school. The results determine whether students will be required to write final exams in June.

All Grade 13 students and those trying for government scholarships are automatically obliged to write final examinations.

Council Planning Roads

NANAIMO — City council approval of an allotment of $66,757 to enable road construction to continue until the city budget for 1964 is adopted, paves the way for the third year of a six-year plan to reconstruct and pave all gravel roads within the city.

The sum is part of $96,801 necessary for the first phase of this year's operation, which includes streets to be reconstructed and paved by the summer.

Phase two includes streets to be reconstructed by the end of 1964, ready for paving the following year.

Streets scheduled for reconstruction and paving by the end of the summer lie in the south end and the Brechin areas.

Eyesight Lost

Bullets Bare Love Triangle

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leonard Nadu, 42, was charged with attempted murder Wednesday in a case police described as a love triangle shooting.

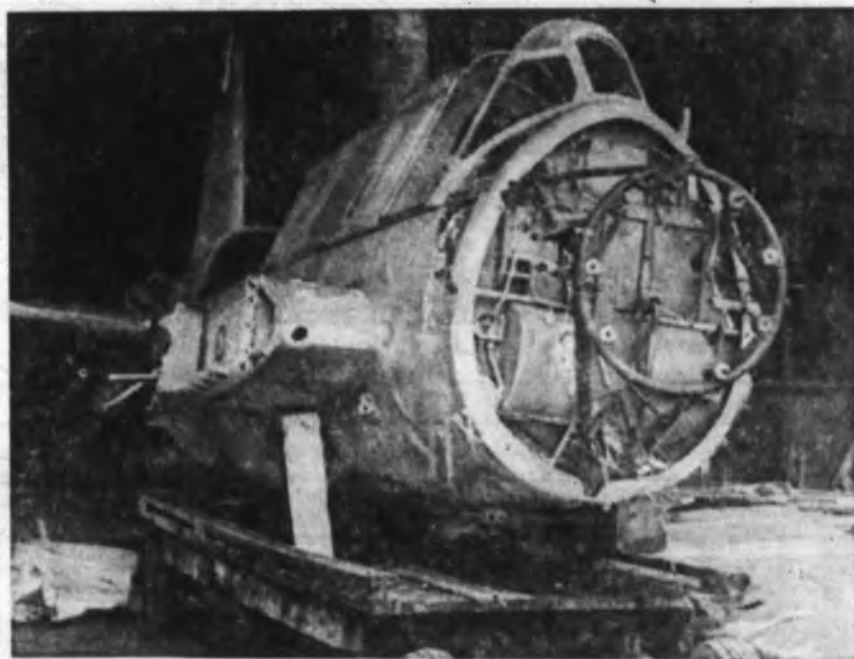

Nadu is accused of having twice shot David Van Duzen Tuesday night in a west-end apartment occupied by Van Duzen and a woman who gave her name as Frances Van Duzen.

Van Duzen is in fair condition in hospital with bullet wounds in the abdomen and head. Doctors said he has lost the sight of one eye but the other may be saved. He is given a fair chance of survival.

Police said the shooting occurred after a man appeared at the Van Duzen apartment and threatened to shoot the woman. Van Duzen stepped in front of the man and was shot in the stomach.

Officers said the gunman then threatened to shoot the woman but the wounded Van Duzen distracted him with a plea to "call an ambulance." The gunman shot the prone man in the head with a .45-calibre pistol, then he fled.

Police later picked up a suspect in the waterfront area.

Forest Museum Shapes Up

NORTH COWICHAN — The first concrete step toward establishment of the planned Cowichan forest museum was made yesterday by North Cowichan council.

Council pledged $8,000 toward four acres of land plus $5,000 for road improvement at the Drinkwater Road and Somenos Lake site.

Mayor Dobson and Reeve Morton have approval of their councils. North Cowichan council made the first offer toward the total price of $37,000.

Mrs. Child, Lake Cowichan village chairman, said Tuesday her council will probably also assist the project.

Progress Seen At Health Meet

NANAIMO — A community health workshop at the Indian hospital ends today and representatives of 20 Indian bands will return to their homes throughout British Columbia.

Mrs. Ethel Martens of the department of national health and welfare, who helped prepare the workshop and assist in its completion, said she is pleased to see the progress being made with public health in Indian communities.

She said much of this progress has been due to health committees within Indian communities. "They have done a lot of good work to create an awareness of existing health hazards and organize the communities to work together to remove some of the hazards," she said.

'POSITIVE FORCE'

"A health committee is really a positive force for better public health in the Indian communities," said Mrs. Martens. Some of the representatives at this workshop were instrumental in the creation of such committees after a similar 10-day workshop three years ago.

Committee members either volunteer or are chosen by chief and council. Usually the chief of an Indian band or one of the councillors is a member.

Mrs. Martens, an adviser in health education, said the collective action of health committees over a period of years has helped reduce the incidence of disease.

She said the results of the last workshop are "very encouraging" and show the Indians are becoming more willing to take the responsibility for the health of their own communities.

Part of this year's workshop included a field trip to the Nanaimo city garbage dump in Cedar and the Duncan garbage dump, which is situated on the Duncan Indian reserve.

The Indian representatives were able to observe first-hand the advantages and disadvantages of this type of open dumping and discuss the possibility of its success in their own communities.

During the workshop, the Indians have been free to break up their own discussion groups to weigh the advisability of certain public health measures and discuss their own problems.

Mrs. Martens said the group seems to be picking up the idea of individual Indian responsibility "very well."

The course is sponsored jointly by the Indian affairs branch of citizenship and immigration and medical services branch of the department of national health and welfare.

Appeal Heads Chosen

How does an owner see his new Acadian Beaumont? With great pride! For Beaumont is '64's most exciting new car with a sparkling personality all its own. Look at the roofline and the lilt of the rear fender curve. Sheer poetry in steel! Of course, when you're enjoying Beaumont's V8 or 6-cylinder performance, everyone else will be enjoying its good looks. If you go in for off-beat views, look under a Beaumont—that's where you'll see the Full Coil suspension that provides a smooth, cushioned ride. Owners point out that's the comfort view. If you go in for panoramics, take a tour around a Beaumont—it won't take long because Beaumont is trimmer than the big cars. Or, if you like conducted tours, give your own. Take the whole family. Show them Beaumont's interior. They'll love the room. And they'll complement you on your choice of fabrics. But if you're like most Beaumont owners, you'll keep one special view for your own. That's the most satisfying one. The one behind the wheel. Enjoy it at your Acadian-Pontiac dealer's today.

By TERRY HAMMOND

Four government members yesterday lashed out during final reading of a new Mental Health Act at the inadequacy of B.C.'s facilities for retarded children.

The attacks were spurred by sections of the act which make mental institution superintendents the final arbiters on admission of patients. Previously the courts could order admissions.

Two of the four Socreds who attacked retarded facilities also attacked the admissions section of the bill — but then voted for it.

NDP members charged that in cancelling the authority of the courts the government was depriving the public of the right to care and treatment.

Gordon Dowling (NDP, Burnaby) spearheaded NDP opposition to the admissions of the bill calling it "a retrograde step of the most disastrous kind."

Availability of accommodations, he said, has been substituted for the need for treatment.

JOKERS IN IT

Socred Whip Bert Price launched criticism from the government side of the house by saying the new act had "jokers in it so somebody can pick and choose" those to be admitted.

"I certainly question the right of a legislature to take away rights which have been the rights of the people for many generations," he said.

At Woodlands school for retarded children, he went on, there was an admitted waiting list "a mile long."

Heathman 'Just a Citizen'

WINNIPEG (CP)—Police Chief Robert Taft Wednesday night said that as far as his department is concerned the case of Charles Heathman is closed.

Heathman, twice tried for the 1960 murder of a Vernon, B.C., newboy, is living in a Winnipeg rooming house under an assumed name.

Poison Camera For de Gaulle?

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Police Wednesday tightened the security guard around French President de Gaulle after receiving reports a French terrorist had arrived in Mexico to try to kill him.

The terrorist was identified as Louis Honorat de Conde, a 25-year-old student who took part in an unsuccessful attempt on de Gaulle's life in a Paris suburb, Aug. 22, 1962.

Mexican police said the French Surete told them to watch for a fake camera with a poison dart which might be used against de Gaulle. They were reported to have halted and searched several people. De Gaulle, seemingly unconcerned, continued his heavy official schedule. He was being watched closely by his bodyguards and Mexican agents because of two breakdowns in security precautions. Enthusiastic crowds surged through police lines to reach de Gaulle and shake his hand. The beaming president made no effort to halt them.

Signal Failure

Mortars Fire In Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuters)—Fighting involving mortars broke out in Cyprus early today at the small Turkish-Cypriot village of Ghaniveran, 40 miles west of Nicosia, a British military spokesman said here.

NICOSIA (Reuters)—The buildup of Canadian troops for the United Nations Cyprus peace force continued Wednesday.

A Canadian military spokesman said 53 Canadians were flown in during the day, bringing the Canadian contingent on the island to 446. The total Canadian force will be about 1,000 men.

Meanwhile, the Canadian aircraft carrier Boonventure sailed for Cyprus from Halifax with about 100 men and equipment. (See story, picture, Page 3.)
Cypriot Foreign Minister Spy-

Dirtiest Job in UN Policing

By AARON R. KINFRAK

UNITED NATIONS—Canadians serving in the UN Cyprus force have probably the dirtiest and most dangerous job in the history of the UN peacekeeping operations—even dirtier and more dangerous than in the Congo.

It is no secret at UN headquarters that the Greek Cypriot government of President Makarios wants to use the UN force as a shield to suppress the Turkish Cypriot minority.

It is also no secret that the Turkish minority wants the UN troops to protect them while they seek to partition the island.

The ironic part is that Western countries, like Canada, agreed to sending the force in order to forestall the goals of both.

The duty of the force is to keep both communities apart for three months while a UN mediator seeks a compromise which will allow the two communities to live in peace.

Because of the intricacies of UN politics (i.e. the Soviet veto in the Security Council) the duties of the force have never been clearly defined.

The resolution authorizing the force was deliberately vague. In fact, some clauses are outright contradictions approved by the council to

RUBY FAMILY FIRES BELLI

DALLAS (AP)—Melvin Belli, the controversial lawyer, has been fired as chief defence counsel for Jack Ruby, who was convicted and sentenced to death Saturday for the slaying of Lee Oswald.

Ruby's sister, Mrs. Eva Grant, said she sent a letter airmail Wednesday night to Belli's California office saying his services no longer were wanted. (See also Page 29.)

The Ruby family and the defendant himself "were dissatisfied with the defence presented by Belli and expressed shock at the tirade he delivered after Saturday's verdict," Mrs. Grant said.

Peru Party Saved

LIMA (AP)—Unconfirmed reports reached here Wednesday that 50 Peruvian soldiers have resumed a mixed party of engineers and soldiers from a week-long attack by savage, stone-age Indians.

These reports, printed by Lima newspapers, said the whole party was en route through the Amazon jungle toward the Yaravi River where a gunboat was waiting to pick them up.

Armed soldiers in the beleaguered party held off the Indians until help came, these reports said.

RADIO CONTACT

However, the ministry of education had nothing beyond news released by spokesmen earlier. This said that radio contact had been made with the group who said "they are closing in on us."

As the message crackled through the steamy air, torrential rains slowed down rescue troops hacking their way through jungle to the knoll where the engineers were making a stand.

STILL A CHANCE

A ministry of education spokesman said if the weather cleared there was still a chance for the 50 to 75 soldiers to reach the beleaguered party in time, but otherwise Indians might wipe them out.

Banks' Move Cheers MPs

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of Hal Banks as president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada was greeted with applause when it was announced in the Commons Wednesday.

Labor Minister MacEachen said the government's three-man board of trustees decided to dump the 55-year-old union boss "after long consideration of the affairs and interests of the SIU of Canada and of the maritime industry."

He said the trustees — appointed over the SIU and four other marine unions last October—decided that it was not in the interests of the SIU, the shipping industry or the public at large that Mr. Banks remain in office.

"Hear, hear," shouted MPs as they thumped their desks in obvious approval of the action.

Former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr said there seemed to be "more truth than fiction" in reports that the ouster of Mr. Banks was approved in an agreement involving the SIU, the United States government and the Canadian government.

David Orlow, NDP member for Winnipeg North, said he greeted the announcement with a good deal of enthusiasm. "It is certainly the first step in what has been needed for a long time," he said.

Heil-Hitler Shout Greet Vancouver Boss

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver seamen gathered angrily in their downtown hiring hall Wednesday following news of the removal of Hal Banks as president of the SIU.

About 100 men clustered around John Meredith, newly-appointed local representative of the federal government trusteeship as he walked into the building.

At one point Mr. Meredith, an official of the New Westminster National Employment Office, was greeted by a shout of "Heil Hitler." He took the name of the man who did the shouting.

Simultaneously, commissionaires hired by Mr. Meredith took up 24-hour duty at the hall.

Mr. Meredith conferred briefly with Rod Heinekey, Seafarers' local vice-president. Mr. Heinekey had no comment following the meeting.

Mr. Meredith denied suggestions by seamen that Mr. Heinekey had been "muzzled" or his dismissal was imminent.

The seamen who crowded the hall claimed that, in the dismissal of Mr. Banks, they had lost their rights as citizens. Some charged the government was turning over the union to the rival CBRT.

Seaman Frank Benson sent a protest wire to Mr. Justice Victor Dryer in Montreal, chairman of the trusteeship which fired Banks. He said the wire was signed by 150 of his mates and read: "We protest the arrogant, overbearing action in dismissing our president without consulting the membership. We demand an explanation of this vicious act."

Mr. Meredith said he had been called to Montreal for consultations with the trustees and had taken up his new position here Monday.

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, one of Canada's most powerful and controversial union leaders for the last 15 years, was removed from office Wednesday by orders of the board of trustees over maritime unions.

His place was taken by an employee of the trustees for the last two months, Charles Turner of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

LOUDSPEAKER

At least 50 RCMP officers and city policemen surrounded the downtown Montreal headquarters of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.) when announcement of Banks' dismissal as president of the 14,000-member union was made over a loudspeaker.

Some of the fiercely-loyal supporters of Banks who frequent union headquarters objected to the takeover after SIU vice-President Leonard McLaughlin told them to "remain peaceful."

Pressure on Welfare

Suspended Social Worker Here

A suspended B.C. social worker from Prince George said in Victoria yesterday she would like to have her job back—but that's not why she came here.

"I can't deny I came down here from Prince George to try to put pressure on the government to improve its welfare program," said Mrs. Bridget Moran.

Mrs. Moran was suspended by the provincial welfare department one month ago at the height of a controversy which she sparked late last year with a scathing open letter to Premier Bennett.

Three other Prince George social workers who were suspended at the same time have been reinstated.

Mrs. Moran described herself as a compulsive social worker who will be "lost" if she isn't reinstated.

But she doesn't plan on pleading for her job—she has a lawyer looking into possible grounds for appeal.

Welfare officials said they didn't know whether Mrs. Moran would be reinstated. But reinstatement or not, she plans to make her mark on government welfare policy.

As an opening gambit she will continue to sit in the public galleries of the legislature throughout debate on the estimates of Welfare Minister Black.

She said she doesn't care if the debate takes a week. "I've come down here to see just how the provincial govern-

Urban Living an Impossibility While Cars Blight City Centres

By GENE OISHI
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)
—Victor Gruen is a Vienna-born architect who, having achieved monetary success, has set himself a goal of reshaping the major cities of the United States to banish the automobile.

As Gruen sees it, the city is "a living organism which is dying from deadly foreign particles injected into its veins and arteries."

The intruders? "Automobiles — space-eating monsters from Detroit," he says. "We considered a city more civilized when it moved its sewage from the middle of the streets to underground; when it removed cables and telephone lines from sight; and when it banished railroad trains from main street. But we still allow the automobile to clog our streets and sap the life from our cities."

Downtowns, he says, are fast becoming blighted areas inhabited only by workers who must waste hours fighting freeway traffic to get to their jobs. And the suburbs, from where they come, must move farther and farther out to escape the sprawl of commercial activity.

NEED CENTRE

No true urban life is possible, Gruen says, without an easily accessible, compact centre. Such a centre is not possible, he says, when two-thirds of the downtown space is taken up by auto traffic and parking lots, which is the case in Los Angeles.

His plan for Fort Worth, Tex., commissioned by a Texas utility company and presented as a gift to the city, has never been translated into steel and concrete, but has been widely acclaimed, discussed and imitated.

"I hope it will never be realized," said a Gruen aide. "As it is, it's a classic. It has been included in architectural textbooks. If the plan were implemented, there would be compromises."

The plan calls for the transformation of the downtown core into a pedestrian island from which all motor travel would be banished. Space recovered from auto traffic and parking lots would be used for green areas, pedestrian malls, lined with trees and shrubbery, theatres, sidewalk cafes, kiosks and little shops.

"The talk about the desirability of the low density in urban areas is utter nonsense if we recall that the city's foremost function is to facilitate intimate human communication," Gruen says.

Gruen was born in Vienna in 1903, and in Vienna, it would appear, seeds of the "Gruen plan" were first planted in his mind. The inner city is encircled by the Ringstrasse, a broad boulevard fringed with splendid parks. Within this city core is the stately St. Stephen's Cathedral, the University of Vienna, the opera house, little shops, theatres and numerous museums.

Gruen studied architecture at the Vienna Academy of Fine Arts. Then began what Gruen calls his "life of many cities" — Hamburg, Prague, Budapest, Paris, London and then, in 1938, to New York with a T-square and $8 in his pocket.

He formed his own firm in 1951. Today it has about $80,000,000 worth of construction in place. The firm has a staff of 200 architects, engineers and draftsmen at its main office in Beverly Hills, with 30 others scattered in New York, Chicago, Boston and Rochester.

"Some say there is no need for a city, a centre," Gruen says. "They say you can communicate in the future with television phones. You may be able eventually to talk to your girl friend by television, but you can't kiss her that way."

Although the Fort Worth plan was never realized, Gruen's concepts have taken form—to a more modest degree—in other cities.

HELPS ROCHESTER

A notable example is the midtown plaza in Rochester, N.Y., designed by Gruen's firm. It is a 10-acre shopping complex in the heart of downtown, containing more than 40 stores at two levels. It includes an enclosed, air-conditioned pedestrian mall the size of a football field.

Economically, the plaza has been a boon for downtown Rochester. Even the sidewalk cafe, Gruen's pet undertaking, has been a smash success.

Gruen's other projects in the works include an ambitious plan for revamping a 160-acre downtown core in Boston.

The midtown plaza has caught the attention of medium-sized cities, where Gruen believes the breakthrough in downtown revitalization will come. In Fresno, Calif., his firm has designed a plan to convert 12 blocks in the heart of the city into an auto-less business centre.

The Boston project, however, if it can survive the obstacles in its path, would provide a touchstone for the country's big cities, caught in a trend of the ever-expanding sprawl.

Old B.C. Bank No Model

VANCOUVER (CP) — The planned new Bank of British Columbia has a namesake in provincial history but little else in common with it.

The new bank will have a federal charter and the provincial government will be a minority shareholder. The old bank, founded by royal charter, was run by a rather cranky crew in London.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett isn't expected to look to the past for inspiration. He's a teetotaler, for one thing.

There is in the history of the old Bank of B.C. the story of the keg of beer stashed away in the vault — and there is the case of the bank safe that became a grocery refrigerator and the centre of a lawsuit.

Reporter-historian Bruce Ramsey traced the history of the original bank in a story in the Vancouver Province.

The bank was founded in 1862 during the Cariboo gold rush. Until it merged in 1900 with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, it operated branches throughout the province.

The beer episode occurred when bank inspector Frank Townsend looked in on the branch in the interior community of Greenwood.

One evening Townsend arrived unexpectedly and began working on the books. Upon completion of his task, he asked the clerk to open the safe to check the cash.

The clerk was a bit hesitant, the manager looked a bit unhappy, and the bank inspector writes Ramsey, did not take kindly to the newfangled operation. The bank was governed not by directors but by a "court" which operated from London.

Once the Victoria branch bought a typewriter without first obtaining permission from the "court," and the honorable gentlemen in London were outraged.

Upon receipt of the first typewritten letter they promptly replied—in longhand—to the manager of the Victoria branch requesting him to tell the offending clerk that if he could not write a legible hand, then he had better resign.

Unfortunately, no record has been preserved of the words which passed from the mouth of the flabbergasted inspector. But when the manager had time to explain the situation, there was a party.

Ramsey tells of the bank's move in 1887 to new premises at Hastings and Seymour Streets in Vancouver.

This building was built around the huge steel safe. After the bank vacated the premises it was occupied by a grocery firm which used the safe as a refrigerator.

After several years the Canadian Bank of Commerce claimed ownership of the safe.

It meant practically tearing down the whole building. A lawsuit ensued, with the bank losing out.

PARKING THIEF

Fender Banger Makes It

DETROIT (AP)—Richard C. Rich's career as a parking lot attendant was not very successful. He banged up too many fenders.

But he went on to become one of the leading garage designers in the United States. More than 100 cities in the United States, Canada and Mexico now have Rich-designed garages.

Rich, 33, who lives in suburban Grosse Pointe Woods, said that his interest in parking problems began when he was an undergraduate at Marquette University in Milwaukee.

PART-TIME

"I got a part-time job at a parking lot to help pay my way through college," he said. "I banged up a few fenders and pretty soon they promoted me to night supervisor of the firm's parking lots. I guess they wanted to get me out from behind the wheel."

Rich, who has some definite ideas about multi-level garages and the role they can play in easing traffic congestion, became active in the garage planning field in 1949.

He became chief designer for national garages and made numerous studies of building design and traffic flow.

SELF-SERVE

Rich is a firm believer in the self-service parking garage. This is the type where a motorist picks up a ticket as he enters the garage, finds his own parking place and pays for the ticket when he leaves.

He is convinced that the average housewife who comes downtown on a shopping trip does not want to pay $1 for parking but rather would prefer a garage where she could park for about a dime a half hour.

Rich says parking garage operators faced with rising costs of land, construction and labor are looking for ways to obtain more parking space per dollar. He believes the low-cost, multi-deck, self-service garage is the answer.

Trade Union Activity Increases Slightly

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade union strength increased slightly last year in seven of the 10 provinces.

This was disclosed in a special survey of union membership in Canada, made by the federal labor department and published in the latest edition of the Labor Gazette, an official departmental journal.

It shows Ontario as the most unionized province, with 552,000 trade unionists, an increase of 14,200 over 1962.

Next is Quebec, with 360,200 unionists, up 6,100.

Behind the two central provinces are British Columbia, with 158,600 union members, up 3,600; Alberta, 63,000, up 2,600; Manitoba, 62,400, down 2,000; Saskatchewan, 43,400, up 1,000; Nova Scotia, 41,100, down 1,200; New Brunswick, 27,400, up 1,400; Newfoundland, 20,300, up 3,600, and Prince Edward Island, 1,600, down 200.

In addition, there are about 32,200 union members in jobs that span two or more provinces—such as seafarers, telegraphers and actors. This group was down by 4,200 from 1962.

All industries showed increases in unionization, except transport and utilities.

FLED FIVE YEARS AGO

Dalai Lama Forgotten

By V. M. NAIR

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—The Tibetan Dalai Lama is leading a lonely, almost forgotten life in an obscure village high in the Himalaya Mountains nearly five years after he fled from the Chinese Communist invasion of his country.

With him are most members of his cabinet, many of them in their 60s or 70s, but still hoping for a political miracle which will enable them to return to Tibet.

Scattered all over India, Nepal, Sikkim and Bhutan are an estimated 70,000 Tibetan refugees who escaped with the Dalai Lama in the spring of 1959. They, too, dream of the day when they can go back to their homes on the windwept Tibetan plateau.

The Dalai Lama, now 28, devotes most of his time to the welfare and resettlement of these loyal followers who preferred life in exile with him to living under Chinese rule.

SURE OF RETURN

While the young Tibetan ruler is practical enough not to raise the Tibetans' hopes of an early liberation of their land, he does seize every opportunity to stress his undying faith in the ultimate success of his efforts to regain his lost land.

The modern bungalow, called Heavenly Abode, set against the picturesque backdrop of peaks, where the Dalai Lama now lives is a far cry from his great Potala Palace in Lhasa.

The Dalai Lama's entourage is housed in and around the bungalow in a self-contained settlement of about 20 houses.

The lama has drawn up a campaign activity against the comprehensive plan of reforms to be introduced inside Tibet on his return home.

At the same time, the presence of the Dalai Lama has raised many problems for the Indian government.

Despite India's border dispute with China, authorities have not permitted the Dalai Lama to his entourage.

FEARSOME GIANTS, the Watutsis, no longer scare the little Bahutu tribesmen who were their slaves for centuries. The Watutsis, who live in the African country of Rwanda, often reach seven feet in height, but they are outnumbered 10 to one by the Bahutu who are only half their size, and who are threatening to exterminate them. (AP wire-photo.)

Swallows Return to Zotique

By JOE DUPUIS
S.T.E. GENEVIEVE, Que. (CP)—When spring comes and the swallows again dot the skies over Ste. Genevieve, a short, stout, red-faced man with white glasses will watch through binoculars.

In pairs and in droves, the birds will descend on Zotique Rivard, 62, their benevolent caretaker for four decades. As many as 125 pairs will find shelter in the aviary he has built over the years in his back garden, only 125 feet from the fast-flowing Riviere des Prairies.

Other swallows will flock to other backyards where the people of this quiet northwest Montreal suburb—following the example of Rivard—have provided similar if less extensive accommodations.

The story of Ste. Genevieve's swallows is the story of an unusual man. Zotique Rivard—who looks like the typical Kentucky colonel—is an amateur naturalist described by Montreal wildlife director Albert Courtemanche as "one of those very rare persons."

Observations put down on paper by Rivard in 50 years of following the fish, birds and animals of his area are in files that take up a corner of Courtemanche's Montreal office.

Rivard has been an observer of Ste. Genevieve's wildlife—and a lover and guardian of it—since a hot summer day in his youth when he climbed a tree and found a bird's nest.

"From his work of recording what he saw and did, we have been able to compile a pretty complete record of wildlife patterns on Montreal Island in the past half-century," says Courtemanche. "His records are the only ones we have."

Rivard springs into action at the faintest bird-call, racing for his binoculars.

"But today, civilization is killing bird-watching," he says. "Birds have no more place to go. Where once there were fields and forests, today there are none. The fields are getting filled up with buildings. There are trees here and there, but man is nature's enemy. The children go around with rifles shooting birds."

Zotique hasn't seen a bluebird in Ste. Genevieve for 10 years. When he was young, they were plentiful. He believes that only man can save the birds, by doing what he and the people of Ste. Genevieve have done—building places for them to live.

But if observing nature and keeping records is a labor of love for Rivard, muskie fishing is his obsession.

Rivard has caught 148 muskellunge in his lifetime, and Courtemanche says this must make him the all-time Quebec muskie champion.

Japanese Reap N.Z. Fisheries

By J. C. GRAHAM

WELLINGTON (CP)—For years New Zealanders have watched a bountiful harvest being won from the seas around their coasts and then disappearing over the horizon.

The fishing is done by Japanese craft, which come 6,000 miles for it from their home ports. So good is the fish supply in New Zealand waters that no fewer than 17 Japanese companies have sought permits from their local authorities to send fleets to these fishing grounds.

Until now New Zealand has offered little competition. New Zealand fishing boats are small and they do not work at long distances from their home bases. They supply only the local market and a small export trade.

The New Zealand fishing industry claims that its high wage structure makes it impossible to compete on the world markets with fishing vessels from low wage countries like Japan. It has bitterly complained of "poaching" by Japanese vessels, but as long as these craft remain outside the three-mile limit there is no legal barrier to their presence.

And as long as New Zealand was so inadequately exploiting the fishing waters, it had a weak case for demanding that the government take action to keep the Japanese away.

In spite of many charges of Japanese fishing inside the three-mile mark, few authenticated cases have been found.

Photographic proof of violations was obtained recently by New Zealand Air Force planes, resulting in official protests to Japan. This brought apologies and assurances of disciplinary action. But it has done nothing to reduce the busy fleets of Japanese craft working just outside the limits.

New Zealand now is planning activity on several fronts.

The government placed a vigorous fisheries development policy high among the policy points at the election when it won a new term of office last November.

A fishing industry board to foster the industry will begin operations in April. It will have power to make loans for larger vessels and more modern equipment.

WHAT MADE NAZIS TICK?

Auschwitz SS Trial Reopens Old Debate

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CPI)—The farther the Second World War recedes into the mists, the closer Europe seems drawn to examine the mentality of the men who caused its descent into the pit 25 years ago.

A new generation ponders the problem of Nazi psychology, trying to analyse what could have brought apparently civilized men to such depths. Last year a television program revealed the terrible mental block between the generations in modern West Germany — a block caused by political sympathies the fathers wished to forget, the sons could not begin to understand.

The psychological problem has been working away in people's minds since 1945, while on another subterranean level the public prosecutor in Bonn was harrowing after escaped war criminals. Both operations broke ground in 1961 with the trial of Adolf Eichmann, opening a public debate on what made Nazis tick.

A similar eruption may come after the Frankfurt trial of the Auschwitz guards — an event that seems to arouse far greater revulsion among ordinary Britons, though less prominent in the newspapers, than the story of Eichmann the colorless SS (Elite Guard) administrator.

PERSONAL SADISM

The essential difference in the Frankfurt evidence is the personal sadism involved in acts that simply blunt belief, like the throwing of babies alive on a fire. Unlike Eichmann, the men of Auschwitz did not merely sign death-warrants—they carried them out with their own hands and with a brutality that made little children glad to die.

A Viennese doctor testified that Auschwitz guards behaved "like beasts in the stone age," and an observer writes in The Guardian that the men now on trial seem to have "moral amnesia."

The issue on Nazi guilt and conscience will probably obsess writers for generations. In the last two years, since Eichmann's execution, several have the Nazis could hardly have been posing the uncomfortable question that maybe Nazi guilt for the slaughter of Europe's Jews should be shared by some non-Nazis.

The German play The Deputy, now on Broadway, accuses Pope Pius XII of a moral failure to speak out. There was a London play about the return of Hitler which implied that West Germany was still riddled with the virus of fascism.

BITTER WRANGLING

And there was—and still is—the bitter wrangling among Jews in the United States and Europe over Hannah Arendt's book on the Eichmann trial, a book that questions the role played by some of the Jews themselves in their path to mass destruction.

Miss Arendt, a German Jew who emigrated to the U.S. the year Hitler came to power, based her book—a Report on the Banality of Evil on two explosive themes:

1. That Eichmann was little more than a conscientious bureaucrat carrying out orders, as the defence claimed; and that he was "terribly and terrifyingly normal."

2. That at least part of the blame for the pre-war genocide should be laid on the Jewish leaders, without whose co-operation two years, since Eichmann's execution, several have the Nazis could hardly have disposed of 6,000,000 souls.

The Arendt book has aroused furious resentment among survivors of the death camps who feel the author has, through ignorance or misinterpretation, cast an unforgivable slur on her own race.

BOOK DISCTRAGED

Last fall some 400 European Jews now living in west London gathered in a bleak assembly hall to discuss her "outrageous travesty."

On the platform sat survivors of the Jewish communities in Nazi Germany, Austria, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. One by one they asserted passionately that Eichmann wielded immense power, was far from being just a cog in a machine, and that the Jewish leaders had done everything within their "dimly" restricted abilities "to save as many of their people as possible."

Popular Press

One copy of a daily British newspaper is printed for every two Britons. In West Germany, the figure is one copy daily for every two and one-half Germans; in the United States, one copy for every three people and in France, one copy for every four.

People Smuggled

NEW YORK (AP)—Organized rings overseas are trying harder than ever to smuggle people into the United States.

They're also having less success than ever before, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization service reports.

But in the process they're muling millions of dollars from their hapless victims at fees ranging from $50 to $2,000.

The rings try to speak most of them into the United States by ship. A few are sent by plane and by land across the borders of Mexico and Canada.
